'89 Water Shortage Imminent For Eastern Pennsylvania

BY PAT PURCELL

WHITE HAVEN (Luzerne) — The steady rain which many areas of the Commonwealth received this week makes the 1988 drought seem like a bad memory. But the drought of '88 is not over and the drought of 1989 looms as a possible threat.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service agents and extension agents gathered in White Haven, Luzerne County on Monday to discuss risk management strategies for drought conditions to enable farmers to hedge their losses.

"Because of 1988 farmers are short on feed and will be even

Court Rules In Favor Of Naaman King Again

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ATGLEN (Chester)—In the legal battle over the farmland the Octorara School District wants to take from Naaman King, the court has, for the second time, ruled in favor of the potato farmer. A three-judge panel of Pennsylvania's Commonwealth Court in Philadelphia, last Friday, decided that the school district's present needs only merit taking 15 acres for an athletic field, not the 102 acre farm condemned November, 1987.

In speaking for the court, Judge

Manure Not As Excessive As Expected In Lancaster

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — There's no doubt about it: Lancaster County does produce a lot of livestock manure. But the good news is that, contrary to popular belief, there isn't an overabundance of the stuff.

Berks Conservation Practices Pay Off

BY LOU ANN GOOD

KUTZTOWN (Berks) — For those who doubt whether or not conservation pays for itself, Carl Lobb has an answer. "Conservation works. It keeps the topsoil in place and the fertilizer stays on the fields where it belongs."

Lobb was one of four farmers, utilizing conservation practices, recognized by the Berks County Conservation District on Monday night.

Named the outstanding conservation farmer was Paul Reidenhour Jr. of Windsor Township. He uses diversions, terraces, strips and grassed waterways on his farming operation with its truck crops, hay and grain. Conservation rotation, cover crops, weed control and soil

A Lamb, Two Boys, In A Daffodil Patch

A frisky Cheviot lamb and two cherub boys in a daffodil patch invoke a feeling of empathy and a sense of the new beginings that happen in the spring. Kyle Peters, three-year-old son of Vicky Peters, Lititz, and Ashley Martin, five-year-old son of Mr.and Mrs. Shannon Martin, Manheim, enjoyed this little lamb and all the other meadow-mates on the Terry and Priscilla Hodecker Farm along Evans Road north of Lititz.

Managing Editor, Everett Newswanger, took the picture Wednesday afternoon before a heavy April rain shower sent everyone running for cover in the barn.

Special Features In This Issue

Named outstanding farmer by the Kutztown Jaycees, Floyd Kurtz reflects with his wife, Beth, on why they are proud to be in farming. Turn to page B 16 to learn more about the Kurtz family from Fleetwood.

Acres Corn Update: Closing corn futures gained 2 cents on the spot option and closed 3/4 cents lower on the deferred May. Buying was linked to rumors that the Soviets would bid for an additional 200,000 MT of corn, which was confirmed after the close. Further support was attributed to firmer basis levels along with ideas that the recent price breaks would attract more export business. Ideas the market had become oversold added technical support. Generic certificate bids remained steady today.

Acres Soybean Update: Soybean futures prices added from 1/4 to 8 cents to yesterday's gains in another consolidating session. Bearish perceptions toward the cash market kept the nearbys on the defensive throughout the day. The July/November spread narrowed to 11-1/2 cents from 19-1/2 cents yesterday. Near term pressure was attributed to weaker CIF and FOB values along with weak export demand. The harvest in Brazil is said to be 15% complete. Trading in the deferreds was fairly quiet with activity today centered on the old crop months. November ended 6 cents higher at $7 11-1/2 while the May closed 1/4 cent higher at $7 15.

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures prices closed higher from 1 cent to 3 cents on buying linked to news that China was bidding on 300,000 metric tonnes under their export bonus. Further support was attributed to ideas that recent losses were overdone with uncertainty over recent export rumors limiting price rallies Some May/July spreading was featured during the session. Trading today was choppy and confined to narrow ranges July ended the day 1 cent higher at $3.92-1/4 while gained 3 cents at $4.04-1/4.

Acres Cattle Update: Live cattle and feeder cattle futures closed higher today gaining from 2 to 95 points on the live cattle and 30 to 57 points on the feeders. Gains were magnified by the futures discount to cash prices with heavy cash connected buying tied to oversold conditions. A pick-up in packer demand for fed cattle supplies and ideas of short bought conditions underpinned cash prices. Feeders closed higher on spillover from live cattle and short covering Live cattle trade in the direct markets remained sluggish, with the USDA reporting light sales at weaker prices.

April 5, 1989

Trading was reported in a wider range of prices compared to last week. Trade sentiment was cautiously steady. Offers from producers were light but increasing as they assess developments in the egg markets. Buyers have several flocks booked at open prices to move off the farms during the next two weeks. Processors operated full schedules but most have line time available for next week. Demand for canner pack product no better than fair but processor inventories very light. The undertone was barely steady.

N.Y. & Phila. Frozen Eggs

April 4, 1989

Trading activity was limited but usually at increasingly competitive price levels. Buyers were extremely cautious and selective. Breakers continued to bid lower for available offerings of raw materials to enable them to further reduce asking prices for finished product. Floor stocks were sufficient to handle current trade needs.

Ask the Old Farmer: Why, for heaven's sake, don't New Englanders raise more popcorn? R T, Fla

Raising popcorn is going out of style here You see, our seasons are getting so much warmer, the stuff pops in the fields

Home Hints: Spirits of camphor, rubbed on white rings on wooden tables will help remove the rings

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Rain, some heavy, snow in the mountains, sunny and normal, cold, finally rain and it's snow in the mountains again

Greater New York-New Jersey: Sprinkles and cold, mild in the south, rain, partly cloudy, and finally cold to round out the week

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Hey! Sunny and pleasant, what do you say? Rainy and cold to change the scene, warm and showers to top it off

OPINION

An Apple A Day Still Keeps The Doctor Away

Television and other media in recent weeks has reported dangers from chemical residues on food, particularly produce. However a closer look at the situation shows our supply of fruits and vegetables to be safe for everyone, including children. These scare tactics make good entertainment and sell advertising for television but distort the facts and do far more harm than good to American children's diets.

We have been told repeatedly how "dangerous" chemicals on fruits and vegetables increase our risk of cancer (and more importantly, our children's risk). The main target of these attacks has been a plant growth regulating chemical named daminozide sold under the trade name Alar. Alar can be applied to apple trees during the growing season to increase the color and firmness of the fruits, to keep apples from falling off the tree prematurely, to improve storage life of the fruits and to improve bloom on the tree the following season. It has been used since 1962. Since the controversy over Alar use started in 1985, acreage treated has dropped dramatically to an estimated 5% of 1988 apple acreage treated with the chemical. Of this it can safely be assumed that the vast majority of fruit either have no detectable residue or residues which fall well within EPA tolerances for Alar.

Dr. John Wiesburger, Director Emeritus of the American Health Foundation and former head of the Carcinogen Screening Section at the National Cancer Institute, states the following about Alar and apples: "Consumers should not be alarmed about any alleged toxic effects of possible Alar residues." "The public should not be misled into thinking apples are endangering their health. Apples are as healthy as ever. The trace amounts of Alar present on some apples are toxicologically insignificant."

The controversy over alar has been used to question pesticide use and food safety in general. Pesticides are simply agents which are used to kill pests, whether those pests are insects (insecticides), diseases (fungicides), weeds (herbicides), rodents (rodenticides), or whatever. Alar is not strictly a pesticide, it is a plant growth regulator. There is a misconception among the American public that natural substances are safe and man made chemicals are dangerous. However the facts do not support this perception. When Dr. Ames developed his test for mutagenicity he was surprised to find that many common natural substances proved to be potential carcinogens.

You cannot even assume that produce which has been grown without pesticides is safer than pesticide sprayed fruits and vegetables. Dr. Ames notes that plants often generate large amounts of natural toxins in response to attacks by insects or disease. For example, light activated natural carcinogens in celery increase 100 fold when the plants are damaged by fungus. So what is safe? This does not mean that you should be afraid to get out of bed in the morning for fear of encountering carcinogens everywhere you turn. They are a part of everyday life and not a threat under normal circumstances. But it does point out that the world is full of substances with much more ability to cause cancer than minute amounts of chemical residues found on foods.

Pesticides are carefully screened and tested before they are labeled for use on any crops, particularly food crops. As with any agency or organization there is room for improvement but in general EPA and FDA have done a remarkable job in seeing that Americans continue to have the safest food supply in the world. If such substances as peanut butter, diet cola, coffee, tea and many others were subjected to the same scrutiny and registered for use as agricultural chemicals are, it is entirely possible that they would be banned. Of course these substances are entirely safe in normal use in the American diet. This is not to criticize the procedures used but to put dangers from residues of agrichemicals in their proper light.

So let the EPA take a long, hard, honest look at Alar to determine whether or not it should be used on food crops. Farmers do not want to endanger the health of anyone and will accept an honest decision. Certainly we should carefully scrutinize any substance to be used on our food. But let us not make scientific decisions in the heat of media hype and hysteria.

In the meantime the old adage "An apple a day keeps the doctor away" is just as true today as it ever was. Americans in general and children in particular will do far better to stick to fruits and vegetables (and their products) than to turn to sweets and sugared (or diet) beverages.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Care For Foaling Mares

Following the birth of a newborn foal, allow the mare and foal to lay quietly with the umbilical cord still intact; the cord should break when the mare and/or foal rises. If it becomes necessary to sever the cord, tear it so as to leave a short stump. Never cut the cord with a sharp instrument. The cord should never be torn until all pulsations stop -- apply a tincture of iodine to the unbilical stump as soon as the cord breaks. Some prefer to use a strong solution of 7-½ %, others prefer a more tame tincture. In either case, a wide mouth jar is best and in this way the stump can be completely dipped without spilling tincture of iodine over the belly of the foal.

Consult with your veterinarian concerning the administration of tetanus anti-toxin and antibiotics. Foals usually nurse shortly after birth. If nursing is delayed beyond an hour, seek someone with experience for assistance. Note the mare's udder; full mammary glands indicate that the foul is not nursing. In addition watch the mare for signs of colic-like pain, heavy sweating, and pale membranes. First foal mares may resist nursing due to sensitive udders.

To Prevent Johne's Disease

Johne's Disease is an intestinal infection of ruminant animals that can cause severe diarrhea and weight loss. The primary method of transmission is by young animals less than one year of age ingesting fecal material from older, infected animals. Therefore it is very important to provide cows with a very sanitary maternity area and to separate the newborn calf from its dam immediately after birth. House the calf in an individual pen away from older animals and away from any fecal-contaminated run off. Also avoid tracking manure from older animals into the heifer area. Do not graze heifers with or after older cattle. Do not feed heifers pasture clippings, hay top-dressed with manure or manger sweepings. Cull infected cows.

To Remove Bagworm Cases

Right now is a good time to check evergreens and shrubs for overwintering bagworm cases.

These insects are especially fond of arborvitae, junipers, and cedars, but may be found on other plants. Where only a few infested plants are involved it may be practical to remove and destroy the bagworm cases. Each case may contain up to 500 eggs. Young caterpillars will hatch from these eggs in late April if the cases have not been destroyed.

If there are too many overwintering bagworm cases to remove by hand, wait until after the eggs have hatched and then use a spray. Check for young caterpillars in late April and early May. It is best to control them when they are still small.

To Consider Forsythia For Spring

Forsythia is one of the most common spring shrubs. It's inexpensive and easy to grow from cuttings. The forsythia is seldom, if ever, bothered by disease or insect pests so it's not hard to care for.

There are a number of varieties to choose from. Some are more upright than others and some are trailing or have an arched effect. The trailing forsythia is excellent for a woody ground cover on slopes, banks or walls. It doesn't have as many flowers of as good quality as other varieties. But it spreads easily, is easily pruned and helps prevent erosion.

Most varieties are similar -- they have yellow blooms which appear in early spring. Some have larger blooms and some have more blooms. Some varieties are more hardy than others and will produce loads of beautiful flowers even after a severe winter.

But no matter what variety of forsythia you choose, it will add a breath of spring to your landscape.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

STRONG ENOUGH TO BE HUMBLE

April 9, 1989

Background Scripture:
Philippians 1:27 through 2:30.
Devotional Reading:
Philippians 2:1-13.

Most people seem to equate humility with weakness. A humble person, they assume, is one who is not strong enough or important enough to avoid demeaning service to others. Of course, that's another popular assumption; that serving others in a humble capacity is demeaning to the person doing the serving — the more menial the task, the more demeaning the result.

When I was growing up, society at least upheld humility as a virtue in general, if not too specifically. Today, however, it seems we no longer even give live-service to humility. Those who are most greatly admired today, it appears, are those with rather substantial egos — people who are aggressive enough to get what they want out of life. Humility is what is left for those who are considerably less well-endowed.

EQUALITY WITH GOD

None of the views indicated above are compatible with the New Testament's concept of humility. Jesus performed many humble acts, perhaps none more indicative than his washing of the disciples' feet. But his humility was a badge of his strength, not his weakness. He could have commanded the disciples to wash his feet and they probably would have done it, for they acknowledged him as the Master. Of all people, Jesus was probably the most self-sufficient person who ever lived. And in his letter to the Philippians, Paul says of Jesus, "though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant..." (2:6,7).

So Jesus acted humbly from a position of strength, not weakness. In fact, that's the only way we can be humble — regarding ourselves not as "nothings," but as "someones" loved and valued by God. Humility can be practiced only by someone who has something to lose, or better, give. Jesus had more to give than anyone and that's why his acts were often such humble ones.

EMPTIED HIMSELF

Actually, humility is not something that happens to us or is done against us. Humility is our own free choice to serve someone else in their need. It is a highly willing act, not one of necessity. Jesus wasn't humbled, as Paul puts it, "he humbled himself" (2:8), "he emptied himself, taking the form of a servant" (2:7). He wasn't forced reluctantly to the cross, but "became obedient unto death, even death on a cross" (2:8b).

Humbly serving other people, therefore, never took anything away from him; it only added to his stature and Paul says, "Therefore God has highly exalted him and bestowed on him the name that is above every name..." (2:9).

Are you strong enough to be humble?

Alfalfa Hydroseeding Program

Now entering our seventh season, here are some remarks we have most commonly heard over the years

1) Hydroseeding is a time saving procedure
2) Forry's method of hydroseeding is far ahead of the field
3) Their 3-10-30 fluid fertilizer gives me my total plant food need for the first year
4) I have quicker starts hydroseeding than my old conventional way
5) I like the one-call operation

Acres Hog Cattle: Live hog futures closed mixed again today, losing 8 points on the spot option and gaining up to 30 points on the deferreds. Today's closes were at or near session lows in response to long liquidation on positions established earlier in the day. Price direction became uncertain midday on mixed product quotes after support on the opening was tied to oversold conditions and higher cash market prices. Spillover from the cattle pit helped to keep losses in check. Bellies closed from 15 points higher to 95 points lower. The USDA announced after the close that it will begin to make additional purchases of pork during the next few weeks in an effort to assist producers during this period of falling market prices and large marketings.

Vermont Holstein Breeder Dominates Spring Red and White Holstein Show

BY MARIANNE WALKER
Centre County Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) – Many, many red and white bovines displayed their handsomeness at Penn State's Ag Arena recently; but when it was all said and done, Audets Holsteins of Orwell, Vermont had stolen the show, placing third or better in eight of the 21 classes of the 1989 International Spring Red and White Show.

Audets also went on to reap the honors of premier breeder and premier exhibitor. Judge Dick Pickard made numerous comments throughout the day on the excellent quality of the Red Holsteins exhibited.

What Is Green Space Worth?

Prepared By Chester Co. Conservation District Office

WEST CHESTER (Chester) — Depending on point of view, green space can mean dollars in the form of trees to a lumber company, a hassle in clearing to a developer, or peace and fresh air to a conservationist. But, as we exist in a developing area, we must work with those with varying interests. The best and wisest planning for trees and other green space is critical. With little extra effort, simply greater knowledge of alternatives, less of our open lands need to come to paved endings.

When open lands are converted to impervious developed areas (buildings, parking lots, etc.), one of the major drawbacks is the loss of overland flow, the natural course for the water to re-enter the ground. Man made systems often divert this water to a stream or other waterway, depriving the area of needed groundwater. In addition, the receiving waterway is more subject to flooding during wet seasons due to unnatural increases in water contribution. There are many ways to reduce these negative impacts, whether you are a homeowner or a large scale developer.

All too often trees are removed to expedite a construction project. Trees and brush are a prime source of oxygen, animal habitat, shade, and pollution uptake. Each tree should be carefully considered before it is disturbed. Work around trees whenever possible. Innovative ways to pave around trees can be rewarding and pleasing to the eye. An extra 10-15 square feet around the base of the tree provides a means for water to re-enter the ground at that point.

Alternatives To Paving

There are many alternatives available over the usual concrete for paved surfaces. Concrete lattice pavers are designed to allow water to pass through spaces in the material where grass or herbs can also thrive. Normal traffic or a lawnmower keeps the greens at bay. A patio or sidewalk can be planned with a favorite herb (thyme is commonly used in England). When the plants are walked over, oils are released with a pleasant aroma.

Porous asphalt is another alternative. The main difference to that of conventional asphalt or concrete is the space available in the material to retain water, allowing it to soak through to the underlying ground. Any of these methods can be used for driveways, parking lots, sidewalks, patios, basin spillways, and more.

The more trees and brush the better...planting can be well planned to serve a number of purposes. If your area is one with noise, wind, pollution, unslightly structures, or direct sunlight, plantings can alleviate these negatives. While many species attract an abundance of birds and other wildlife, most desirable are the natives of your area. Natural defenses of these species will usually eliminate any need for pest control. Soil type, ground moisture, and sun exposure should also be considered when choosing plantings.

Build Up-Not Out

Building up instead of out utilizes open space most efficiently. Many buildings require a ground level design, but many houses or office buildings could use far less ground with as much inner space. Natural ground cover, that is, undeveloped open space, distributes water coming into its system in the following percentages: 10% run-off, 40% evapotranspiration, 25% shallow infiltration, and 25% deep infiltration. In contrast, land that has been paved has 55% run-off, 30% evapotranspiration, 10% shallow infiltration, and 5% deep infiltration.

As can be seen, there are major increases in run-off from developed land which causes accelerated erosion and related problems. The great decrease in infiltration deprives vegetation and groundwater systems of natural waters. Also, infiltration through the ground is the primary means that pollutants are filtered out of the water. To minimize these effects, impervious surfaces can be planned wisely, incorporating as much open space into the design as possible. You will benefit from this equally as much as the environment.

Slide Program Offered On LISA

ATLANTA, Ga. — One of the hottest topics among people in agriculture today is the issue of "low-imput sustainable agriculture" (LISA). This movement grew out of concerns for groundwater quality and other challenges toward conventional production agriculture in the U.S.

In response to the many questions surrounding the LISA effort, the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI) has prepared a set of 45 color 35mm slides, with printed scrip. The program is titled: "Low-Input Sustainable Agriculture (LISA) and the Groundwater Issue: What Is It? What Does It Represent? What Are The Alternatives?"

With emphasis on sound agronomic information, the slide program explains that conventional production agriculture, with farmers adopting best management practices, remains the best approach to assure profitability, input conservation and efficiency, environmental protection, and sustainable food supplies.

The color slide set with script is available at a cost of $15.00 plus postage. For more information, contact: Circulation Department, Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI) 2801 Buford Hwy, N.E., Suite 401, Atlanta, GA 30329 Phone: (404) 634-4274.

On 30 cows they produced 21,125m 779f.

The leader in the county for protein production went to Truman Martin. His 109 cows produced a record of 20,596m 641p. Truman also showed the greatest increase in pounds of milk, butterfat and protein over last year. His increases were 3.451m 97f and 110p.

Owen Martin had the top cow on lifetime production. His 11-year-old Holstein produced 225,660m 8,169f. Indiana County Farmers Association Holds Meeting

BY RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

INDIANA — The passage of pending local tax-reform legislation and the possible reclassification of anhydrous ammonia would have a significant impact on Pennsylvania farmers, but a proposed increase in the federal minimum wage would have little effect on most of the state's farms.

Those were the conclusions and opinions of legislators and officials of the Indiana County Farmers Association, as they met for that group's annual spring dinner meeting Thursday, March 30, at Indiana's Rustic Lodge.

The Indiana County Farmers Association recruited 40 new members in the first quarter of 1989, enough to make it only the second county in the Pennsylvania Farmers Association Region III to already achieve its annual membership goal.

Bob Fabin of Indiana received the praise of the association members for his service as the 1989 membership drive chairman. Fabin said the 40 new members offset the loss of 36 others, giving the county organization a net gain of four new members and a total of 437, exactly what was needed to reach their goal.

State Rep. Paul Wass, R-Indiana, who also serves as the Pennsylvania Farmers Association state membership chairman, was recognized with a gold Kingpin Award, for recruiting 10 new members into the association in each of three years.

Legislative issues affecting farmers were a main focus of the dinner meeting, and U.S. Rep. Joseph Kolter, D-4th District, and state Rep. Andrew Billow, Jr., D-72nd District, also attended the dinner.

Larry Allison of Clymer, the county association's national legislative spokesman, reported on a recent Washington, D.C., meeting with Rep. Kolter.

Allison said the congressman opposes rending legislation introduced by the U.S. Department of Transportation, seeking to reclassify anhydrous ammonia as a poisonous gas from its present classification as a corrosive chemical.

Anhydrous ammonia is one of the most widely used nitrogen fertilizers, and the Department of Transportation is said to be concerned about the dangers of transporting the substance in its liquid form.

The association believes it would be very difficult to license transporters of anhydrous ammonia if reclassified, and the increased cost might make the use of the fertilizer prohibitive for many farmers.

At the same meeting, Allison said the congressman also indicated he was opposed to the idea of raising taxes, including the gasoline tax, as a way to get the nation out of a deficit budget.

Rep. Kolter said the pending legislation, which would increase

Farmers receiving honorable mention in addition to Lobb were Larry and Lloyd Kehl of Windsor Township for their grass waterways and manure storage on their 600 acres; and Ralph Stoltzfus who farms 174 acres in Caernarvon Township. Stoltzfus utilized waterways, terrace, drainfield and manure storage to enhance his property.

The district and the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service held their annual banquet at the Kutztown Grange. The organizations recognized many for their outstanding contributions for soil and water contribution.

Donald Reinert, who teaches vocational agriculture at Kutztown Area High School was named the outstanding conservation educator. For 24 years, Reinert has guided FFA students and Young Farmer classes into conservation farming methods.

Named the outstanding conservationist is Claude Boas, Reading. He helped established and maintain the outstanding Bass Rearing Ponds in the state. Boas held leadership positions in enviromental concerns for 50 years.

The Blue Mountain Eagle Climbing Club was chosen as the outstanding conservation organization of 1988. Joan Moyer, president of the club, accepted the award and told how the club works to preserve and protect the environment while enjoying it. They maintain 64 miles of the Appalachian Trail that winds through Berks County.

The Lutheran Home, Topton, earned the Maurice Goddard Forestry Award, for setting an example on how to manage resources on a long term basis for timber production, recreation, water protection, wildlife and esthetics.

Three high school seniors each received $1,000 scholarships for their achievements and involvement in conservation. The winners will continue their education in agriculture, forestry or some environmental field of study. They include Jeremy Lynn Deysher, Oley Valley High School; Karen Fessler, Conrad Weiser High School; and Kirk Mark Sattazahn of Conrad Weiser High School.

Henry Bohr Jr. (second from left) was recognized for dedicated service to Berks County Ag from 1965-1989. the federal minimum wage to $4.65 an hour over three years, would have only a slight impact on Pennsylvania farmers, because farms employing less than eight full-time workers would be exempt from paying the new higher minimum wage.

The association also favors a version of the legislation that would allow a sub-minimum wage to be paid during a new employee's training period, possibly for as long as six months.

On the Pennsylvania legislative front, Dan George of Brush Valley, the county association's state legislative spokesman, told the farmers local tax reform remains the main issue.

The county and state farmers associations both have endorsed the package of tax reform proposals, which faces a referendum in the May 16 primary election.

"This is a long-awaited opportunity to reduce some of the local tax burden on real estate and shift it to income where it will be more in line with a person's ability to pay," said Stan Fabin, association president.

"Our board of directors is urging our members and all citizens of the county to get out and vote 'yes' on this all-important issue," he said.

Under the proposed reforms, "nuisance" taxes such as occupation, per capita and residence taxes would be eliminated. In their place, school districts would be able to collect a personal income tax of up to 1.5 percent, and municipalities could collect up to .75 percent.

Counties also would be permitted to levy a sales tax of up to .5 percent, or 50 cents on every $100 of purchases, on items already taxed by the state.

Tom Mikesell of Blairsville, the county's representative on the PFA Advisory Commission to the Department of Environmental Resources, explained how his organization intervenes to assist farmers accused of violating environmental regulations.

During a three-month grace period before any DER fines are imposed, the commission assists farmers in voluntarily correcting the environmental situation. In the 10 years the commission has been in existence, Mikesell said it has resolved 98 out of 100 complaints in the 12-county northwest region, saving farmers in those counties thousands of dollars in DER fines.

Mary Neal of Homer City, the county association's policy development co-chairman, urged the members to actively participate in the formulation of policies which often are adopted at state and even national levels.

"It's the tool that gives each farmer a voice in matters that affect them," she said.

Policy development should be a process which continues all year, she added, and not just considered before the annual state convention.

'89 Water Shortage

more stressed if a 1989 drought occurs," said ASCS State Executive Director Don Unangst opening Monday's meeting. "There are steps we can take to be better prepared for a drought and that's why we are here today."

The soil moisture level of early spring is misleading. It will be absorbed by spring and summer vegetation and the wet spring soil will turn quickly dry. Pennsylvania is between a drought watch and drought warning. There are drought restrictions on the Delaware River Basin. Reservoirs are extremely low and much depends on precipitation in the summer months.

Dry conditions began in the fall of 1987 and have persisted which has created a serious water problem. Rainfall is generally 8" to 10" below normal and in some areas 12" below normal in the Susquehanna and Lehigh River Basins. The Delaware River Basin is 15" below normal," said Chet Henricksen, meteorologist-in-charge in Philadelphia for the National Weather Service, "and it is not going to be made up with a few inches of rain."

The 3" to 6" of rainfall in March went mostly to the southwestern Pennsylvania with little falling in the upper Delaware and Susquehanna River Basins.

"I feel I can say with some accuracy that this summer is not going to be like last summer, but the long term forecast is calling for below normal rainfall. We will probably see a wet spring and a long dry spell, but not an extremely dry spell as we saw last summer," said Henricksen.

But while farmers' may cut their crop losses in the field this year, the drought problem goes beyond the surface. Soil and crops are the first beneficiaries of rain. They quickly absorb the moisture and prevent water from passing through the soil to replenish the water table. A green, flourishing crop in the field can be deceiving.

"I think we will see precipitation more spread out this year which will benefit farmers, but the table level is falling and could well work down and become a well-water problem for homeowners and farmers," said Henricksen.

Water Shortage Imminent

There will be a water shortage in 1989, according John McSparran, Director of Bureau Water Resources Management. In the western portion of the state precipitation is close to normal. But the serious drought which affected western Pennsylvania in the previous years has now shifted to the east.

"Wells are much lower than normal throughout Pennsylvania, if your well has a tendency to go dry, this will probably be the year for it," said McSparran.

"The drought was very intense in October of 1987. The first real relief came at the end of October and November of 1988," explained McSparran. "But December and January and February were low precipitation months. The areas which drain into the New York City reservoirs had the lowest amounts of precipation ever recorded in these three months since the 1965 drought."

There are three stages to the drought plan : drought watch, drought warning and drought emergency and the Delaware River Basin Commission came within a whisker of declaring a drought emergency on March 24, 1989.

There are three reservoirs which supply half of New York City's water needs. These reservoirs are extremely important to the Delaware River Basin.

As the flow drops in the Delaware River Basin, salt water advances farther inland into the fresh water supply. In 1965 the reservoirs went empty. Sixty percent of the flow of the DRB is made up from these three reservoirs. When the flow is not there the salt water fills in the gap. In 1965 there was no upstream storage to release and fight back the ocean. Since that time a plan has been established to prevent that from recurring.

"When the reservoirs get low we cut back and conserve. On March 24 the reservoir storage dropped to the level signaling a drought emergency for one day, but rains on that day brought the level up again. But the reservoir is only 10 million gallons above the emergency line. That is one-month away from a drought emergency," said McSparran.

Normal monthly rainfall for the DRB area is four inches. According to McSparran, 2" of rain will bring the DRB to 15 million gallons and another two inches will bring it up to normal stage, but it takes two inches just to supply the needs of New York City.

"Unless we have an above average rainfall, we won't get much above where we are now," said McSparran.

The Pennsylvania ground water situation could be in for some problems. According to McSparran, Pennsylvania has more wells than any other state: 1 million.

"You can see that with just 1/2 of one percent going dry that we would have a lot of dry wells and a serious problem," said McSparran.

At the present time there are no restrictions in the basin. If Pennsylvania declares a drought emergency all non-essential water uses would be banned such as watering lawns and golf courses, washing cars and filling pools. In Pennsylvania alone a ban on watering lawns an golf courses would conserve 100 million gallons of water each day.

The most critical areas have received below normal rainfall for the past seven months:

Lackawanna County — a 10" rainfall deficit.

Tioga, Monroe, Carbon, Schuylkill, Susquehanna counties — an 8" rainfall deficit.

Lebanon, Northhampton, Pike, Wayne, Bradford, Potter, Cameron, counties — a 6" rainfall deficit.

Lycoming, Bucks, Berks, are nearing the critical list, too.

These areas are likely to feel the most stress from drought. Groundwater is on the rise in the west and south of the turnpike, but east of Centre county and north of the turnpike groundwater levels are dropping.

In these areas in recent weeks stream flow is only 30 percent of normal and with the recent rains it is still only about average and the reservoirs are not filling up.

"We depend on our frozen assets to bring up the reservoirs and streams, but the snows weren't there this year," explained McSparran. "We will see unusually low streams and a lot of dry streams and springs this year. Melting snows feed springs and without those snows those springs may also go dry. It could very well affect the home water situation and livestock watering."

"All we can do is hope for April rain to turn that around," said McSparran.

New York City reservoirs are about half-full. The reservoir in Scranton is 60% of normal level; Hazelton is 70 percent of normal capacity and the reservoir at Bethlehem is at 70 percent capacity. The Harrisurg reservoir is not full either.

"We are now reaching the point where there is just a remote chance of refilling," said McSparran. "It might come up in April or May, but we are not in a good situation right now from a water supply situation."

Plan Now To Cut Losses

Farmers can cut their losses in a drought by employing what they know about weather, soil, crops and management and understanding their options and limitations, according to Elwood Hatley, from Penn State Extension.

There's no certainty about the weather only probability. And it will probably be hot and dry in July and August. The water holding capabilities of soil depends on its texture, depth, structure. This knowledge comes from experience, Hatley stressed, and records.

Also, farmers need to consider the ability of some plants to withstand stress. Plants are most sensitive to drought conditions during their reproductive stages. Farmers need to understand when plants are most susceptible to drought and then make their plans for planting.

For example, corn leaf curling is a defense mechanism to retain moisture while on the other hand sorghum actually stops its growth as a defense mechanism.

"Corn has a two-week period where it is ultra-sensitive to any new environmental stress and this occurs at tassle emergence and silking," explained Hatley. "Corn can lose 50 to 60 percent of its potential yield depending upon conditions at tassle emergence time."

Soybean has the same sensitivity at flowering time, but is spread over a 6-week period. But it adjusts as climactic conditions change. The soybean crop was saved last year by the July 20 rain which came through. Spring oats and barley reproduce 60 days after emergence. Hatley advises farmers to plant early have the grain reproduce in mid-May or or early June before extreme heat and dry conditions are likely to occur. Corn enters its reproductive stage 55 to 60 days after emergence.

"You may want to switch crops if your fields are drought prone. But you've got to put together the information you have collected on weather, soil, plants and combine that with good management to reduce risk by making the right choices at the right time," said Hatley.

Feed Alternatives

Feeding livestock, especially dairy animals, demands some creativity from the dairyman. As a result of the '88 drought, feed reserves are down in the U.S.. The world grain situation looks good, but that may mean a higher feed bill. Richard Adams from Penn State Extension urges farmers to investigate alternatives now.

The outlook for the milk price is not good, according to Adams. Atleast a $1.00 will disappear by June and more farmers will be feeling the pinch more criticaly than they did a year ago. How can farmers protect against losses?

Adams recommends a wise use of concentrates according to price shifts in concentrates, forage, grain and milk. Feed rates should be changed, too, to stay within reasonable costs. Farmers may want to go to an individual ingredient instead of a total mixed ration.

Other recommendations:

--reduce protein intakes on many animals and save money without sacrificing production.

--Supply forage needs with alternative, affordable substitutes. Buying a lot of forage is costly. It is better for the farmer to meet forage needs with what he has at his disposal.

--Align feed supplies, don't stay heavy with one feedstuff.

--Pasture can also help stretch feed dollars.

--Use paper shredded for bedding animals and save your straw for forage. According to Adams, it is approved by the FDA and con-

Manure Not As Excessive As Expected In Lancaster County

County Solid Waste Management Authority, sought to find where manure excess and deficit areas existed based on the amount of nitrogen.

Heistand used information collected from 575 farms during 1986 and 1987 as part of the Chesapeake Bay Assessment Project. Information from farms in the Conestoga Watershed wasn't collected as they were assessed under a different project in 1982. The Authority plans to conduct another survey in that area.

"We thought we'd have very high figures," commented Heistand. "But only two townships have more than one in five farms high in nitrogen."

Those townships are Rapho and West Donegal, each of which contain a large number of poultry houses. Three townships, Eden, Martic, and Providence didn't have any excess nitrogen; Conoy, East Drumore, and Mount Joy have one in five farms with excess nitrogen, while the remaining townships have less than one in five farms with excess nitrogen.

If the manure in each township was spread evenly over the whole township, only two townships would have an excess of nitrogen while the remaining townships all had deficits. As would have been expected, Rapho and West Donegal townships were those with the excesses. Rapho was far ahead with 929,209 extra units. East Donegal Township had the fewest nitrogen units with a decifit of 270,488.

The Ag Waste Committee of the Authority's Citizen Advisory Group, which is studying the problem of waste disposal and ground-water quality, plans to make recommendations to the Lancaster County commissioners by early 1990 on a nutrient-management plan. The recommendations may include a county-wide plan that would list the manure excess and deficit farms and arrange to bring these farmers together to meet each other's needs.

According to Michael W. Brubaker, chairman of the Ag Waste Committee and owner of Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service in Lititz, the recommendations would be detailed and include suggestions for transportation and funding.

"Cost keeps coming into this," said Brubaker. "The end result (of the recommendations) is cleaner water, but who should pay for it?"

Should the contributors foot the bill and if so, who contributes to the ground-water contamination? Or should everyone pay for the nutrient-management plan because everyone drinks and uses the water?

As Lancaster County officials attempt to solve this problem, state legislators also are working on it.

"Representative Jeffrey Coy (D-89) of Franklin County plans to reintroduce a nutrient-management bill in April that would require every farm to have a nutrient-management plan within two years and implement it within five years," Brubaker said.

The first attempt at state-wide nutrient-management legislation, old House Bill 2616, had major problems, according to Brubaker and Heistand. Part of its problem was that it would regulate only farmers and neglected other contributors to the ground-water contamination.

In a working draft, Coy outlined the bill's purposes, which will include provision for a review and assessment of agriculture's contribution to ground-water pollution, establishment of requirements for certification of nutrient-management specialists, and assessment of the impact of non-agricultural things such as on-lot spetic systems, septic system cleansers, residential fertilizers, and well-water construction on nutrient pollution.

The proposed legislature, if passed, would supersede all local ordinances.

Penn State Hires Assistant Professor Of Veterinary Science

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Dr. Charles A. Dangler has been appointed assistant professor of veterinary science in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Dangler's position will involve veterinary research in the areas of experimental pathology and molecular virology. He will conduct investigations of genetic recombination in pseudorabies virus, a herpes virus that affects the reproductive and nervous systems of swine. He also will identify potential mechanisms of viral-induced atherosclerosis and the development of gene probe techniques for the bacteria that causes a wasting syndrome known as Johne's disease in ruminants. In addition, he will serve as a continuing education resource for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Dangler received his bachelor's degree and veterinary medical degree from Michigan State University. He trained as a resident in veterinary pathology while enrolled in his doctoral program in comparative pathology at the University of California at Davis. He is continuing research with his colleagues in California based on his doctoral dissertation, "Development and Application of Recombinant Genetic Probes for the Study of Bluetongue Virus."

Dangler is a member of the American Veterinary Medical Association and the United States and Canadian Academy of Pathology. He also is a member of the American Association of Veterinary Laboratory Diagnosticians and the United States Animal Health Association.

Court Rules In Favor

Madaline Palladino wrote: "Condemnation of an entire working farm for school buildings projected to be needed over the next five to 12 years where probable need is based on assumptions and possibilities that have been challenged by contrary evidence is beyond the eminent domain power vested in the board by the public school code and constitutes an abuse of discretion."

Richard Breckbill, president, Chester/Del. County Farmers Assn., said that the Commonwealth court's decision to uphold the decision by Chester County Common Pleas court judge, Charles B. Smith, was a step in the right direction.

"At our board meeting Wednesday evening we agreed that we continue to support Naaman King 100 percent," Breckbill said. "And we hope this decision will stop the expensive waste of local taxpayers' money in legal fees.

"We know the school will need additional land in the future," Breckbill said. "We just hope good farmland doesn't need to be used."

One of the major concerns expressed by farm leaders is the idea that the school district has condemned the whole farm and took title of both land and mineral rights without negotiating a purchase price or making any payment to King. In addition, these farmers believe that one of the deciding factors in the court's decision was the idea proposed by some school board officials that they can speculate with the remainder of the unneeded land.

But Attorney Alan J. Jarvis, the school district's solicitor, said in a telephone interview Friday that both suppositions by the farmers are false. First, Jarvis said the school district would have needed to immediately pay an "estimated just compesnation," if King would have agreed to the condemnation. But since the courts have been used in this case, compensation is not required until all legal avenues have been explored.

And as for "speculation" on the land not needed for school purposes, Jarvis said they just can do that. "The law says that any land not used by the school within ten years would need to be turned back to King at the price they paid for it," Jarvis said.

Jarvis did not know about the taking of mineral rights.

As for the ruling last week, Jarvis thinks the court used contradictory reasoning to arrive at its decision. "They said the school board acted properly with the information it had before it," Jarvis said."Yet they turn around and find an abuse of discretion. I think what they are saying is that you can't use condemnation for long range planning. And I have never heard a case argued that way before."

Jarvis also contended that the judges were wrong when they prevented him from arguing the facts of Smith's original decision. But in her brief, Pallandino referred to the position of the state Supreme Court, which has said that the power of eminent domain poses such an infringement on private rights that its use must be strictly regulated.

King answers the question that he and his family had planned to develop their land anyway by noting that all his land is in Act 515. This act provides tax relief for Chester County farmers who agree to restrict their land against development.

"All my land is in Act 515," King said. This means I cannot sell lots smaller than ten acres. And if I want to change it, I need to give 10 years prior notice and pay all the roll-back tax and compound interest.

"We want to farm," King said. "I hate to see land covered with concrete. And I feel bad that we call this progress."

An article published in the March edition of the school student newspaper "Brave Ledger" gave the school board's position in relation to the available 85 acre farm of Aldus King (Naaman's cousin) vs. the King farm in question.

"For the past several months the school board has also explored the possibility of purchasing all or part of the 85-acre Aldus King property, alsb adjacent to the existing school site," the report says. Although Mr. Aldus King has expressed a willingness to discuss the sale of his property, ...portions of the Aldus King property are suitable for the school site, although the Naaman King property is far more suitable.

The report then lists a "significantly" less cost per acre because of the agriculture zoning; the "physical proximity" as more suitable to the present school site and the less desirable "slope of the land and soil type, as the three main reasons they seek the Naaman King farm rather than the Aldus King farm.

No author for the school newspaper report was given but a "LIFE vs. LAW" hand-lettered logo appeared at the end of the article.

While those who support farmland preservation say the ruling is a great victory for farmers, King is much more subdued in his response.

"When I see that they have revested the land title and mineral rights back in my name, I'll know it's over," King said. "I've learned not to rejoice too soon, though it's a step in the right direction.

"I really don't think it's fair to condemn a man before he's proven guilty," King said. "And I do think it's thievery to condemn the land without prior negotiations."

Apparently the court agrees with King. But the school district may still request to be reheard by the Commonwealth Court, or they can take the case to the State Supreme Court.

Whatever the next move by the school district, King says the legal costs have been "horrendous". "We just live a day at a time," King said.

firmed by other agencies using paper for bedding purposes. Also, in Israel where they have the top producing cows in the world, their cows are getting 4-6 pounds of straw per day.

--Utilize food processing wastes such as wet brewer's grain, liquid whey, and apple pomace. These food processing wastes keep new England and the Shenandoah Valley farmers in business, according to Adams.

--Cut down on feed waste. Some forage and feed systems can actually loose up to 35 percent. The method of hay storage by using the large round bale is the biggest contributor to forage waste.

Conserve Water-Feed High Moisture Feed

Conservation of water will be critical in 1989. It takes a lot of water to produce milk. To lower water use farmers can use more pasture and green chop and other feeds feed with high water content.

Consider these forages:

--Pasture is 20% Dry matter (DM) content and 80% water;

--Haylage is 50% DM and 50% water;

--Hay is 90% DM and 10% water.

--Wet Brewers grain is 24% DM and 75% water;

--Liquid Whey is 5% DM and 95% water.

"Cheese plants are going out of business because they can't get rid of the liquid whey," said Adams. "And it may cost you absolutely nothing or a minimal amount for the hauling."

That adds up to a big difference in water consumption on a 60 cow herd and it may improve reproduction and milk performance on those animals.

Crop Insurance—Sign Up By April 15

Farmers have until April 15 to sign up for Federal Crop Insurance. And according to Bill Foose, from the the FCIC in Harrisburg, farmers need to take action to hedge against possible losses because the word from Congress is there won't be another disaster relief bill in 1989.

There is a variety of crops which are insurable, but if farmers want other crops insured, Foose recommended they go directly to their Congressman to have specific crops added to the list.

Soybean crop insurance, according to Foose, is now available in every Pennsylvania county.

Farmers have a choice of coverage level and they should give this a great deal of thought. Most farmers select the 65% level. The 50% level in most cases will not cover the farmers costs of production.

For example, at 50% a farmer who usually harvests 100 bushels of corn per acre would only be paid for the difference between his actual yield and 50 bushels. At the lowest level, FCIC will pay the farmer $1.50/bushel for every bushel he is below his guarantee of 50 bushels. The claim most likely will not cover his production costs.

Also, for those farmers with more than one farm, if they go by ASCS records the production figures for all farms are combined and treated as one unit. So if there is a loss on one farm, the farmer may not be compensated for it. However, if the farmer can produce 1988 yield records, the FCIC can set up farms as individual units.

Farmers must analyze how much it actually costs them to produce their crop and the obtain the coverage they need accordingly.

PFA Votes Yes For Tax Reform

HARRISBURG — The leader of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) today urged Pennsylvanians to vote "Yes" for local tax reform in the May 16th primary.

At a Capitol rally attended by several hundred farmers, PFA president Keith Eckel of Clarks Summit, Lackawanna County, said, "Average homeowners, farmers and retirees on fixed incomes deserve a break on their property taxes. With tax reform, local governments will be allowed to cut those taxes by at least 25% and provide tax relief to three out of four Pennsylvania families."

Eckel further said that approval of the constitutional amendment in the upcoming primary ballot will be a victory for good government and fairer taxation.

"Tax increases under the present system, "Eckel said, "...will continue to hit hard the elderly, small businessmen, persons on fixed income and farmers."

Under the present system, Eckel noted, a farmer must pay real estate taxes on his farmland and buildings and may even see those taxes increased, whether or not the farmer made a profit that year.

"Farmers are extremely pleased about the possibility of getting this situation corrected," Eckel said, "Tax reform is of critical importance to seniors who worked a lifetime to buy a home and then retired at a lower income."

Eckel said that his organization is "elated that the entire taxation system is being revamped and revitalized to meet today's needs and the future growth of this Commonwealth."

PFA held the new conference in conjunction with their annual legislative tour to the state capitol.

Holstein Directors Vote Against By-law Changes To Advance Grade-Up Plan

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, CA — A controversial proposal to allow grade Holsteins into the herdbook of the nationwide Holstein Association has been dealt another setback.

The association's 16-member board of directors, meeting in San Francisco March 29-April 1, voted not to introduce a proposed bylaws change at the upcoming national convention that -- if approved by delegates there -- would have paved the way for some grade Holsteins to gain registered status.

Although the decision doesn't rule out absolutely the possibility of voting on such a bylaws change in Minneapolis, Minn., June 27-28 -- individual members can propose their own bylaws amendments for consideration at the convention -- it makes it highly unlikely, according to Zane Akins, the association's executive secretary. Nothing short of a bylaws change will bring such animals into the herdbook, Akins said.

However, a number of Holstein leaders say the setback does not spell the end of such efforts. They expect the association eventually will approve some means for grade Holsteins to become registered, a move that advocates say will increase participation in association activities and increase the pool of elite cows and bulls used for genetic advancement.

"It's going to come. If it doesn't come in 1989, it'll be 1990 or 1991," Nelson Gardner, a director from Bridgewater, Va., said recently, noting the increasing market worldwide for embryos and semen from grade cattle.

The vote against introducing it at this year's convention is the second defeat the "National Identification Program," as Holstein officials have dubbed the grade-up proposal, has suffered since it emerged from a director-appointed committee in late 1987. Delegates to the 1988 convention in San Diego defeated the initial proposal of the Holstein Identification Task Force in a close vote, 126 to 116. The task force subsequently revised the plan to address some of the shortcomings perceived by its critics.

As outlined to members attending the recent series of Winter Forum meetings the association conducts each year, the revised grade-up process still would involve four main steps. Like the similar "genetic recovery" programs already in place in the Jersey and Guernsey associations, the Holstein plan would start with a grade cow that is manifestly Holstein in appearance. This foundation cow would have to be properly identified and -- in contrast to the previous version -- be sired by a registered Holstein.

Female offspring of this cow, if sired by a registered Holstein, would be eligible for provisional registration under Step 2 and their offspring, with similar criteria, under Step 3. Female offspring from registered sires and Step 3 dams would qualify for Step 4 registration, the first to include provisional status in the herdbook. Such animals would have to be enrolled in the association's classification program and, as cows, in the official Dairy Herd Improvement testing program. These animals would carry a "QE" designation -- for qualified entry -- in the herdbook.

Finally, all male and female offspring of these QE cows would be eligible for registration in the herdbook, although they and their descendants would continue to carry the QE suffix. This stipulation marks another change from the proposal voted on in San Diego, which would have dropped the suffix in subsequent generations.

The revised plan also calls for slightly greater fees than the earlier version proposed. If adopted, the basic cost for an association member to register a Step 4 animal would be $43 if all the animals being registered in each of the steps were young calves and $161 if each of the animals were cows. As before, only Step 4 animals would be required to be alive at the time registration is sought. The new proposal also contains more detail about identification and blood testing requirements as well as various other related issues.

Nonetheless, the revised plan has run into much the same opposition that its predecessor faced. At the Winter Forum in Culpeper, Va., March 8-9, Marlin Hoff, a breeder from New Windsor, Md., said he objects to the lack of a live animal requirement until Step 4, arguing that this makes it too easy for a cow jockey to manipulate the process and for breeders to catch up lapsed registrations.

"I don't think we should make it possible for people to stop registering and keep their own records on these cows and allow them to catch it up as easily as this would," Hoff said.

Denny Remsburg, another Maryland member, said, "The dead animal thing is a quick fix for people who want to be in the registered business immediately." Both Remsburg and Hoff said the process would discriminate against faithful registered breeders.

At the Winter Forum in State College, Pa., the following week, participants voted against proceeding with the grade-up proposal in its current form and, in a closer tally, against proceeding with the plan if the animals so registered are identified in a separate herdbook. The idea of a separate herdbook for QE animals emerged from the Winter Forum in Wisconsin, where a majority of the participants were opposed to the proposal in its current form.

It was this kind of opposition that dictated the directors' decision in San Francisco, Akins said. Surveys at the 14 Winter Forum meetings held across the country indicated that only 51 percent of those voting supported going ahead with the grade-up proposal. The directors "didn't feel that was sufficient support," Akins said.

Before that meeting, John Cope, a director from Grantham, Pa., said, "The real struggle of the directors is the fact that it's such an even count of people with strong stands one way or the other. We still seem to be in a state of polarization on this issue and what we're striving for is some way to have the two sides come together on a give-and-take basis."

The directors' decision does not mean the end of the identification task force, which will continue to meet to discuss the related issue of a uniform animal numbering system, according to Akins. He and other Holstein leaders said they think it likely some form of a grade-up program will be implemented eventually.

One association insider who asked not to be identified said that it's mainly the high profile members, those who attend Winter Forum meetings and go as delegates to the national convention, that are in opposition. The rank and file membership support the concept three to one, he said.

"Just about everybody would say it's inevitable," Akins said. "It's a matter of when and in what form."

Parasite Testing Program Offered

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — The Easter Lancaster County Adult Farmer progam will offer a free parasite testing program on Monday, April 17, and Tuesday, April 18.

Any farmer in the area is invited to bring up to four samples of feces from beef and dairy cattle, horses, swine, sheep, or goats to one of six collection sites. The samples will be collected between 8:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. both days at the following locations: Brecknock Elementary School, Caernarvon Elementary School, Blue Ball Elementary School, Summit Valley Elementary School, Aaron Groff's Farm Store, and Aaron Shirk's Animal Health Store.

The samples should be collected fresh in clean containers that can be tightly closed such as plastic bags, freezer containers, or small jars. Each sample should be carefully labeled with your name and address as well as the type of animal.

This testing is done by Hoechst-Roussel Agri-Vet Co. in their Sommerville, N.J., laboratory and results will be mailed to you.

Delaware DHIA Makes History

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

FELTON, DE — A record was made in Delaware's history as five herds passed the 20,000 pound production record. Heatwole, Wyatt, Bailey, Voss and Phipps all had records with this production as well as over 740 of fat.

The top herd, in the state of 41 herds, went to J. & A. Heatwole with a production of 23,115m and 825f on 61 cows. This Sussex County herd also had the top record for butterfat. The top herd for protein production went to J.E. & S. Bailey from Sussex County. They had a record of 21,626m 717p on 116 cows.

The top herd for both milk and butterfat from Kent County went to C. Wyatt. His 36 cows produced 22,491m 794f. In New Castle County the top milk record went to W.L. & S. Phipps 20,192m 748f on 64 cows. E. McDowell had the top record for butterfat on his 27 cows 19,936m 756f.

R. Kauffman from Kent County had the highest individual cow for lifetime production. His 11-year-old produced 218,121m 8468f.

Following the production awards Leslie Jane Moore, the 1988 Delaware Dairy Princess, crowned this year's Dairy Princess Shelly Tucker. Shelly is a 1986 graduate of Woodbridge High School near Bridgeville Delaware. She is the daughter of Edna and Tommy Tucker in Sussex County. While in school she was a member of the Woodbridge FFA and a member of the Greenwood Hi-Flyer 4-H Club, where she was an officer. She also was a member of the Honor Society and Student Council.

Shelly is presently employed by a Agri-business Construction Company where she is a secretary. She hopes to return to school to get a degree in computer programming. As a dairy princess, Shelly hopes to broaden her knowledge concerning the dairy industry as well as passing on what she has learned to others.

The alternate princess is Lis Lynne Eger of Seaford. She is the daughter of Richard and Kathleen Eger. She has been an active member for 11 years in 4-H. Lisa has been involved in many food related activities in 4-H and has developed an educational presentation for children concerning dairy products.

Shelly presented a skit entitled, "Keep ON MOO-ING WITH MILK. It dealt with the nutritional aspects of nature's most natural food. Martha Cook who has chaired the committee for a long time handed over the duties to Lynn Bullen to be the new chairman.

RCMA Works With The Agency

BATAVIA, NY — Members, directors and staff of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) plan to work with the Producers Equalization Agency (the Agency) to secure over-order premiums for their dairy farmer members in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio. "We are pleased that an organization has been set up in Federal Order #36 to set higher milk premiums in that area," commented Ed Anna, RCMA Executive Director and General Manager. A number of farmers from the Order #36 area have indicated that they would like to be represented by "RCMA". Since RCMA and the Agency have the same goal, "improved farmer income," the two organizations will complement each other in that mutual effort.

According to Anna, RCMA will continue to recruit members in the Order #36 area in cooperation with the Agency because "over-order premiums are important to the financial well-being of dairy farmers." An appropriate number of representatives (1 for every 250 RCMA members) will be appointed by RCMA to sit on the Agency's Board of Directors, which will carry out the functions of that organization.

Tom Croner, newly elected president of the Agency, indicated that the members will begin to be signed up to the Producer Equalization Agency in full force beginning in May, 1989. "We are working to put the Agency in operation by September, 1989," he said. The Agency now has sixteen dairy farmer volunteers on its Board of Directors.

Her top record as a 6-year-old is 350 23,860m 3.5% 838f with a lifetime record of 1739 days 110,650m 3.8% 4159f. She carries an index of CI +17P +19F +519M CI$ +61 +60 CTPI +481. The grand dam, Miss Killdee Charm X Betsje, is VG 85 with a top record as an 8-year-old of 305 days 21960m 3.9% 851f. Her lifetime record stands at 130,450m 4.0% 5325f.

The second high of the sale was a Ocean-View Dixiecrat daughter owned by Robert Fry. This July calf, Cain-Viee Dixiecrat Belayet, is out of the cow who holds the record for milk in Delaware. Cain-View RORA Ivan Birdie is an Elevation daughter classified at 2E, 91-EEEE.

Her index reads CI +14P +9F +521M CI$ +38 +45 CTPI +414. Her record holding milk production was as a 5-year-old with 35,390m 3.4% 1059f. Her lifetime record is 201,670m 3.1% 6284f. The grand dam is Cain-View Beth a GP-82 with a top record of 22,770m 4.2% 947f.

The average on the sale of 50 animals was $990. Kent Farrell did the auctioneering with Bob Knutsen reading the pedigrees. Held at the Hunters Sale Barn, it is sponsored each year by Cecil, Kent, Hartford, Queen Anne, Choptank and Delaware Holstein Associations.

Tidewater DHIA Honors Harmony Farm

SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

EASTON, MD — President Ken Holland presided over the annual dinner meeting in which the four counties, Caroline, Dorchester, Marva and Talbot, have joined to form the Tidewater D.H.I.A. Awards were given out for the top herd for milk in each county.

Harmony Farm was the leader from Caroline for milk, fat and protein. Their herd record stands at 21,676m 3.93% 851f 713p. They also had the lowest somatic cell count on which 89 percent of their 131 cows had an average cell count of 106,000. Ten herds make up this county.

In Dorchester County W. Blan Harcum had the top record on 169 cows with 15,993m 3.96% 633f 532p. Glad-Mar Farm, Inc. stood at the top of Marva with 205 cows and a record of 16,465m 3.76% 619f 541p. Both of these herds come from counties with two herds each.

Talbot county, with five herds, had Wm. and Bonnie Brinsfield as their top producer. On a herd of 61 cows their record was 19,250m 3.86% 742f 630p.

Harmony Farm was the leader for having the most cows with lifetime records over 150,000 with six. Daniel Hollingsworth III and W. Blan Harcum each had two cows and Richard Edwards and David Wells each had one cow in their herd with such lifetime records.

Bountiful Farm showed the greatest increase in milk and fat production over the previous year. It was an increase of 3,265 pounds of milk and 113 pounds of fat. They also had the highest increase in protein over last year with 120 pounds.

The following is a list of the top herd for milk and fat production for each age group:

Livestock Show Planned

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — The Penn State Chapter of the Block and Bridle Club will be holding the 72nd Little International on April 15 at the Ag Arena, State College. The show will start at 8:00 a.m. and run approximately to 2:00 p.m.

The Little International is a livestock show open to all university students. Students may show either a heifer, hog, sheep, or horse. Students are given a certain amount of time to train and groom their animal in preparation for the show.

The students are judged on two things at the show. The animal is judged on how well it is groomed, while the student is judged on how well he shows the animal.

The 64th Dairy Exposition

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — The 64th Dairy Exposition will be held Saturday, April 22, 1989 at 8:30 p.m. at the Penn State Ag Arena, University Park, PA.

The Exposition is a fitting and showing competition open to all Penn State students. Those who will be participating in this year's Expo. drew their animals by lottery in the middle of March. They have been training them to lead and grooming them since that time.

Professional and amateur champions will be chosen in each breed category. Between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. the overall champion and reserve champion will be chosen. Approximately 50 students will compete.

The 1989 Dairy Expo will be dedicated to Dale Olver, a 1979 Penn State graduate in dairy production. He is employed as a sire analyst/progeny evaluation specialist by Atlantic Breeders Cooperative. He was chosen by the club for this honor because of his continuing support of Dairy Science club activities.

William Lesher, a 1987 graduate of Penn State in agricultural science was chosen as the 1989 Young Dairyman. He is a dairy farmer in Bernville, Pennsylvania and has also supported the Dairy Science Club.

Dairy Expo show managers are as follows: Walt Moore, a senior in agricultural science with a minor in dairy science is the overall Expo chairman. He is the son of Bill and Sally Moore of Chatham, Pennsylvania. Ernie Buhl is the assistant overall Expo chairman. Ernie is a junior majoring in dairy production, and the son of Robert and Carol Buhl of Erie, Pennsylvania. Donald Welk, Jr., a senior in dairy production is the Expo show manager. He is the son of Donald and Joyce Welk of Strasburg, Pennsylvania. Ben Dum, a sophomore in dairy and animal science is the assistant show manager. Ben is the son of Ben and Donna Dum of Eliotsburg, Pennsylvania.

Special events will be held at noon on the day of the Expo. They include milking, ice cream eating, and calf dressing contests. Teams of students, faculty, and administrators will participate.

The Dairy Expo Awards Banquet will be held Saturday evening at 6:30 p.m. at the Hub Ballroom in University Park, PA. At this banquet, the Expo winners, distinguished alumni, and outstanding students will be honored.

Tobacco Referendum Results Announced

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County ASC Committee on April 4th tabulated the ballots cast in the recent tobacco referendum conducted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Of the 285 eligible voters of the Pennsylvania Type 41 tobacco, 7 voted in favor of marketing quotas and 166 voted "no". Eligible voters of the Maryland Type 32 tobacco was determined to be 260 producers, 6 who voted "yes" in the referendum and those who were opposed added up to 195.

A two-thirds majority vote in favor of marketing quotas is needed in order for producers to be eligible for price support benefits.

Since marketing quotas on the Pennsylvania type was voted down, the tobacco allotments are ineffective, quotas will not apply, and benefits will not be available. The results of the Maryland tobacco refrendum will not be known until the total ballots are counted, including those cast in the state of Maryland.

The ASCS Office encourages each tobacco grower to report the planted acres of tobacco every year by July 15 in order to keep the records current. There is no charge to report. A free photocopy will be made available to everyone who visits the office to correct crop acreages.

LaTourette Wins Pennsylvania Ag Safety Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Victor W. LaTourette, a machinery salesman and former dairy farmer from Wayne County, received an award from the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council for his contributions to farm safety programs. This award was announced at the council's twelfth annual meeting in Lancaster on March 15, 1989.

Victor LaTourette has served as a 4-H Tractor Safety and Certification leader for many years in Wayne County. He has been very helpful in teaching and demonstrating the need and importance of working safely on and around farm equipment to young adults. He has also presented safety video tapes, which stress the importance of farm and machinery safety, from major tractor companies at these meetings. In addition, Victor has been very active in recent training for Wayne County area fire and ambulance rescue squads. He understands the need for teaching farm safety and is willing to volunteer his time and expertise in educating young people and those non-farm individuals serving on ambulance and rescue squads.

Victor is a "top drawer" person when it comes to farm safety and helping others within the safety area.

PA Dairymen's Assn. Offers Membership

NEW CUMBERLAND (Cumberland) — For over a century, the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association and its predecessor organizations have developed and supported programs to promote and further the general welfare of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association has, since its beginnings, worked closely in cooperation with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, encouraging production testing for dairy herd improvement. Early efforts of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association led the successful drive to eliminate Tuberculosis and Brucellosis from the state's dairy herds. Numerous other successful dairy programs with roots in the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association include the state's Purebred Dairy Cattle Association (PDCA), the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show and the All-American Dairy Show, Penn State Milk Quality Control Program and Mastitis Research at Penn State and the University of Pennsylvania.

Financial support and awards programs of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association benefit the state's Dairy Princess Program, 4-H and FFA youth, education and research at Penn State University, and recognize exceptional service to the industry by individuals.

The loyal support of many members has enabled the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association to continue programs which advance the welfare of the Pennsylvania dairy industry. All individuals who are interested in the enhancement of dairying in Pennsylvania, whether dairy producers, representatives of allied industry, or educators, are invited to join.

Commercial Process For Low-Cholesterol Milk Developed At Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y.— Cornell University food scientists have improved a process to remove cholesterol from milk to the point where they say it is commercially viable. They have developed a continuous process that can remove 90 percent of the cholesterol in milk by forcing carbon dioxide through the fat in milk at pressures more than 1,300 times that found in the average automobile tire.

The highly efficient technique -- similar to the one used to decaffeinate coffee -- opens the way for producing low-cholesterol milk and other dairy products such as butter, ice cream, cheese and yogurt. The Cornell researchers plan discussions with dairy industry representatives to further develop the technique.

The process, known as "supercritical fluid extraction," could have a worldwide impact on thw dairy industry, according to food scientist Syed S.H. Rizvi, who so far has applied it only on a laboratory scale. He is a professor of food engineering in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

Rizvi said that the process could be used to remove most of the cholesterol from milk fat, so that the decholesterolized butterfat then could be added back to skim milk to create low-cholesterol milk or used as a major component for making other low-cholesterol milk products. These might include butter, ice cream or cheese.

"What makes our process particularly exciting is that it not only reduces cholesterol by 90 percent, but also recovers up to 85 percent of decholesterolized butterfat," Rizvi said.

"If we had gotten only a few pounds of decholesterolized fat from 100 pounds of butterfat processed, the yield would have been too low to make any economic sense," he pointed out.

The Cornell research group is not the only one developing supercritical extraction for cholesterol removal, Rizvi pointed out. Several companies also are experimenting with the method, but have apparently not yet reported a high-yield, continuous process that matches the Cornell technology. These companies include Supercritical Processing Inc. of Allentown, Pa., and Phasex Corp. of Lawrence, Mass.

Perhaps more importantly, the patent office of Japan recently disclosed that the Food Research Society of Higashimura City near Tokyo has applied for a Japanese patent on a similar technique for cholesterol removal, Rizvi said. The independently developed Japanese method reportedly can reduce the cholesterol level in butterfat by nearly 84 percent, with about 87 percent recovery of the decholesterolized fat. The patent application cites a 1986 paper entitled "Modification of Butter Oil by Extraction with Supercritical Carbon Dioxide" published in the journal Agricultural and Biological Chemistry by scientists from Tohoku University in Sendai, Japan.

Rizvi said the Japanese technique is reported to use slightly different materials and conditions for the extraction process, but also could be economical.

"We see the two independently developed methods as confirmation that the supercritical fluid extraction is viable, and it encourages us to proceed as quickly as possible to develop the process for commercialization," he said. Rizvi added that the Japanese patent application does not interfere with plans to commercialize the Cornell technique.

Rizvi explained that, in his process, cholesterol is removed by injecting carbon dioxide into butterfat under high pressure, up to 4,000 pounds per square inch, at 40 degrees Celsius (104 degrees Fahrenheit). Under such a pressure, carbon dioxide becomes "neither a gas nor a liquid, but a supercritical fluid," as he calls it.

When the high-pressure carbon dioxide is passed through a batch of butterfat, it picks up cholesterol along with some fat (triglycerides). The cholesterol-laden "gas" moves into a second unit, where the pressure and temperature, among other conditions, are manipulated in such a way that the carbon dioxide releases the cholesterol.

"This second stage of the operation is critical because this is where cholesterol is removed selectively," Rizvi said.

The supercritical carbon dioxide, still carrying some cholesterol-reduced fat, flows into a third vessel held at atmospheric pressure, where it becomes gaseous and dissipates, leaving behind fat (triglycerides).

With most of its cholesterol now gone, the decholesterolized components of butterfat in the first and third vessels are collected to make low-fat milk, butter, cheese and other milk products with little cholesterol.

The process also separates butterfat's major constituents -- triglycerides -- into two parts: one that stays solid at room temperature and the other that is liquid. These fats can be collected separately after the process.

"By using more low-melting triglycerides than high-melting ones, it may be possible to produce a more spreadable butter," said Rizvi, who plans to use the technique to reduce cholesterol from other animal fats such as beef tallow and lard. He is developing such low-cholesterol and more spreadable butter and other dairy products.

Rizvi said that reducing the cholesterol in butterfat should not affect the flavor, taste and nutritive value of milk and dairy products.

He also said that the continuous nature of his supercritical extraction process means that it is possible to process butterfat in commercial quantities cost-effectively. The prototype laboratory-scale apparatus can handle only small amounts of butterfat for experimental purposes, but the Cornell researchers are now planning to scale up the system to process the materials in large quantities.

Whole milk contains about 3.3 percent butterfat, which consists of saturated and unsaturated fats in the form of triglycerides, plus phospholipids and cholesterol. They account for about 130 grams per gallon. In turn, about 0.4 percent of the butterfat in milk, or about 532 milligrams per gallon, is cholesterol. This white, odorless fatty substance long has been implicated as causing plaque in arteries, which can produce heart disease.

By adding decholesterolized butterfat to skim milk, the Cornell researchers already have made decholesterolized 2 percent milk. Two percent milk contains only 2 percent butterfat compared with 3.3 percent in whole milk. Also popular is 1 percent milk.

David K. Bandler, a professor of food science and an expert on milk quality, helped Rizvi evaluate the low-cholesterol 2 percent milk. According to Bandler, Rizvi's technique can be used to tailor-make a variety of low-cholesterol dairy products.

He predicted that sales of milk and other dairy products with low cholesterol levels "could increase greatly in competition with other types of beverages."

In 1987, the average American drank 20.7 gallons of milk as a beverage, 3.3 gallons less than in 1965. This compares with the per-capita consumption of soft drinks at 43.4 gallons, coffee at 25.3 gallons and beer at 23.9 gallons.

Rizvi said that, although the supercritical fluid extraction process is not new, researchers only recently have recognized the importance of this technology. The technique is now used to decaffeinate coffee and to obtain hops extracts that give beer its characteristic bitter flavor; researchers have long hoped to discover other food-processing applications.

The method now used to decaffeinate coffee beans is basically the same as the cholesterol-removal process devised at Cornell. Rizvi's achievement was to optimize the precise operating conditions and develop other critical steps required for the efficient removal of cholesterol from butterfat with high recovery of the usable product.

He developed the cholesterol-removal system with a team of other Cornell researchers, including postdoctoral fellows Hakim Benkrid and Roy Chao and graduate students Betsy Tse and Abigail Honer. His research has been supported in part by the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board.

Farmers Paired According To Manure Status

LANCASTER — The Lancaster Conservation District is compiling a list of people in Lancaster County who have manure to sell or give away and those who would like manure for their land. Based on data recently compiled by the District, nearly all townships within the county have some farms with excess manure. However, most farms could use more manure on their cropland. A pairing of those farms with excess with those who need more will reduce pollution of streams and groundwater and will also reduce the need for chemical fertilizer inputs. It is the goal of the District to help farmers get together to solve problems locally and voluntarily.

If you have extra manure or could use some more on your farm, please call the Lancaster Conservation District at 717/299-5361. Information needed is farm location, type of manure, quantity of manure, and time of the year available. When two people in the area can be matched, the District will contact both parties. Details such as conditions of sale can then be worked out between the two parties.

Give Your Pigs A Headstart To Market.

There's an old saying that goes, "well begun is half done." Those are words to remember if you want to get the most for your pigs come market time. Something else to remember is the Master Mix line of starter feeds: Crate-Mate, Premawean and Premapig.

Crate-Mate is the sow replacer that gets even your smallest runts and orphans off to a healthy, profitable start. And Premawean/Premapig is the two phase program that gets your pigs in and out of the nursery with the fastest, leanest gains in the business.

Talk to your Master Mix dealer today. Because if you want to give your pigs a healthy headstart to market, you'll want to give them the Master Mix line of starter feeds.

Combining An Urban Career With A Rural Lifestyle

BY MARIANNE WALKER
Centre Co. Correspondent

CENTRE HALL (Centre) — Although his children and his sheep certainly are just two of the many facets of Roger Dudick's fast-paced life, a conversation with this progressive shepherd quickly proves that his kids and his Corriedales are the most rewarding. When I visited Roger on a recent Sunday afternoon, he and son, Eugene, were vaccinating and weighing lambs while wife and registered nurse, Margaret, was in the kitchen baking cookies and looking after five-month-old, Blair, Allison, Elliot, and Rachel, ages three through seven, romped in the backyard with their recently-"shorn" Standard Poodle named DISC, a.k.a. Dog in Sheep's Clothing. Because Roger is a self-employed consultant who travels throughout the country during the week, the sheep receive his attention primarily on the weekends; Eugene shepherds on weekdays. So, while father and son worked, I picked Roger's brain on his theories and goals for his prize-winning sheep.

As spring breaks, the Dudick's thoughts turn toward the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, which is held the first weekend in May in West Friendship, Md. This wool sheep extravaganza, in its 16th year, is the largest festival of its kind in the East. It draws wool sheep competitors from all over the nation, as the Dudicks are well aware. After all, at the 1988 festival, they captured the premier natural colored exhibitor award after a nine-year absence from the show. Chances are that colored sheep competitors will be watching pensively as the Dudicks campaign their Corriedales at Maryland again this May.

What events brought about the Dudicks' successful flock? Roger attests that he is "a country boy by choice, not birth, and that's a lot better." In 1969, toward the end of his "hippy days," he rented a small farm in Maryland. Four years later Roger bought his first place and, for a short period of time, raised registered Angus cattle and a few hogs. After a stint as a college teacher, Roger bought a 40-acre farm, married Margaret, began a family, and became a shepherd. The Dudick family has pushed full-steam-ahead since then. Those first few sheep that Roger purchased were "whatever cheap animals I could get away with," he admits. The two elder Dudick boys were in 4-H, and Roger says that many shepherds were quick to tell him," you can't do anything if you don't have Suffolks or Hampshires." Dudick found such statements difficult to accept: "I got tired of hearing that. I'm a contrary so-and-so, I wanted to do something different."

It was at this point that Roger purchased his first colored sheep from Randy Irwin. Irwin manages a farm for John Hopkins University and is now a well-known breeder of Border Leisters and North Country Cheviots. In 1981, Roger showed his animals at the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, and in his words, "got my buns kicked from one end of the ring to the other, and deservedly so."

The Dudicks later moved to York County, and Roger began looking at his flock with a very critical eye, concentrating his efforts on rebuilding. Using crossbred rams to this point, Dudick found no consistency in his lamb crop -- no uniformity of fleece or of conformation, in which he was particularly interested. Roger explained that conformation makes up 40 percent of the total score in wool sheep classes, and he added: "I didn't know if the handspinning fad would last." Because of his doubts plus the fact that "everyone said that black sheep had terrible carcasses," he set out to produce colored sheep with the goals of fleece quality and carcass composition being equally crucial. In the mid-80's, Randy Irwin was able to locate two black purebred Corriedale rams, which became the basis of the current 25-ewe Dudick flock.

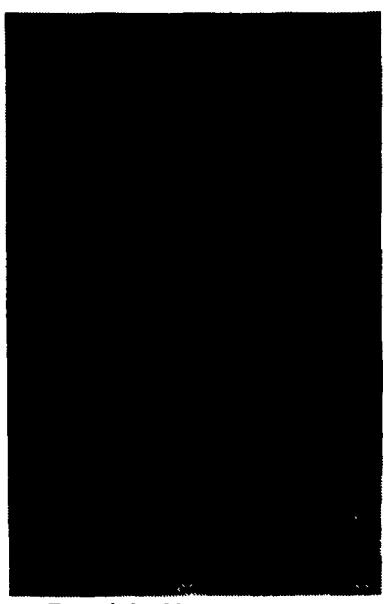
Three years ago, Roger and family moved to a 10½ -acre farm in Centre Hall. Here, in Centre County, Dudick continues to develop his flock by emphasizing wool quality and body scale. He has concentrated on medium-fine fleeces, culling stock with Karakul blood. Karakul is a predominnately black breed with coarse-textured wool. He believes that his animals still have room for improvement in the area of rate of growth. Roger also would like to develop finer wool that reaches a longer staple length in a relatively short period of time. A staple length is a year's growth of wool. "When I started with these sheep, I realized that it would be a 20-year project," says Dudick.

The Dudicks market their fleeces locally to handspinners and also ship wool to Europe. Most of their lambs are marketed as breeding stock to colored sheep breeders. Roger is reluctant, however, to take complete credit for his successes in the sheep industry. "I would say that 80 percent of our success is due to David Harpster," he stated. Harpster, a purebred breeder from Boalsburg, began working on a part-time basis for the Dudicks a little over a year ago. David very successfully has campaigned the Dudick flock at many county fairs in Pennsylvania. Harpster also aids in making selection and breeding decisions and is a master in the show ring, according to Roger. "When it comes to decision making, I defer to David's judgment," said Dudick.

Dudick spoke frankly about his mix of an urban career and a rural lifestyle. When asked why he chose shepherding, he answered: "It's a conscious choice. I despise urban living, personally, and as an environment for me and my family. I like sheep more than any other animal I've worked with." Roger hopes to spend his golden years with his flock, and he refers to his sheep as his "I.R.A."

It may have been nine years in the making, but it seems that, with a little help from his friends, Roger Dudick has produced a top show string of colored sheep. More importantly, however, he and Margaret have produced a beautiful family that's obviously benefitting from the lifestyle their parents have chosen. As for his six children, Roger smiles, "We found having kids to be addictive." He joked, "When my kids grow up, they'll probably not want to even look at a sheep!" As for his flock, "I'd love to have a big operation with 1,000 or so ewes someday," he mused. But, for this spring, anyway, Roger and Margaret are making plans to pack up the family (including baby, Blair) and head to Maryland in May for a very exciting weekend.

A group of the Dudicks' Corriedale rams gather as the sun sets on their Centre Hall farm.



David Harpster, a purebred sheep breeder and part-time employee of the Dudicks, has been instrumental in creating their top show string.

RESEARCH STUDY 1: Extensive testings conducted at both interior and exterior farm research sites have conclusively proven beyond a scientific shred of doubt that tin poses a health hazard to the nation's supply of fingers.

DATA A: Study site - Agriculture power unit, i.e. farm tractor. Study technique - Running finger parallel to sharp-edge piece of tin installed as protective device, while disembarking from power unit operator seat. Result - paint, bloodletting, emergency mopping of bloodspots on floors of adjacent interior research site. Scientific conclusion - Tin slices fingers.

DATA B: Study site - Food preparation laboratory, i.e. farm kitchen. Study technique - Running finger parallel to opened lid of tin can containing sweet potatoes, while trying to complete inadequate opening of lid due to dull can opener knife. Result - pain, bloodletting, slight delay in completing meal preparations. Scientific conclusion - tin slices fingers.

RECOMMENDATIONS on completion of Study 1: Commercial use of tin should be immediately banned due to potential danger to nation's blood supply and proven hazard to fingers. Failure to replace dull knives on electrical can opener should be subject to prosecution to the fullest extent of the law.

RESEARCH STUDY 2: Preliminary testing conducted at interior farm research site indicates direct relationship between abberrant bovine behavior and human hair loss.

DATA A: Study site - lactation laboratory, i.e. dairy barn. Study technique - Selected bovine (scientific name, Bonnie) with uncontrollable inclinations toward affectionate nibbling on hair of human caretakers engaged in milk removal at regular intervals. Result - Altered texture and cleanliness of hair as well as removal of undetermined amounts. No methods found effective in limiting hair removal to gray sections. Scientific conclusion - Erratic bovine behavior causes hair losses in as yet undetermined, but potentially threatening, amounts.

RECOMMENDATIONS on preliminary completion of Study 2: A ban on hair-nibbling bovines to curtail potential of an industry-wide outbreak of bald dairy farm wives.

While the full impact of these two highly scientific research studies have yet to be determined, pending further and more complete assemblage and assessment of a complete complement of related data, findings would suggest that all use of tin and maintenance of herds of dairy cows be possibly discontinued pending further investigation by all appropriate and a few totally unrelated and irrelevant governmental agencies.

Makes about as much sense as most "scare" studies though, doesn't it? Based on the above actual data, however, both tin and hair-nibbling cows are definite hazards to my health.

E'cuse me, while I go have an apple and try to hide this balding spot on my sore head.

RESPONDING TO PRODUCT SAFETY RECALLS

Since 1973, with the start-up of the Consumer Safety Commission (CPSC), an estimated 325 million potentially hazardous products have been recalled for repair or replacement. Most of these were voluntary recalls done jointly by CPSC and product manufacturers. It is their responsibility to alert consumers to a potential problem. However, consumers also have a responsibility - to respond if they have a product involved in a safety recall.

For example, CPSC and Whirlpool Corporations' efforts since the first announcement in August 1988 have surfaced only 80% of five models of dishwashers that require a control modification to prevent fires. Now, you would think that a safety alert that warned about the danger of a dishwasher fire would get immediate response from every owner. Unfortunately, to many of us today tend to say, "I'll check it when I'm not so busy," or "my dishwasher is working fine so it will not catch fire."

Those are not valid excuses for taking risks with a family's safety. Are you a responsible consumer? Here's a quiz to test it: Do you (or a friend, neighbor, or relative) own an undercounter dishwasher? Is it a Whirlpool brand? If so, check it immediately. Open the door. Locate the serial plate located along the right front edge of the tub and copy it down. Now, compare it to these numbers: DU400XS-0; DU600XS-0; DU800XS-0; DU9000XR-0 and DU900XR-1.

Did you find one of these numbers on the plate of your dishwasher? Has it had a service call to replace a switch? If it has not, stop using the dishwasher and call 1/800/541-5746 toll free to arrange for free service needed to modify the unit to prevent a fire. A pushbutton selector switch on these models can, under some conditions, catch fire. The modification involves replacing the selector switch for approximately 75,000 dishwashers of the five models listed.

Although Whirlpool field sales and service personnel are continuing with attempts to contact all owners of the affected units, consumers who have not yet been notified should call the toll-free number for immediate service. In the mean time, do not use the dishwasher. In fact, to be on the safe side, the company recommends leaving the door ajar, in the unlatched position.

News For Junk Food Junkies

Are you a junk food junkie consumed by guilt? Do you wonder if that food is really junk or does it have some redeeming qualities? Not all fast foods are junk. In fact, they are only junk if they are eaten exclusively or to excess so that your daily nutrient and calorie consumption are thrown off balance.

Generally, one fast food meal a week, regardless of its content, will have little impact on the average position's nutritional intake. Yet, if you eat fast foods frequently, you may not have a well-balanced diet.

Most fast food meals -- for example, a burger, fries, and coke -- are adequate in proteins, fats and carbohydrates -- but they are low in vitamins and minerals. However, if you include a serving from the salad bar, a milkshake, a glass of orange juice, and cheese on your burger you will have a reasonably well-balanced meal.

You will also have a meal that may add up to more than half of all the calories you need that day. Fast foods are generally calorie-dense, not nutrient-dense; that is, they are disproportionately high in calories in comparison to the nutrients they supply.

Fast foods are simply foods, not junk. But anytime you eat more food than you need, especially more calorie-dense food, that extra can be called junk. If you like fast foods, enjoy an occasional meal. Just remember to balance your recommended daily allowance of essential nutrients during your other meals to over-come any fast food nutrient deficiencies.

Agri-Women Face Issues

KANASAS CITY, MO. — American agriculturists need to develop a "winning strategy" and view change as an opportunity instead of a problem. Speaking before the American Agri-Women in Kansas City March 11-12, Dixon Hubbard, USDA Extension Service Coordinator for Competitiveness and Profitability, said that farmers and ranchers will have to take more risk, actively work together, develop coalitions, overcome constraints and work toward making some positive things happen.

Hubbard was one of the featured speakers who addressed the American Agri-Women during their Mid-Year meeting. AAW president Mitzi Perdue, Salisbury, Maryland said "numerous issues were discussed that have been raised before the public eye in recent days such as hormone-free beef and chemically-treated fruits and vegetables. AAW is a coalition of agricultural organizations and individuals that work toward educating themselves to influence legislation and toward educating other consumers about how food, fiber and forestry products are produced and distributed."

Hubbard said farmers should spread their risk...stop putting all their eggs in one basket and develop a 'Hershey's Chocolate' mentality. "For example," Hubbard explained, "dairy farmers in Pennsylvania wanted to develop more uses for their products so they went out and got nuts and chocolate and mixed them up with their milk." Hubbard told the American Agri-Women that farmers need to do more thinking about how they can develop strategies that are appropriate to political, economic and physical environment profit-taking. He said that associations like American Agri-Women can be a major player in such an effort and become actively involved in legislation that might help them in this area. Hubbard cited the uncertainties of today that make farming very difficult. "Farmers do not know from day to day what the price of major inputs such as energy and money will be, whether protection and default will close borders or whether global financing will open things up further, or who their next competitor will be. Then, on the consumer side," Hubbard continued, "tastes are changing and there is a vastly increasing awareness of quality...especially as it relates to health and safety of food products."

AAW members also heard from Debbie Moody, Miller Brewing Company legislative assistant for government affairs, who conducted a workshop on how to meet with congressional delegates, access the political climate and cultivate grassroot opportunities to network as a coalition of diverse agricultural interests. During the two-day meeting AAW commodity and affiliate chairmen reported and leadership training and grantwriting workshops were held. American Agri-Women will convene again November 10-14, 1989 in Grand Forks, North Dakota for their 17th annual national convention.

Jackie McCleary and Gail McPherson represented York County and Penn's Agri-Women at this Mid-Year Meeting of AAW.

Spaghetti, Macaroni, Noodles And Other Pastas

Pasta is a general term covering all the Italian thin-dough products, such as macaroni, spaghetti and noodles.

Baked or boiled, served with all sorts of sauces or with plain butter, pasta is an integral part of many diets. It cookes quickly and easily, its bland flavor blends well with tomato and cheese. But don't stick to old favorites. Try some with seafood and vegetables.

1½ pounds ground beef
1 onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon dried parsley
1 (48-ounce) jar spaghetti sauce
½ pound grated cheese
½ cup bread crumbs

Cook shells in boiling water according to directions on box. Fry ground beef and onion, drain off excess grease. Add bread crumbs and parsley to beef. Set aside. Cover bottom of cake pan with half of spagetti sauce. When shells are cooled, fill with meat mixture and place in pan. Cover with remaining sauce. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Freezes well.

Lettuce

Drain salmon, reserving 2 tablespoons of the liquid; flake with a fork. Set salmon aside.

Combine reserved salmon liquid, olive oil, vinegar, mustard, sugar, salt, and pepper in a small bowl; blend well. Pour over pasta. Cover and refrigerate at least 1 hour. Add salmon, apple, walnuts, green onions, and parsley. Stir well. Serve in lettuce-lined bowl. Serves 4.

The old adage, "Behind every successful man is a good woman," applies to Beth and Floyd Kurtz of Fleetwood. Floyd, recently named outstanding farmer by the Kutztown Jaycees, credits success to his running the barn and his wife the house.

Beth, who did not grow up on the farm, is an adament supporter of farm life.

Her husband said, "She wouldn't let me get out of farming even if I wanted to."

Fortunately the whole family loves farming. Beth, who believes it's important to encourage her husband, usually has homemade cookies for him to snack. Here is one of their favorites. To learn more about the Kurtz family, look for their story, "Proud To Be A Farmer," in B section.

Smith, Myerstown, who wrote that her parents tended market and lived on a small farm with six or seven cows and chickens. She wrote, "Mom made homemade butter, cup cheese and cottage cheese. Everytime Mom baked, she made her cheese pie, which we ate warm from the oven. It was delicious with molasses."

Mom's Cheese Pie

1 pint cottage cheese
2 eggs
2 tablespoons butter, melted
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups water
½ cup granulated sugar

Mix together all ingredients. Pour into an unbaked pie shell. Bake 375 degrees until firm.

ANSWER — A Myerstown reader requested a recipe for mustard eggs. Thanks Ada Dunbar, Bangor, and A. Cressman, Slatington, for responding.

Mustard Eggs

8 to 10 eggs, hard-boiled and shelled
3 tablespoons yellow mustard
⅔ cup sugar
½ cup vinegar
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 cup water

Put all ingredients except eggs into a saucepan. Stir and heat. Add eggs to liquid and place in a jar in refrigerator. Let stand 24 hours or more.

ANSWER — Miah Grebbine of Bridgeton, N.J., requested a recipe for corned beef using brine and fresh beef. Thanks Marie Martin, Ephrata, for your reply.

Corned Beef

4 to 5 pound brisket
1½ cups Coarse Kosher salt
1 egg, in shell, (to test brine)
½ cup brown sugar, packed
Water to cover brisket

Find a ceramic, glass or enameled vessel large enough to hold both the beef and brine to cover by 2 or more inches.

To determine the amount of brine needed, enclose beef in a plastic bag. Put it into a container and run cold water into the container to cover meat by 2 inches. Remove meat.

Stir coarse salt into the water, letting each addition dissolve before adding more until the egg with float. Remove egg once it has served its purpose. Stir in the brown sugar.

Pour the brine into a pot and simmer for 15 minutes, let it cool completely and pour into crock or container. Lower the meat (minus the bag) into the brine and weight down with a heavy plate. If necessary add more weight to hold the meat under the brine.

Set the container in the refrigerator and let the meat cure for at least 2 weeks, turning it every day or two. Don't plan to cure it for more than a month.

Spring Safety

It's spring, and with it comes hope and renewed life. Unfortunately, in our community, many are suffering from the loss of a 14-year-old killed in an bicycle auto collision.

I've written about bicycle safety in other years, but feel the need to repeat this important message. If you are a parent of a child wwho rides a bicylcle, please read on and please take action! There really are a lot of bicycles on the go.

Consider these facts:

•1. More than 100 million bicycles are in use on American streets and highways.

•2. About 7 out of 10 youngsters, ages 5 to 16 ride a bicycle.

•3. The predominant victims of bicycle accidents are children betweeen ages 5 and 14

•4. Four times each hour of each day during a year a bicycle driver is injured.

•5. One bicycle driver is killed every 11 hours in a traffic crash.

•6. Two out of every three bicycle accidents occur to drivers who have failed to follow the rules of the road!

The' arrival of spring is a long awaited occasion for all kids, and especially those who got new bicycles for Christmas. The excitement builds as they look forward to jumping on the ol' bike and heading down the street toward freedom. Perhaps that crazy and carefree attitude contributes to the number of accidents that occur. And despite the recent bicycle accident and death in our community, I recently was driving home at night only to come upon a bicyclist with no lights, reflective clothing or reflectors other than those on the wheels. I arrived home minutes later with my heart rate slightly elevated and determined to get the message out to parents about increased need for bicycle safety.

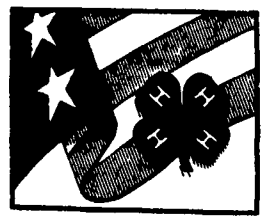
These safety thoughts come to my mind as I make plans to enjoy the spring weather on my own bicycle. It certainly is a great way to exercise and soak up the warmer temperatures outside. I spent many days of my youth perched upon a bicycle and I loved it. However, out on the farm there was a lot of wide open space to ride without worry about traffic. Still the big thrill was to be allowed to "ride on the road". This was approved after a good track record as a driver had been established.

Being a good rider, however, is not enough, particularly when faced with the statistics that I reported earlier. Whether in the country, suburb, or city it is important to teach kids the basics of being a bicycle driver as well as being a rider.

A bicycle drive is required to follow all Pennsylvania motor vehicle laws just as a car is. Being a rider on the other hand implies that the bicycle is a toy to be played with however the child wishes.

One of the best ways I know of to teach young kids to learn about bicycle safety, while having fun with kids their own age, is through the 4-H Bicycle project. Activities that can be included are learning the rules of the road, bicycle maintenance, games to play with bicycles, and group activities like trail rides and bicycle parades.

If you or someone you know is interested in learning more about being a safe bicycle driver, contact your county extension office. As you give the bicycles a yearly inspection in preparation for the summer months ahead, review bicycle safety tips and laws of the road. Whether you are riding a bicycle or driving a car, remember that spring is a time of renewed life . . . let's work to keep it that way!



4-H HAPPENINGS

Lancaster County Swine

The organizational meeting of the Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 13, at the Farm & Home Center.

The county-wide club has consolidated all existing community 4-H swine projects into a program that has improved educational efforts, member recognition, and community support.

The evening's program will include an official sign-up, distribution of project books, explanation of goals, election of officers, and introduction of leaders. Presentations by Greg Harnish and John Hess, Manheim FFA members will be a highlight of the meeting.

The club will hold five meetings each year, as well as a roundup and sale in August and a recognition banquet in October. Members of the club will have the opportunity to participate in livestock and meats judging programs, pork bowl and public speaking competitions, and the Pennsylvania Farm Show junior swine events.

Lancaster County youth between the ages of eight and 19 years are invited to attend the organizational meeting. Feel free to bring your parents and friends, too. For additional information, contact Chet Hughes, Penn State Extension livestock agent, at 394-6851.

Dear Readers,

Hi! My name is Emma King. There are nine children in our family: Sarah, 15; Christian, 13; John, 12; Emma, 10; Rachel, 8; David, 6; Amos, 5; Leroy, 1; and Annie, 5 months old. My parents are Levi and Fannie King.

My sisters and I have about ten guinea pigs. My brothers have white pigeons. We have 36 cows. I help to milk in the morning and my sister Rachel helps in the evening. My brithdate is March 30, 1978. We go to West Nickel Mines School. I am in the fifth grade. I like school. My teacher's name is Ruth Ann Stoltzfus. We live in Nickel Mines.

Hi!

I am Dorothy Martin Burkholder. I am in fourth grade. I am 10 years old and my birthday is on January 12, 1979. I have three brothers and two sisters. Dorothy, 10; Marilyn, 8; Marlo, 6; Kendall, 5; Michael, 2 and Delmar will be one-year-old on March 26. Today (March 18) is my dad's birthday. Mom made a Boston creme pie and a raspberry dessert for him. I have a pet cat named Flower. She just had some kittens. The first time she had kittens they were gray and black. The time before that I don't know what color they were. Mom is making me a pink summer dress. She is doing her summer sewing because she has to work in the vineyard in April. We have seven acres of grapes.

My teacher's name is Pauline Brubaker. She went to some other states. Now there are some substitutes teaching. Their names are Louise Zimmerman and Martha Hoover. Martha Hoover is my German teacher every Thursday afternoon. We have 31 pupils in school.

In the barn we have 41 cows. I have to clean the trough out, give the heifers hay and grain and make hay down. Sometimes I have to bike to school and sometimes I have to walk. I would rather walk. Last Friday we did art which is my best subject. We had a cross drawn with some nice flowers in front of the cross. I like school.

With love,
Dorothy Burkholder, Himrod, NY

Hello! My name is Phyllis C. Eng. Do you like the name Phyllis? I am eight years old. I am in second grade. I have only one sister and she is three. I love her very much. Her name is Jennifer Eng. She likes to play with me! I like to play with her too. Both of us like to bike in the farm. We love Mom and Dad.

Hi!

My name is Elam Beiler. My parents are Christ and Naomi Beiler. I am four years old. Soon we will get baby chicks. Then we can have chicken B-B-Q in the summer.

My brother Christ and I like to drive our pony. Her name is Mable. Sometimes she goes very slow. She is old.

Bye,
Elam Beiler, Spring Mills

Hello,

My name is Christ Beiler. My parents are Christ and Naomi Beiler. I live in Penns Valley. I am eight years old. My teacher's name is Barbara King.

Yesterday we were flying a kite. We have a lamb. Her name is Nellie. And we have two rabbits. Their names are Thumper and Snow-White. On Thursday, we will have an Easter Egg Hunt at school. I might hide my egg very hard because I have my friend's name.

Bye,
Christ Beiler, Spring Mills

Hi! My name is Sara Young. I live in Centermoreland, Pennsylvania. I live on a small farm. I have a sheep, a goat, a pony, and an Arabian horse. I also have a dog, rabbit and two cats. Oh! I almost forgot. I have two brothers. Their names are Damon who is 6½ and Kenny who is 3. I am 9½.

This spring, my parents and I are planning to get a flock of horned Dorset sheep. I like spring because

We have a pet goat named Shnickelfritz. She is a pygmy goat. When she was only several days old, we had to feed her with a bottle since her mother would have left her starve.

As she grew her sleeping place was on the cows backs, which she didn't seem to mind. The minute she heard the door latch in the morning, she was up on all fours, hopping from one cow's back to another to come meet us. If a cow was standing, she'd run underneath her, the full length of the barn.

Now she if full grown. Last spring she had twin kids and this spring she gave us a surprise. She had four kids. This is very unusual. They averaged 2¼ pounds to 2½ pounds each. However along with the surprise came a big disappointment. All four kids were found dead. So they were named Eenie, Meenie, Mieny and Moe and out went all four. At least we still have good old Shnicklefritz.

Emily Weaver, Age 11

it is my birthday and my dad takes me with him when he goes sheering sheep with his friend Mr. Scott. Sometimes I even have to tie the wool! On the way home we always go to a diner to get a snack. Sometimes my dad lets my brothers go with us.

My mom and dad just let me sign up for sheep 4-H in Wyoming County. My other interests are riding horses, riding my bike and going on family walks in the woods. I also help my church by singing in the Alleluia choir, ringing in the bell choir and acolyting.

I hope that you publish my letter in "Kid's Korner."

Sincerely,
Sara Young, Centermoreland

Ridiculous But True

In the Middle Ages it was widely believed that bathing the whole body more than once a month — and in some areas more than once a year — was very unhealthy and might even be fatal. So, always seeking a risk-free society, people just didn't bathe.

Today people still try for a risk-free world. Two years ago in California the people adopted a law — Proposition 65 — requiring warning labels on anything or any place that might expose people to any detectable amount of any carcinogen or toxin.

Biochemists such as Dr. Bruce Ames of the University of California pointed out that almost everything in nature contains some level of some carcinogen or toxin. It's a matter of dosage. So backers of Proposition 65 exempted nature and applied the law only to man-made chemicals. Dr. Ames pointed out that, compared to natural carcinogens and toxins, man-made ones in the environment are trivial.

No matter. The law is in effect and everyone is trying to figure out how to separate natural levels from man-made levels in the myriad things we eat, drink, breathe, or touch.

The National Center for Policy Analysis, which has been studying Proposition 65, sums it up: There's no such thing as a (risk) free lunch.

New American Revolution

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Take a look in almost any shopping bag -- paper or plastic -- and you'll see signs that the American diet is changing ... for the better. More than ever, concerns about health and nutrition are influencing what foods people buy and how they prepare them.

"There was a time when consumers bought products based mainly on taste, convenience, price and even how much they liked the package," says Dr. Mark A. Kantor, a nutrition specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "But I think it's safe to say that times have changed. The 1980s may well be remembered as the decade that began the great nutrition revolution -- a time when consumers began to make food choices and plan their meals with nutrition in mind."

That's not to say that taste isn't important; it is. But nutrition is catching up. In its 1988 "Trends" survey, the Food Marketing Institute (FMI), a national trade association representing supermarket companies, reported that taste was "very important" to nearly nine out of ten shoppers (88 percent), followed by product safety, which was very important to 83 percent of shoppers. Seven out of ten (72 percent) shoppers said nutrition was very important, ranking it above price, storability and ease of preparation. And when shoppers who thought nutrition was "somewhat important" were taken into account, nutrition tied with taste and safety (at 98 percent) as a factor that influences purchase decisions.

More than two-thirds of the shoppers surveyed by FMI said they frequently select foods to balance their families' diet and serve nutritional snacks, such as fruits and vegetables.

"These findings suggest that for almost all shoppers, nutrition plays a major role in the selection of food items," notes Kantor.

Changes in shopping behavior have been matched by changes in the kitchen. Two-thirds (67 percent) of the shoppers questioned for FMI's "Trends" report, for example, say they cook or prepare foods differently than they did three to five years ago. They use less salt and sugar (40 and 17 percent, respectively), eat more vegetables and fresh foods (20 percent) and less red meat (15 percent). These figures represent an increase of at least eight percentage points in each category since last year.

Based on a national telephone survey of some 1,000 adult shoppers, FMI's survey results are similar to those revealed in polls conducted to evaluate federal public health programs. Called "Health and Diet Surveys," these polls are based on telephone interviews with some 4,000 consumers nationwide.

Their most recent results indicate that 61 percent of Americans have made major diet changes during the past two years, specifically to reduce their risks of cancer and heart disease.

Efforts to reduce fat intake -- especially by cutting down on red meat -- predominate, followed by attempts to cut back on salt, sugar and cholesterol. Consumers interviewed for the federal surveys also reported eating more fish, poultry, fresh produce and bran or whole-grain products.

Kantor isn't surprised.

"Since the early 1970s, per capita consumption of fresh vegetables has increased more than 20 pecent -- from 75 pounds a year to more than 90 pounds today," he says. "Fresh fruit consumption has increased more than 13 percent, with each American now eating more than 210 pounds a year."

If you extend the dietary comparison to 1965, the differences are even more dramatic. We're eating 34 percent more fish, 120 percent more pasta products, 198 percent more low-fat milk and yogurt and a whopping 767 percent more broccoli.

Many of these changes can be attributed to advertising, increased media attention and public information campaigns.

"Consumers are literally being bombarded with messages about nutrition," says Kantor. "Even a casual television viewer like me can't help but notice all the commercials that emphasize nutrition. And have you noticed there seem to be more and more popular magazines dealing with nutrition, health and fitness appearing on the newsstands?"

Paralleling consumers' increased awareness of the diet-health link is a growing interest in food quality and safety. Three-fourths of consumers consider pesticide and herbicide residues to be a "serious hazard," and an additional 20 percent deem them "something of a hazard," according to the 1988 "Trends" survey. Their No. 2 concern is antibiotics and hormones in poultry and livestock, considered a serious hazard by six out of ten shoppers (61 percent) and something of a hazard by three out of ten (28 percent).

"Most experts feel these substances pose relatively little risk to consumers," notes Kantor. "The real problems are disease-causing bacteria that multiply and are spread through improper handling, preparation and storage.

"Nevertheless, survey results send a clear message to the food industry. We must continue our efforts to develop safer pesticides and herbicides while helping consumers to understand the benefits of various agricultural practices and techniques."

And what better time to focus on such issues than National Agriculture Week. Designed to celebrate and focus attention on an industry that affects all of us, the event is sponsored in Maryland by Maryland Agriculture Week, Inc., the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service and the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Cooking for two is easy with your microwave oven.

Take today's recipes as examples. Whether you prefer a light pasta dish or an old-fashioned hamburger goulash, you don't need to make a huge amount and eat it all week. Micro-cooking small amounts of these, and other pasta dishes, is convenient and quick.

New-Style Linguine With Clam Sauce (below) is a light clam sauce over cooked linguine. The sauce needs little cooking. Onion and garlic are cooked covered to soften them; then other ingredients are added and heated. The sauce is ready in 5 minutes or less.

Cooking linguine — or you could substitute spaghetti, thin spaghetti, or even noodles — isn't much faster in the microwave than on the range-top. And I wouldn't recommend it for over 4 servings. (You'd need a huge cooking dish, and the time needed to boil the water and cook pasta would be much longer than conventionally.) But for 2 servings, micro-cooking long, thin kinds of pasta is convenient and easy.

Some microwave cookbooks give directions that start with linguine or spaghetti in cold water, but I've found that doesn't work well. Instead, add pasta to boiling water — it's the best way to prevent a "pasty" taste and stuck-together strands. After pasta is added, cook it uncovered to prevent boil-overs.

Old-Time Hamburger Goulash For Two is a variation of an old favorite. Here ground beef and onion are cooked together until beef is no longer pink. The remaining ingredients are added, including raw noodles, and everything is cooked together. Total cooking time is about 13 minutes. Another plus: there's only 1 cooking dish, and that 1 dish can go right to the table for serving.

There are several secrets for success in a recipe like this, where uncooked noodles are cooked with other ingredients: Use good-quality medium-thick noodles to prevent a starchy taste. Use enough liquid and some fat to keep noodles from clumping together and tasting starchy. Add extra liquid halfway through cooking time if mixture looks dry. It still should be very juicy at that time. Finally, cook noodles until just barely done and let mixture stand, tightly covered, for at least 5 minutes (10 minutes is best). During standing time, noodles will finish cooking and mixture will thicken.

So go ahead and enjoy cooking and eating pasta for 2. These recipes can be doubled to serve 4 as main dishes too. See notes below each recipe.

Old-Time Hamburger Goulash For Two

½ pound lean ground beef
¼ cup chopped onion or 1 tablespoon minced instant onion
1 can (4-½ ounces) sliced stewed tomatoes, undrained
1 tablespoon catsup
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon dried basil
2 cups uncooked cooked noodles
Salt and pepper (optional)

Place ground beef and onion in microwave-safe 1- to 1-1/2-quart casserole. Microwave (High) 2-1/2 to 3 minutes, stirring once to break up meat, or until meat is no longer pink. (If desired, drain off fat and stir in 2 tablespoons vegetable oil.) Stir in half of tomatoes, breaking up with a spoon; all of catsup, water, and basil. Then stir in noodles. Pour remaining tomatoes atop noodles. Cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 8 to 10 minutes, stirring and pushing noodles into liquid after 5 minutes. (If mixture is dry, add another to cup water.) When done, noodles should be barely tender. Let stand, covered, 5 to 10 minutes to finish cooking noodles and to thicken. If desired, season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 2 large servings.

Each serving: 495 calories, 30g protein, 18g fat, 50g carbohydrate, 548mg sodium, 124mg cholesterol.

For 4 to 5 servings: Double ingredients. Use a 2-quart casserole. Microwave ground beef and onion 4 to 6 minutes, stirring to break up meat after 3 minutes. Add remaining ingredients; microwave, covered, 15 to 18 minutes, stirring after 10 minutes. Continue as above.

New-Style Linguine With Clam Sauce For Two

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 can (10 ounces) whole baby clams
¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
1 tablespoon lemon juice
12 ounces linguine or 8 ounces spaghetti
Shredded Parmesan cheese

Place oil, garlic, and onion in microwave-safe 1-quart casserole. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 1-1/2 to 2 minutes or until onion is tender. Stir in undrained clams, parsley, and lemon juice. Cover and let stand while cooking linguine or spaghetti.

Fill microwave-safe 2-quart casserole half full of hot tap water. If desired, add 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 5 to 7 minutes or until water boils. Add linguine. Microwave (High), uncovered, 4 to 7 minutes or until linguine is al dente. Drain.

Microwave clam sauce 2 to 3 minutes or until hot. Spoon sauce over cooked linguine in shallow soup bowls; sprinkle each with Parmesan cheese as desired. Provide soup spoons and forks for eating. Makes 2 large servings.

For 4 to 5 servings: Double ingredients. Cook linguine according to package directions in large amount of boiling water on range-top. While linguine cooks, microwave sauce. Use a 2-quart casserole and double cooking times. Serve as above.

Each serving: 598 calories, 27g protein, 19g fat, 84g carbohydrate, 98mg sodium, 93mg cholesterol.

Questions and answers-

Q. How can I adapt recipes to my 500-watt microwave? Recipes from your column and magazines take longer in my microwave. Is there a way I could figure out how much more time to use?

A. To figure approximate amount of time in a 500-watt oven, multiply cooking time at 600 to 700 watts by 1.3. For example, 1 pound of ground beef microwaves in 4 to 5 minutes in a higher-wattage oven. Multiplying 4 and 5 minutes by 1.3 (and rounding off) shows that cooking may take 5-1/4 to 6-3/4 minutes in your 500-watt microwave.

However, these, like all microwave times, are only guides. In some lower-wattage microwave ovens, cooking time for quick-cooking foods or small amounts is almost as fast as in some higher-wattage ovens. So especially for quick-cooking foods and small amounts, cook the maximum time given in a recipe for a higher-wattage microwave; check for doneness; and add more time accordingly.

Recipes in this column are tested in 600- and 650-watt microwave ovens. With an oven of different wattage output, timings may need slight adjustment.

Fads And Figures

Despite the recent push toward paperless payments, the vast majority of consumers still prefer checks. According to a national survey of 1,000 adults 18 years of age or older, nearly three-quarters (72 percent) chose checks as their preferred method of payment.

Only two percent cited a preference for electronic payments such as debit cards and electronic funds transfer (EFT). Cash was a distant second as the preferred method of payment with 21 percent saying they preferred currency. Credit cards were third at five percent.

Nearly 70 percent of survey respondents like the record keeping and receipt advantages of checks. About 60 percent say they prefer checks because checks are convenient and easy to use. According to the survey, which was sponsored by the Payment Systems Education Association (PSEA), checks are favored among all demographic groups but are most popular among females (75 percent), persons 25 or older (75 percent), married individuals (77 percent), those with an income in the $30,000 to $50,000 range (80 percent), and persons with some education after high school (75 percent).

Experts in the financial field have their own views on why checks check out so well with consumers. "Checks are popular because they meet the needs of consumers better than any other form of payment," explains Peter Braunfisch, Financial Stationers president. "They are convenient and easy to use. "The consumer has spoken," says David Meyers, president of PSEA. "Check writing remains the most popular way to pay."

First Lady Enjoys Challenges

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER — You've heard of the Ag in the Classroom program, a nationwide program to teach students about agricultural. But do you know the woman behind the Lancaster County program that reaches 4,000 students annually?

Behind the scenes Jane Eshelman busily coordinates schools, volunteers and materials as the educational director for the program. Although her name is not widely broadcast in the program's efforts, Jane is no ordinary volunteer.

She is a first lady. No, she doesn't live in the White House. But, she is the first lady to own a car dealership on the Eastern Seaboard. She is the first lady to become a school director in Penn Manor school district, and she is the first coordinator for the county Ag in the classroom program.

Married to Guy Eshelman, a beef and potato farmer, Jane sums up the pressures that face a two-career marriage by asking: "How did we both end up in businesses that are risky, require high overhead and a big investment?"

The answer to that question is simple. Her father owned the dealership, which she naturally became involved in as a bookkeeper, and she fell in love with a farmer.

When Jane, who had always lived in a town, first contemplated marrying a farmer. She was apprehensive. Today she reports, "It wasn't nearly the adjustment that I expected it would be. I didn't have time to get lonely because I continued working six days a week at the dealership."

That required 45 minutes twice daily in commuting time from their Lancaster farm to New Holland.

After five years of marriage, the Eshelmans had their first child, Guy Jr. who is now 27 and a doctor. After his birth Jane worked parttime, one day in the office and the other days she worked on bookkeeping from her home. She continued this pattern after Yvonne, 24; and Susie, 18; were born.

During her children's school years, Jane was asked to serve as treasurer of the school district. This position led into an eight year stint as school board director. Jane sums up her credentials as a mother with students, a property owner and interested in education as the best combination for a school board position. She said, "I wanted to give my children the best education for my tax dollars."

After completing her eight year term, Jane continues her position as a Republican Committeewoman. She said, "I don't consider myself a politician." She does encourage others to vote and explains the ballot to others.

Jane became more and more involved in Peiffer Pontiac administration. When her father died suddenly in 1977, she was forced to make a decision regarding her father's dealership. She and her brother-in-law applied for the agency. Jane recalls, "My brother-in-law knew the mechanical end, and I, the administration end—that makes us a good combination."

But the responsibilities of farming 300 acres and operating a car dealership demand a competitive business sense. Jane said, "Farming always seems to be in a recession." But the '79 recession affected car dealerships much harder than farming. Many dealerships dissolved during that period, but, although a struggle, Peiffer Pontiac pulled through.

Perhaps because she had been affiliated with the school board, the PA Young Farmers Association asked Jane to coordinate the Ag in the Classroom program. Hesitant because she wasn't entirely sure what the new program entailed, Jane committed herself to a two year term because "I wanted to do it right and I knew it would take at least two years."

It's five years later and Jane still heads the program that she believes in one of the most active in the nation.

When she first assumed the responsibility in 1984, she received a two-day training period at the state level.

"Many of the ideas suggested at the state level I knew would not work in our district since I was familiar with the district's requirements," Jane recalled.

She outlined a program that she thought would work in the Penn Manor school district, designated as a pilot program, and she contacted the school board president and was told, "Jane, if you think it's a good program, go ahead and do it."

The program was mandated by the principal. The first year was a learning experience.

Jane said, "We gave teachers an evaluation sheet. Their response was positive but showed that teachers would have liked lesson plans to expand upon."

The following year, Jane had lesson plans developed. She also incorporated a workshop for teachers and a resource directory listing contact persons to assist in answering questions by phone or through presentations. Even teachers learn, Jane reports that one teacher previously thought potatoes grew on trees.

Jane has a committee that helps organize the event that provides instruction in five school districts during the fall and nine during the spring session.

Although she delegates as much as possible, Jane admits the hardest part is finding agriculture persons who will present their story. The committee often cons their own family members into becoming involved in the program and Jane is no exception. Her husband has been very supportive of the program by visiting classrooms to explain vegetable growing.

Jane said the program needs committee volunteers who will contact five farmers to make presentations. It's a responsibility that can mostly be handled from the phone since the school is already set up. They especially need someone in the Elizabethtown area. If interested, contact Jane at 717 872-7507.

Jane teaches volunteers how to present their agricultural story. She said, "After a person participates one time, they enjoy it and continue their involvement."

A farmer's busy lifestyle that is so dependent upon the weather required some modifications to the program. The fall sessions now begin in November and ends in early April since that time is generally less demanding for farmers.

Each school hears five different topics that are tailormade. Usually they include dairy, sheep, beef, poultry, and swine. Options include FFA presentations, flower farming, fruit growers, or horses.

"We use agricultural people from the district to present the topic," Jane said. Each presentor has a handout such as chips from Charles Chips, a box of chocolate milk from the presentor's dairy, a cow eraser or pork roll samples.

Jane and her committee also participate in exhibits at the Farm Expo held at Lancaster Square, Park City Farm-City week and other agriculture education efforts.

Jane and her husband are part of the corporation (governing body) of the Lancaster Bible College and they are active at Calvary Church.

Of her many involvements, Jane said, "You need to like what you do or the work is pure drudgery. There are lots of rewards and sometimes real pain, but I feel we have been blessed of the Lord. We have a good life and our children bring us much joy."

She credits the farm for playing an important role in child development. "The farm demands that farmers be proficent at many things such as masonry, welding, and management; children learn these skills. They learn to stick at a job until finished. Our children, who are all strongly academic, apply that same work ethic to studying."

Jane, herself, has never had college education, which she so strongly advocates. She said, "If I had had the opportunity, I might have earned a CPA or a law degree or maybe become an interior decorator. I can see myself doing all three. But who knows, how my life would have turned out then?"

She added, "All the positions I held I never sought. They just came my way. As a woman, I've never felt discriminated against. I've always managed to do what I wanted. It's a good life."

Jane Eshelman is a woman on the move. She was the first female school board director at Penn Manor High School, the first woman car dealer on the eastern seaboard and the first to head the county Ag in the Classroom program.

Paper work seems to accompany Jane's many volunteer and paid duties.

Honored by the Kutztown Jaycees as the outstanding farmer under forty, Floyd discusses the farm operation with his wife Beth.

Proud To Be A Farmer

BY LOU ANN GOOD

FLEETWOOD (Berks) — Breeder, vet, farm owner, mechanic, business manager are a few titles that describe Floyd Kurtz. The Fleetwood farmer recently was named the outstanding farmer under 40 by the Kutztown Jaycees.

Not only does the local community think Floyd is a great farmer, his wife, Beth, agrees. "He is a good farmer," she says. "I'm proud of him. He is such a hard worker and doesn't give himself enough credit for all he does."

It takes a lot of hard work to keep their 110-acre Fleetwood farm in good shape. Kurtz farms a total of 280 acres with alfafa, soybeans, wheat, oats, and barley.

He sells some and the remainder goes to feed his 61-head registered Holsteins and their replacement stock. He has a rolling herd average of 18,000 pounds.

While some farmers complain of milk prices, Floyd believes "it's decent."

But like most farmers, Floyd maintains that costs must be watched. He credits his ability to making farming profitable to buying equipment at sales and to being able to do most of the vet work on his herd.

"You got to save where you can," he insists. "Farm sales are the only way I buy equipment. I let the rich guys who farm for a hobby buy the new stuff then when it's a few years old, I buy it."

Equipment repairs do not faze him because he enjoys working on machinery as long as it doesn't break down during planting or harvesting.

Saving where you can includes putting the herd on pasture whenever weather permits. This year the herd was out until December and then put out again in March. "It strengthens the cows' legs. I don't have near the problem with weak legs," Floyd said.

Floyd grew up on a Fleetwood farm as one of 10 brothers, who he boasts, each had one sister. (For those who are puzzled, there was only one sister among the 10 brothers).

He never seriously considered doing anything other than farming and he says, "Even if I wanted to, my wife wouldn't let me."

Beth confirms his statement. She considers her life and her children's life enjoyable by having husband and father nearby. She explained, "He gets to do more stuff with the kids like playing ball and riding bike. Their children include Joshua, 9; Abby, 7; and Rebecca, 16 months.

Beth didn't grow up on a farm. The closest she came to farm life was when she was about 10. Then, a neighbor affiliated with New Holland machinery rounded up the neighborhood kids for an advertisement picture touting the goodness of a Model 450 mower. She still has the picture.

According to Floyd, the Kurtz's have the philosopy that "Beth can run the house and I'll run the barn."

Although Beth does not take an active role in farming duties, she considers her supporter role of equal importance.

She said, "I think it's important for a wife to encourage and support her husband. He works so hard. Some days I get upset that he works so long, but I'm thankful he is working hard and enjoys it and not sitting around being lazy."

Beth prefers to accompany Floyd to farm sales, where he finds farm equipment bargains and she searches for collectibles. She's thrilled to find agate ware and other collectibles stuck in a box of junk.

In addition to collecting baskets, dolls; milk bottles, buckets and memorabilia, which add a warm

Fleetwood farmer Floyd Kurtz enjoys repairing equipment as long as it isn't during planting or harvesting season. "You got to save where you can," he says.

The Kurtz's believe that it is Beth's job to take care of the house and Floyd's to take care of the barn. She enjoys decorating their farmhouse with antiques and collectibles. Here she arranges one of her 30 dolls in an antique high chair.

Search For Dairy Princess

JUNIATA — Once again the Pennsylvania dairy industry is seeking candidates to serve as county Dairy Princesses in their local areas throughout the state. All single young women from a dariy background or with an interest in the dairy industry should consider devoting a year of their spare time helping to further the interests of their home county and the dairy industry in their home county.

The Juniata County Dairy Promotion Committee has announced that the 1988 Juniata County Dairy Princess will be selected in June. The date, time and location of the pageant will be announced at a later date.

The 1989 winner will serve the dairy industry of Juniata county for one year commencing on July 1, 1989. She will make appearances at schools and grocery stores and have the opportunity to speak to various farm and non-farm groups throughout the county. In addition, she will represent the dairy industry in parades and at fairs and will represent Juniata county at the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant in Harrisburg in September. She will also attend three days of training at Shippensburg University in July.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess receives a $1,200 cash award with $500 and $400 going to her two alternates. The State title is honorary and there is no interruption of school or employment commitments. The State pageant is coordinated by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services.

Any single woman who has completed her junior year in high school, is not over 24 years of age, never married and whose parents or guardians are or have been engaged in dairy farming within the last three years is eligible to compete for the title. A young lady is also eligible if she, herself, is a full time employee on an operating dairy farm or is the owner of at least two animals of the six major dairy breeds in a bona fida 4-H or FFA project prior to May 1, 1989.

Anyone interested in entering the Juniata County Dairy Princess contest, or would like more information, should contact Vera Supplee, phone 535-5926, by April 1, 1989.

touch to their farmhouse, they use old barn wood for closets and cupboards. Old shutter hinges and door knobs found in the barn are placed on the house doors. They stripped a painted wagon wheel stored in the attic, threaded the chain of an antique ceiling light through it and left the light hang below the wagon wheel for an authetic old-fashioned light.

It's being together that Beth clings to. But Floyd admits she need not worry about him giving up farming. Recently he toured a large steel plant. "I couldn't work there even if they paid me $25 per hour," he said. "What do you see that gives you satisfaction at the end of the day? A hunk of steel?"

He speaks of the contentment that plowing a field and feeding calves brings. "You see things growing. You get rewards for your work."

But being a hardworker doesn't keep Floyd from vacation breaks. He and Beth enjoy annual snowmobiling jaunts to Canada and New York.

While they are gone, Floyd completely trusts his high school hired hand, Dean Berger, to take care of the dairy herd.

"He's a good hired hand; otherwise, I couldn't do all I've got to do. He doesn't stand around looking for something to do."

A nephew of the Kurtz's takes care of the registration bookwork. "I don't have the patience to stand out their and do all the markings," Kurtz said, "so it's good he enjoys it or it probably wouldn't get done."

One thing that deeply disturbs Beth is the attitude that some people portray by saying things such as "He's just a farmer." She said, 'People don't realize everything farmers do and need to know to do heir job or they wouldn't say that. I'm proud of my husband and proud that he's a farmer."

Spray weevils early with Furadan® 4F insecticide and save.

When you spray your alfalfa for weevil prior to first cutting you'll save yields and free up your time later, when you're really busy.

Alfalfa weevils begin feeding prior to first cutting. This can hurt tonnage, quality and stands. Spraying early not only prevents all this, but it means that you won't have to worry about it after first cutting—when you may not have time to spray at all.

Furadan® 4F insecticide from FMC.

The best choice for early alfalfa weevil control Because you have more to do than worry about weevil.

York County Stay Awak-Athon

Recently 51 4-H'ers from York County pulled an "all—nighter" for the benefit of the Central Pennsylvania Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. By playing volleyball, watching videos, dancing, playing Win Lose or Daw, and eating ice cream sundaes and other munchies, they were able to stay awake from 8:00 p.m. until the following 8:00 a.m. and help less-fortunate youth afflicted with cystic fibrosis. Via sponsors who supported the youth at a previousl agreed upon hourly rate, the 4-H'ers raised $1,509.50.

Four 4-H'ers were recognized for collecting the most sponsors and most money. Jennie Rice of Glen Rock had both the highest number of sponsors and most money collected with 45 sponsors and $225. Sandy Eisenhour of Wellsville had the second-highest number of sponsors and was followed by Tammy Ruhland of Seven Valleys and Tina Shaffer of East Berlin. Jaime Albright of York collected the second-highest amount of money followed by Tina Shaffer and Tammy Sebright of Wellsville.

Northern Livestock Club

Dairy Of Distinction Program Called Beneficial; Seeks 1989 Applications Now

(Deadline For Applications is April 15, 1989)

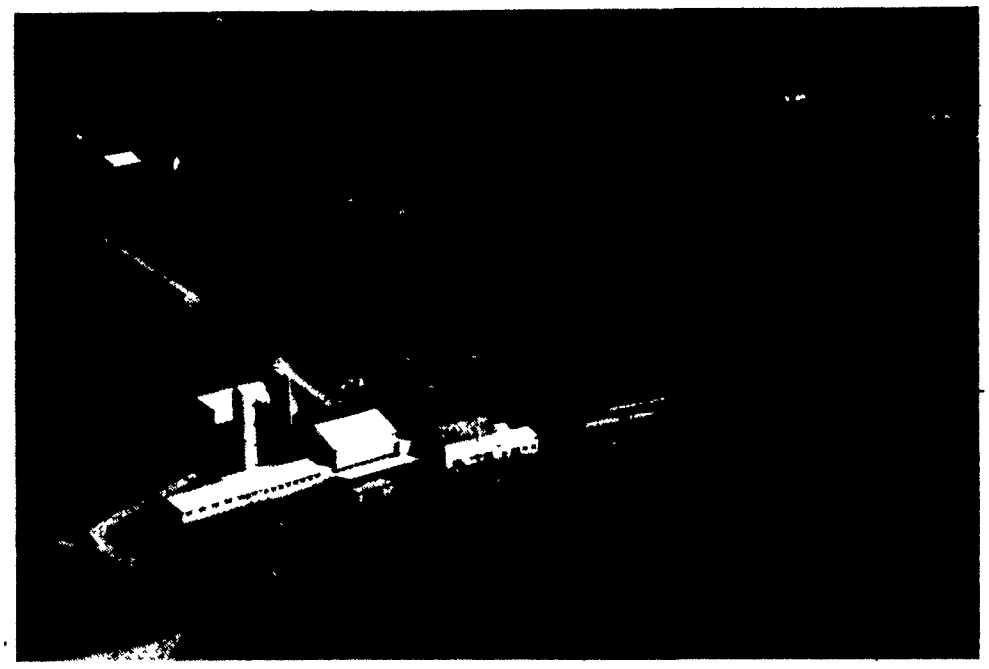
HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The Northeast Dairy of Distinction farm beautification program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

At the recent annual meeting of the Pennsylvania division here, State Secretary Paul Nichols reported an increase in publicity for dairymen created by the Dairy of Distinction program in 1988.

For example, James Brubaker of Mt. Joy, a Lancaster County winner, and State President Everett Newswanger appeared on a state-wide syndicated public TV program. Also a "Philadelphia Inquirer" reporter interviewed Newswanger and several Dairy of Distinction winners for a story. And the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sent a list of winners to all their news contacts across the state.

In 1987, Pennsylvania received 329 applications and chose 99 winners. In 1988, there were 229 applications with 94 winners. Letters of quality went out to all milk handlers. Two negative responses were returned.

Again in 1988, Governor Robert Casey declared a Dairy of Distinction week by signing a proclamation that was presented by State Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff at the reception for all winners at Ag Progress Days in August. At that time, LANCASTER FARMING presented color photographs to each Dairy of Distinction winner, too.



Edgefield Farms, owned by the Kenneth Rutt family, Quarryville, Lancaster County was one of the 94 state-wide winners in 1988. New applications for the 1989 program are now being accepted.

"Since we now have worked on the program for three years, the benefits have started to multiply," Newswanger said. "Not only does the extra favorable publicity in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, it helps the farmer, too. Many winners use the distinction to promote their own operation or to seek and hire farm labor."

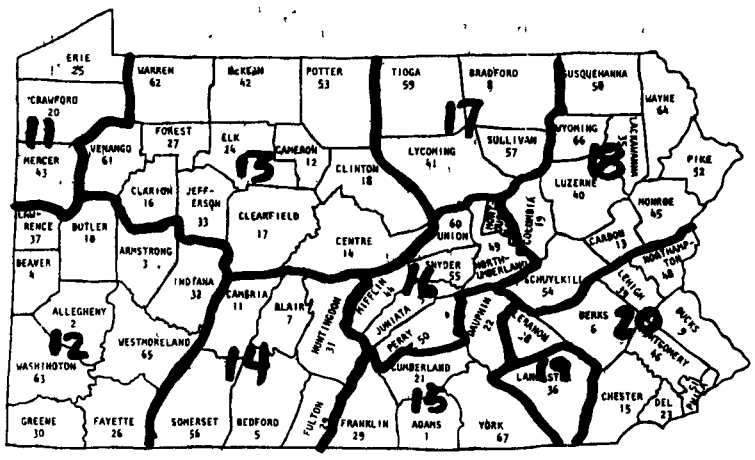
And now is the time when additional dairy farmers may apply for the Dairy of Distinction award. Also farms that had applied in previous years but did not win are eligible to reapply this year. The Dairy of Distinction farms are automatically entered for rejudging along with the new applications to insure each designated farm maintains the standard of excellence required by the program.

Pennsylvania has been divided into 10 districts. Each district has been designated according to its number of dairy cows. Up to 10 farm awards per district may be given each year. Deadline for entry is April 15.

Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. A local district team of judges visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In the Pennsylvania program, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process.

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program by LANCASTER FARMING.

The Dairy of Distinction program is a cooperative, widespread industry effort. Sponsors include: milk promotion groups, cooperative extension, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agribusinesses. The program is run by volunteers at all levels of the organization.



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are:

District II: George Wilcox; District 12: Wally Jackson; District 13: Jack Erway; District 14: David Myers; District 15: Sam Maclay; District 16: Bernice Gable; District 17: Kevin Barrett; District 18: Allen Roszel; District 19: Naomi Spahr and District 20: Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to put at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present this year's winners in Pennsylvania with a color portrait print of their farm. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Wanted: Creative Parenting

You undoubtedly have read or heard many people talk about the characteristics that are needed to be a parent of a young child. The list almost seems endless and one wonders if all of the desired qualities can be incorporated within one parent or even in one set of parents. I would like, however, to add one more characteristic. That is that the parent of the young child from toddlerhood on needs to be creative.

Think for a moment about all the many situations a young child gets into that require a different way to do something. Being creative means something quite different from being able to draw a picture or do finger-painting. A parent can come up with several alternative ways of handling that situation. Being a creative parent means that the parent can think and suggest various ways of doing something or can change the child's activity when a problem occurs.

Several examples will help. Suppose Judy, age 18 months, refused to eat. The creative parent instead of getting angry at the child will change the method of feeding or will place the food in a favorite container. Joey, age 3, is causing quite a disturbance, bothering everyone else in the family. A creative parent will involve Joey in something interesting-- will get him, for example, to place all the blocks in one corner of the box or line the blocks end to end and make a highway. Or Andy, age 5, is very tired but won't lie still to rest. The creative parent will quickly think up a sleep game or play "how long you can be quiet" or begin a favorite story or song.

In each of these cases the non-creative parent might yell or continually reprimand the child and become very frustrated. In each of these cases the non-creative parent might be tempted to give the child a spanking. But the key question to ask before yelling or getting upset with the child; Is there another way to handle this situation in a calmer manner? What could I, as a parent, suggest that Andy or Joey or Judy do instead of what the child is presently doing?

Sometimes a child will become frustrated when something he or she is doing doesn't work out. The creative parent will think of several other ways the child might try to solve the problem. A good rule of thumb is to give the child several possible alternatives, and then encourage the the child to try the one solution that seems best. Many behavior problems can be averted or diminished if the parent thinks of an alternative or quickly diverts the child's attention. To do this takes practice, but less time than a non-creative parent who spends time yelling and then "cooling down."

Another aspect of being a creative parent involves coming up with alternatives to handling a discipline situation. Sometimes the old saying that we get into a rut is more true than we would like to admit. In some homes the only discipline or punishment that is given is a threat. Threat after threat but the situation gets worse. In other homes, physical punishment seems to be the only punishment that is even given to the child.

A parent who is trying to develop creativity will think about how he or she handles a discipline situation or a case of obvious undesirable behavior. Have you gotten into a rut? Do you rely on physical punishment? Or threats? On yelling?

If you answered yes to any of these, then think about other ways of dealing with the child. What other, more creative punishments could you use?

Instead of hitting the child, why not have the child spend five minutes in his room or three minutes in the corner? I would suggest that if you would try these methods, several really good things might happen. First, you would not get so upset with the child. Secondly, the punishment probably would have more effect on the child than just a swat or backhand across the seat of the pants. Thirdly, the child would not get quite so upset and would be able to better understand what he or she did that brought about the punishment.

Sometimes when we threaten a child, the child learns to make a game out of our threats. One leads to another and another. Children can see through threats! When we yell, we get upset because the adrenalin or some other hormone gets very active in us and the child knows that whatever was done sure gets him attention!

If we physically hit the child we are teaching the child that the way to control undesirable behavior is to use physical force. Young children have a difficult time understanding why Mom or Dad can hit when they're not allowed to hit. If a child experiences a parent hitting him or her, the child is learning lessons about the use of force and aggression.

The point is-- to make our job a little easier maybe we as parents need to be a little more creative. Maybe we need to try some new ideas and ways of disciplining and ways of helping the child in difficult situations. Suggest several things the child might do in place of whatever he is doing that you want him to stop doing. Be creative!

P.S. If you try a punishment such as standing in the corner, make certain the child stays in the corner. Make the time short but make him stay there. Otherwise, you'll be like the judge who sent the man to the jail that didn't have bars or guards. He knew no one was going to make him serve his punishment so he left. The next time around, the man never even bothered to go to the jail.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Recently I attended an antique show where some very fine items were exhibited. The prices were extremely high, I thought. The exhibitors had traveled from New Hampshire, Maine, Indiana, Delaware and New York and therefore had some extra expenses.

It seems that some of the most interesting items are those similar to those I already own. One likes to look at the price tags and then say to oneself, "Is my brass bucket and dipper really worth that much?" I will admit that some of the primitive furniture looked ugly to me as it was unpainted or had bark on the finished product.

A few years ago I had a dry sink refinished because in its present condition I would not have wanted it in my kitchen. The top half was devoid of any finish and the bottom was a yellow grained effect. Maybe its value was affected by having it refinished but at least now it is a beautiful piece.

Saturday night I was pleasantly surprised when folks made a fuss over my cookies that I served at a square dance. As I was hostess, I made several kinds but the Graham Gems were the big hit and everyone wanted the recipe. But I must admit that I was embarrassed when I was not sure if they took one cup of sugar or one-half cup of sugar. So, I had to promise to take the recipe to the next dance. It is a good opportunity to meet new people as we had five squares there.

Allen and I went to a travelogue on Alaska last week. We enjoyed it a lot as many scenes were familiar to us. The scenery was beautiful and there were many close-ups of the wild animals. We were surprised that nothing was mentioned of the huge pipeline that winds over the countryside. I spoke to the lecturer afterwards and told him his audience might be interested in knowing that one of his featured people, a captain of a boat, had ancestors from Lancaster County.

Now I better go and dig some dandelions for our next meal and uphold a tradition.

For a fried cheese appetizer inspired by trendy restaurants, dredge cubes of cheese in flour, then dip in beaten egg, then roll generously in dry bread crumbs. Set aside for a few minutes to firm coating. Deep fry in hot oil (350°F) about 3 minutes. Drain on paper towels.

Fruit Tree Care

ITHACA, NY — Fresh, just-picked blueberries, strawberries, grapes, pears and apples can be the reward of a successful home fruit planting. How to plant and care for these fruit crops for a bountiful harvest is covered in the second edition of "The Home Fruit Planting," a Cornell Cooperative Extension publication.

Several factors must be considered when planning to grow fruit in your backyard. These include climate, site selection, soil preparation, planting plans, pollination, winter protection and pest control. All are discussed in the publication.

The authors list the very best and newest fruit cultivars, and address low-spray, no-spray insect and disease management as well as money and time demands.

For each type of plant, the authors provide information on cultivar selection: climate; site selection and soil preparation; planting; and maintenance, including fertilization, cultivation, mulching, pruning, and control of diseases and insects. Information on harvesting to get the best fruit quality is also included.

This second edition was written by Marcia Eames-Sheavly and Marvin P. Pritts, Department of Pomology, New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Cornell University.

Covered in this 46-page publication are apple, cherry, peach, plum and pear trees, grapes, strawberries, brambles, blueberries, currants, gooseberries, elderberries and hardy kiwifruit.

"The Home Fruit Planting" is but one of many publications on gardening produced by Cornell Cooperative Extension. For a free list of all publications on gardening, write to Cornell Cooperative Extension, Distribution, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, NY 14850. "The Home Fruit Planting" (1551B156, $4.95) is available from Cornell Distribution at the above address. The per-copy price covers postage and handling. Copies also may be available at Cornell Cooperative Extension offices in each county in New York State, where price may vary.

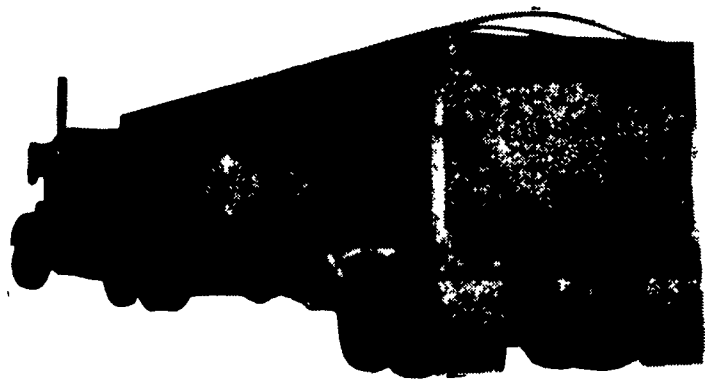
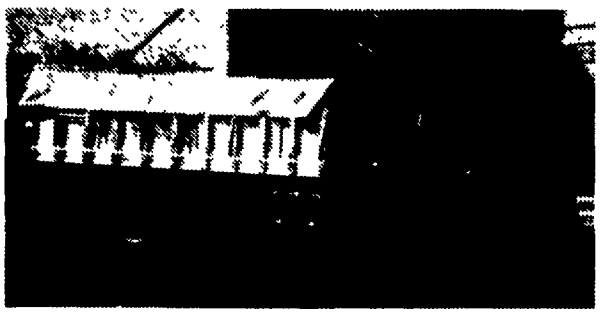
REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER

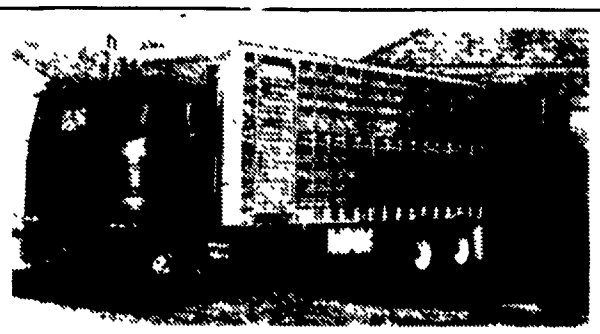


Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

M.H. EBY, INC.
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971

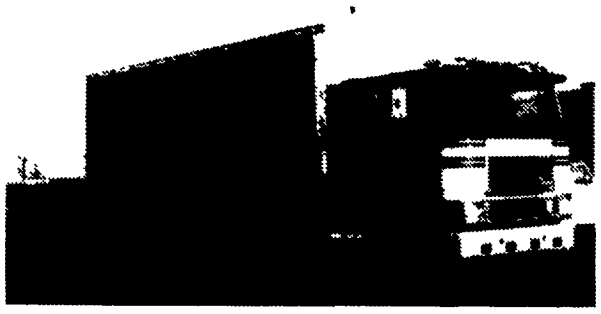


An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul.

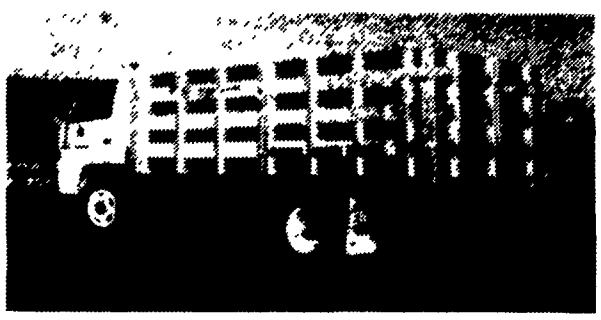


Reliable Eby livestock bodies are now aerodynamically designed.

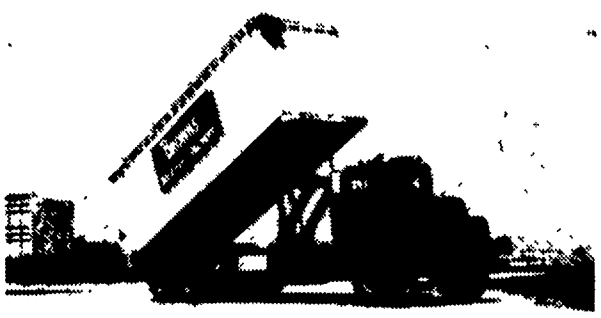
Eby's bolt-on extends the usefulness of your pickup for minimal investment.



A chicken body built to keep your birds dry and protected.



Eby stake body is the right choice for farm or commercial use.



Consider an Eby bulk body for reliability and ease of use.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

In the Spring of '88 we were honored to have Hatfield choose a load of our hogs to evaluate carcasses and test the new Fat-O-Meter System. Thank you Hatfield for your cooperation with us on our % lean comparison project in early Feb.

Since we've had the opportunity to sell several loads of hogs on the new system and pleased to be paid a premium for higher quality hogs. It's ABOUT TIME!

Call Doug Clemens at Hatfield for positive report on our carcass hogs.

BOAR TEST STATIONS

Maryland, Ohio, Delaware & New York have all tested our boars. These test stations have given our hogs a chance to show their genetic potential. Many winners and excellent records have been generated over the years. Our hogs have been right at the top of many tests including the '86 Ohio Test where our pen of Yorkshires average index was over 50% better than the whole group average.

ON FARM TESTING

Since 1971 we have offered individual performance data on our boars giving growth rate, average backfat and loineye. In the late 70's we've added % lean and an index. Dr. Ed Young from the University of Maryland does our scan work. An index of 180 is average.

MULCHING FACTS

Mulching...What Is It?

Mulching is the process of returning valuable nutrients to the soil.

Why Use A Mulching Mower?

A mulching mower has four major advantages over conventional bag-type mowers:

Firist, it gives you a neat looking lawn without the nuisance of raking or bagging clippings. This means more time for leisure activities.

Second, it returns vital nutrients to the soil. This reduces the need for commercial fertilizers. Since grass is composed of from 4% to 6% nitrogen, mulching the clippings makes the lawn greener, encourages proper root growth, and increases resistance to disease.

Third, it's faster. When you eliminate the nuisance of raking and bagging, you also eliminate 40% to 50% of the total mowing time.

Fourth, it eliminates finding a place for your clippings. Many communities will not pick up grass with the trash.

How Does A Mulching Mower Work?

A mulching mower utilizes a specially engineered multi-pitch blade and a deep mowing deck. The blade and deck combine to create air suction to hold grass upright and, once cut, suspend the clippings in the mowing chamber, while repeatedly chopping them into finer particles. These small particles are then blown deep into the turf near the soil level, where they decompose quickly.

How Is This Different From A Conventional Mower Without A Bag?

A conventional side discharge mower blows clippings horizontally onto the lawn rather than forcing them down into the turf. The long clippings lie on the lawn surface in unsightly brown clumps. This layer of dead clippings can sometimes become thick enough to exclude sunlight, causing yellowing and weakening of the turf. And long clippings take a long time to filter down to the soil surface, thereby slowing the decomposition process.

What Do Scientists Say About Mulching?

Independent university studies by agronomists using mulching mowers have determined that:

1. Mulch particles decompose and are absorbed by the grass root system within 14 days.
2. Mulch slows evaporation at the soil level.
3. Mulch does not add to thatch build-up.
4. Mulching results in a generally greener, healthier lawn.

Are There Any Drawbacks To Using A Mulching Mower?

Mulching can be difficult when grass is either wet or exceptionally long.

Mowing wet grass can cause clumping in the mowing chamber and interfere with proper mulching action

To remedy this two passes should be made the first cut one setting above the normal cutting height and the second cut at a normal cutting level a day or two later

BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. IS YOUR KINZE DEALER

KINZE THE LEADER. THE INNOVATOR IN GRAIN-HANDLING AUGER WAGONS.

In 1971 a young farmer named Jon Kinzenbaw designed and built the first KINZE Auger Wagon. And a whole new concept in grain handling was born.

Today, KINZE is known as the leader in large capacity, high efficiency auger wagons. They're used by thousands of grain producers all over the world...grain producers who are looking for the same kinds of features you are.

And they've found them in the big blue wagons from KINZE. Big capacity. Low profile. Unloading speeds of 3 minutes or less on most models. "Big wheel" high flotation tires to keep on "walkin'," even when conditions are at their worst. Industrial-grade auger and drive systems.

Simply stated, KINZE Auger Wagons keep your combines moving and your grain trucks rolling. And they hold their value better than any other wagon in the field. In fact, today a used KINZE Auger Wagon is worth more than it originally cost 10, even 15 years ago. That's right, more than it sold for originally.

Want to know why? Open up this page and look inside a KINZE Auger Wagon. You'll see, feature for feature, part for part, no other auger wagon can compare to a big blue KINZE.

7 REASONS THAT KINZE IS THE QUALITY FORCE IN MOVING GRAIN.

1 DUAL AUGERS-THE FASTEST, MOST EFFICIENT WAY TO MOVE GRAIN

2 HYDRAULIC FOLD & SELF-ALIGNING AUGERS ELIMINATE TROUBLE SPOTS

3 HIGH-FLOTATION TIRES KEEP YOU MOVING!

4 A PROVEN, LOW PROFILE DESIGN

5 INDUSTRIAL GRADE COMPONENTS BUILT TO LAST!

6 MORE POWER... EXACTLY WHEN & WHERE YOU NEED IT!

Case International 685 Tractor

You'll use it every day– in a dozen different ways

The 685 tractor is sized and equipped to be productive 365 days a year. With 62 PTO hp*, it can be used for everything: Plowing, disking, cultivating, grinding, loading, spreading, and cleaning up around your feedlots and barns. Compared to using larger tractors for mid-size jobs, the more you use a Case International 685, the more you'll save.

Standard features include a high-torque 4-cylinder diesel engine teamed with an 8-speed synchromesh transmission (16-speed optional), 540 RPM PTO, 3-point hitch, swinging drawbar and differential lock.

Choose the 685 in the configuration that's best for your type of farming – row-crop, utility, low-profile or Mechanical Front Drive (MFD).

The Case International 685 – a lot of versatility for the money.

CASE IH DOES IT BETTER!

And Your Dealer Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Has An All New Case IH 3309 9'3" Cut Disc Mower Conditioner Ready For You!

CASE INTERNATIONAL 3309

The Disc Mower Conditioner With 9'3" (2.82m) Width Of Cut Delivers Fast Cutting In The Toughest Field Haying Conditions.

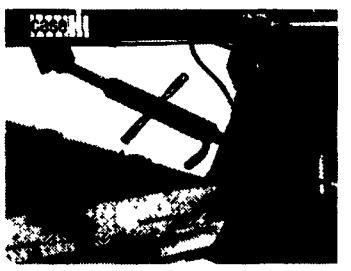
It makes little difference whether your hay fields are filled with wet, rank hay; tangled grass; fire ant hills or gopher mounds. The versatile Case IH 3309 disc mower conditioner was designed to take it on with less plugging and virtually none-stop cutting.

A total of seven oval discs - with two free-swinging knives apiece - spin at 3000 RPM to slice through tangled, grassy hay and legumes with equal ease. From the cutterbar, hay feeds directly into the matched pair of 84-inch (2.18m) long ticor conditioning rolls. These precision machined rubber rolls are designed to give years of trouble-free conditioning and are made from wear-resistant, cord-reinforced rubber.

Patented roll separation even lets you clear out slugs and plugs without leaving the tractor seat. Simply raise the header, and the rolls separate automatically to power balled and matted material through the machine.

Hydraulic header lift and hydraulic tongue positioning provide further operator convenience. The latter provides on-the-go adjustment of the tongue to any position right from the tractor seat, and proves particularly convenient when steering around field obstacles, or operating on hillsides or contours.

Plenty of adjustment is built in to help you match crop conditions, too. A rugged, turn-buckle-type header tilt control provides easy and accurate adjustment through a wide range of cutting angles. Meanwhile, the swath deflector can be set up to provide windrows or swaths from 30 to 84 inches (.75 to 2.13 m) wide. All the while, the over-the-header frame provides 3-point header suspension for excellent flotation both vertically and laterally.



Service and maintenance were equally well planned for on the 3309. A constant-velocity PTO allows smooth, quiet turns, as well as less wear on bearings and drivelines. In addition, you'll find a single direct-drive gear box that drives all the working components on the machine, including both conditioner rolls and the cutterbar. Each knife is reversible, with two cutting edges for extended usage. Finally, the shaft-driven cutterbar is built with modular components for easy repair and reduced maintenance. Instead of disassembling the entire bar, you can simply remove the appropriate disc module, make the needed repairs, and you're back in the field.

Add up the features and benefits and you've got a mower conditioner that'll get you through even the most difficult in-field agricultural crop cutting conditions in less time and with less trouble.

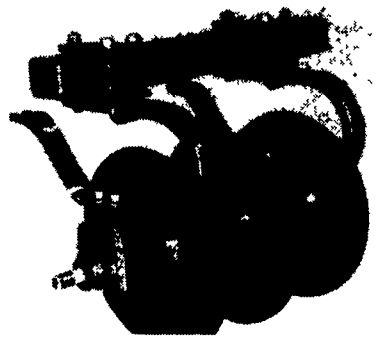
JUST ARRIVED - FRESH OFF THE LINE QUALITY NEW ATHENS TILLAGE

JUST ARRIVED! Two New Athens Transport Wing Disk Harrows Model 118's - Fresh Off The Line With Rock Protected Spring Bearing Hangers & Double Offset Design - ★ WHEN YOU BUY ATHENS YOU GET THESE FINE FEATURES BELOW ★

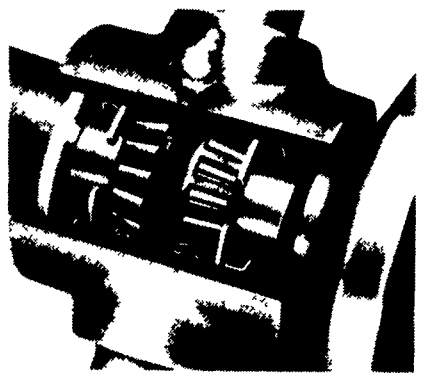
118 DISK GANGS overlap in the front and are staggered front and rear to feather out for a smooth, level job...even when varying depth and plowing speed. Gangs are adjustable for either 15 or 19 degree angles of cut.

118 TAPERED DISKS/COVER DISKS. Triple-tapered Disks on outside rear Gangs (from 22" to 20" to 18" to 16" on Cover Disk or from 24" to 22" to 20" to 18" on Cover Disk on 9" spacing only) and a single taper on the outside front Gangs provide a smooth, level, ridge-free job. Another Rhino advantage...It's all standard equipment on all 118 Rhino Disks.

118 NARROW TRANSPORT WIDTH. All models of the 118 will pass easily through a 12' gate. This narrow transport width and better balance is achieved by folding the Wings up and over the center section a full 15'. Narrow lanes and bridges should no longer be a problem when transporting the 118.

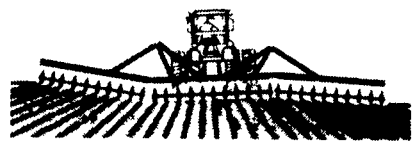


118 SPRING BEARING HANGERS reduce shockloads to the Disks, Axles, Bearings, and Frame when working in fields with rocks or other obstructions. The Rhino 1"x2" Spring Bearing Hangers provide maximum strength, add protection with maximum flexibility, and reduce downtime expenses. The Rhino QUADRASEAL® Gang Bearings are trunnion-mounted to the Spring Bearing Hangers to allow the Gangs to flex freely without undue stress being placed on the Gang Axle.



GUARANTEED QUADRASEAL® BEARINGS... The unique Rhino double-row, tapered roller Bearings are guaranteed for two years and provide greater life and dependability than competitive bearings.

118 LEVELING SYSTEM keeps the Frame level in the field and in transport. After hitching the reversible Clevis to the tractor, a Turnbuckle adjusts the Tongue position to level the Disk Frame in transport. In the field, a Leveling Screw that connects the Tongue to the Wheel Carriages is adjusted for field conditions and disking speed desired. After initial adjustment, the 118 remains level while being lifted and lowered. A Turnbuckle connects the Wheel Carriages for precise side-to-side leveling.



118 WING FLOTATION. Athens 118 Wings are hinged so that they provide uniform weight distribution and flex freely to follow the ground contour for uniform plowing. For better side-to-side leveling, the Wing Hinges are mounted 16" inside the Center Section Gangs to give a smoother and easier flexing action between Center Section and Wing Disk Gangs.
118 HAS 2 HEAVY-DUTY SCRAPERS.

The Athens 118 is the smart choice for stalk chopping, stubble disking, seedbed finishing, and chemical incorporation. Because of the advanced double offset design, the 118 lets you disk at a faster speed and leave a smooth, uniform bed behind. It's a tough, dependable Rhino for sure.

Heavy-duty gear boxes
Two heavy-duty gear boxes, one a 90 degree beater drive, the other a two-speed worm box with bronze gear and steel worm; provide efficient power transmissions, smoother operation and long life.

Gehl-Tuff floor
In cold weather, the slick Gehl-Tuff surface reduces the force needed to break a frozen apron loose from the floor. So your whole load glides out with little resistance. And less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains.

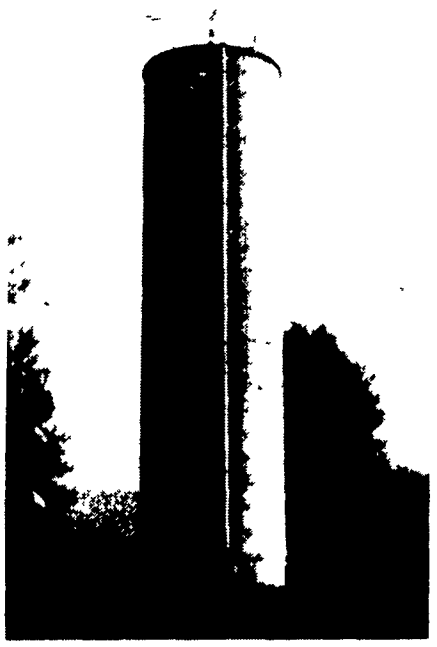
"Consider The Concrete Advantages"



The summer of 1988 will be remembered for the many hot, dry, days. These high temperatures damaged a lot of stored corn and forage in structures that have a thin wall and do not reflect heat. You can avoid this heat damage with a poured concrete SOLLENBERGER SILO.

FOR BOTTOM UNLOADING:
* LAIDIG 43 - Ideal unloader for high moisture ground ear corn or high moisture shelled corn.
* LAIDIG 98 or 198 - The bottom unloader for all forages.
* "LAIDIG GAVE BOTTOM UNLOADING A GOOD NAME."

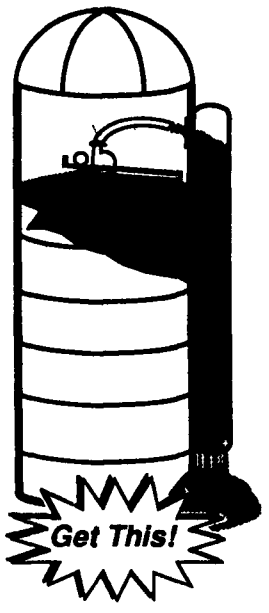
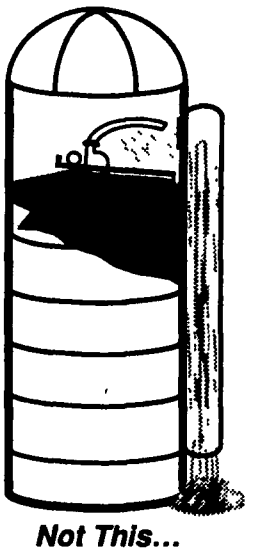
Get the Power You Pay For With Van Dale DURAGLIDE™





The newest innovation in silo unloading—from Van Dale, of course—is the DURAGLIDE Impeller System, which dramatically increases throwing power while reducing power requirements.

The DURAGLIDE paddle and wrapper inserts are slicker than glass and more durable than stainless steel.

Reduces friction and gummy buildups in the impeller.

Results in silage out the door every time—no annoying trips up the silo!

See this revolutionary system today at your local Van Dale dealers.

Sulfa Violations Continue To Decline

The violative sulfa-methazine residues in market hogs continued to decline in the fourth quarter of 1988. Violations were found in less than 0.4 percent of the 15,571 samples tested, according to the Food Safety & Inspection Service (FSIS).

This represented a small decline from the 0.5 percent of violations discovered in testing conducted from March through September last year. However, the 0.4 percent was down significantly from the 4 percent in 1987, the 4.6 percent in 1986, and the 9.7 percent in 1978.

The fourth quarter drop occurred even as FSIS increased its testing. Some 600 lots of hogs now are tested daily.

Checkoff-funded programs have helped educate producers about the correct use of sulfa, with producers deserving much credit for the decline in violations through their self-monitoring of the drug's use.

Lowdown on Layers

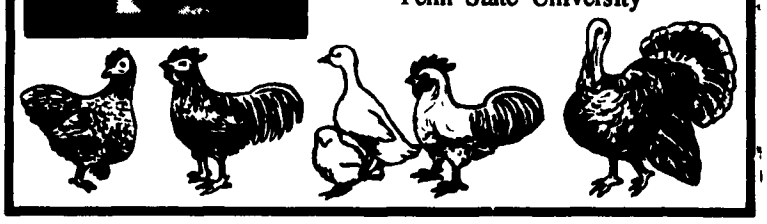
Associate Professor of Poultry Science
Penn State University



The Poultry Sales and Service Conference will be held at the J. O. Keller Conference Center, Penn State University on April 11 and 12, 1989. The general program will start at 9:45 a.m. with excellent presentations on ventilation principles and instrumentation. This will be followed by a presentation by Dr. Reynnells, the USDA-Extension Service national program leader for Poultry, on dealing with animal rights and welfare issues.

The Tuesday afternoon program will be split into two parts. Issues and information concerning (1) broilers and broiler breeders, and (2) commercial egg pullets and layers. Tuesday evening, an event which has become traditional, is the Poultry Products Smorgasbord which features products produced and donated by eight Pennsylvania poultry companies. Other food and refreshments will be available so bring your appetites.

Wednesday morning features a biosecurity program relative to the Salmonella issue. The program will conclude on the light side with a very excellent presentation by Walt Buescher. With all the problems we face in agriculture, he brings these to our attention in a humorous fashion.

The complete program for the Poultry Sales and Service Conference is listed on the next page, along with registration information.

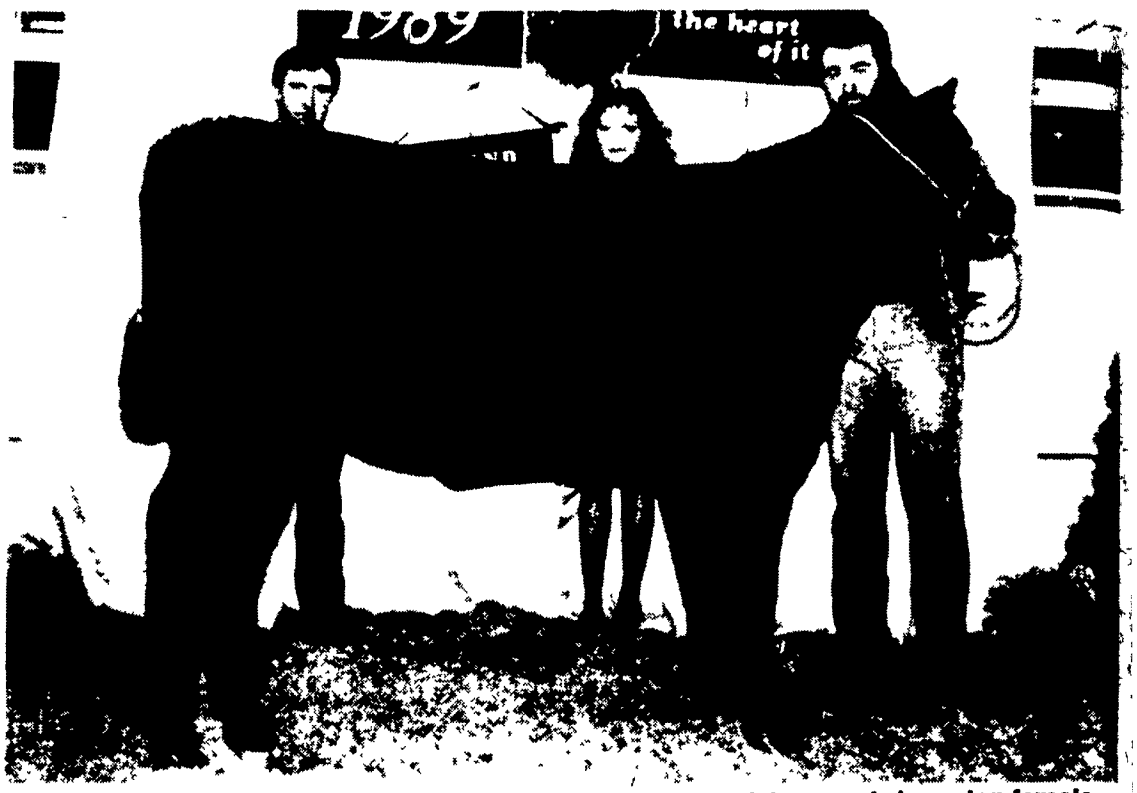
Pennsylvanians Show Champions At Ohio Angus Sho



Rains Lady TG2, the late junior calf winner, was named the grand champion female at the 1989 Ohio Angus Association Super Star Show. Rains Lady was exhibited by Dale Rains of Mercer.

GH2 Angus Associates of York led GH2 Royalty 3248 to the grand champion bull spot at the 1989 Ohio Angus Association Super Star Show held earlier this year in Columbus. Royalty had already won the early junior calf ribbon.

Feedback Kills Bill-Back Plan

The Packers & Stockyards Administration (P&SA) last week announced it would withdraw its tentative proposal for a program to allow packers to bill producers for carcasses condemned for drug residues.

An "intent to withdraw" the bill-back proposal was published in the March 16 issue of the "Federal Register."

P&SA Administrator Bill Jones said the intent to withdraw did not, however, "alter the agency's commitment to assuring a meat supply free of drug residues."

Jones said both veal and swine producers have made a lot of progress in cleaning up residues in recent months, but he said P&SA may have to move later to provide some increased incentive for some meat groups.

P&SA published an "intents to propose" a bill-back program last year. The proposal drew strong negative response from most of the industry.

Most packers favored the idea, which would help cut losses when carcasses are condemned by federal inspectors.

Market operators, however, said the proposal would simply dump the problem in their laps in many cases. The National Cattlemen's Association and other major beef organizations also had opposed the program.

Jones said that 87 percent of the industry comments received on the intent to propose were negative. Problems most commonly cited concerned animal trace-back and establishing where in the production and marketing chain the contamination had occurred.

Jones also noted that packers now have the right to seek compensation from producers who market contaminated animals that later are condemned.

Pittsburgh Cattleman Is State Seedstock Producer Of The Year

ALTOONA (Blair) — Bill Shoemaker, Captain for US Air, was flying high last month when he was named seedstock producer of the year at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association here.

Bill's herd of 60 Simmental brood cows and 20 embryo recipients is located in Bedford County on a 600-acre family farm. The Shoemaker farm at Buffalo Mills is a third-generation farm. William Shoemaker, Bill's dad, still milks a 60-head Holstein herd there along side of Bill's herd. Bill and his father share the field work, farm equipment, and facilities.

Bill has been in the cattle business all his life. He owned his first Holstein heifer when he was eight years old. He began artificial insemination of his 30 registered Herefords and several Holsteins to Simmental bulls in 1979.

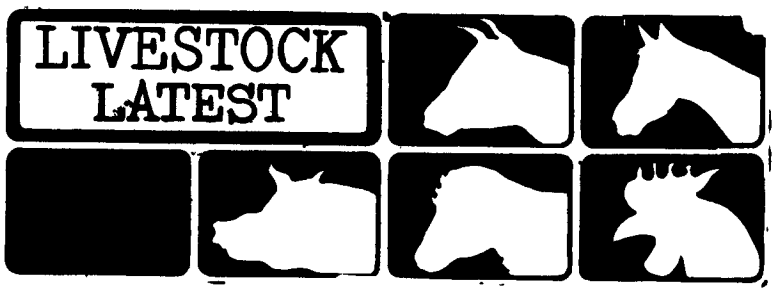
The year before, while on vacation in Kansas, he visited a fellow pilot's farm, where he was was cross breeding Herefords with Simmental bulls. The resulting calves were weaning off 75 to 100 pounds heavier than purebred Herefords.

Upon returning home Bill researched the possibility of cross breeding his family herd. He discovered that breeding cows to a registered Simmental bull would yield half-blood Simmental; half-blood heifers bred to registered Simmental bulls produced three-quarter Simmentals, which could be registered; these Simmentals in turn produced seven-eighths Simmentals of which the heifers are considered purebred by the American Simmental Association. Using this process, carefully selecting A.I. bulls and full-blood Simmental cows, and culling Herefords and Holsteins, Bill built a nationally recognized herd of Simmental cattle.

In the early years Bill was eighter keeping his heifer calves or culling them. The bulls that weren't culled were sold locally. As his herd grew, Bill's need to expand his market for selling bulls and replacement heifers to other Simmental breeders also grew.

Becasue of this need to expand his market, Bill showed cattle at the 1982 Pennsylvania Farm Show. That year there were only 20 Simmentals in the entire show. Last year there were 98 Simmentals entered.

As tahe number of Simmental cattle shown at the Farm Show grew, so did Bill's success. In the lastfew years, he has had both grand champion bulls and grand champion cows at the Farm Show and similar success at other major shows across the coutnry. This success has made it possible for Bill to sell cattle throughout the United States and in Canada.



Holly Farms Bid Extended

Tyson Foods Inc. extended its $63.50-a-share cash tender offer for the outstanding shares of the Holly Farms Corp. to May 5.

The offer had expired March 31.

Tyson, the chicken processor that has pursued Holly since October, sweetened its offer to $63.50, or $1.15 billion, on March 16.

The bid is conditioned upon Holly's ending a lockup option with Conagra Inc., the Omaha-based food giant.

Holly Farms, a poultry producer based in Memphis, and Conagra agreed in November to merge in a stock swap valued at $59.25 a share, or more than $1 billion.

Holly Stockholders will vote on the agreement April 14.

Tyson, with headquarters in Springdale, Ark., said it would review its options after the vote.

Holly Farms acquired Victor F. Weaver Inc. of New Holland in 1988.

Beef Hormone Task Force Established

The U.S. half of a task force that will seek an end to the beef hormone standoff with the EEC has been appointed.

They include: Joss Bolton and Lyn Condon, U.S. Trade Representative's office; Anne Veneman, Foreign Agriculture Service; and Lester Crawford, Food Safety & Inspection Service.

Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter told a congressional committee the U.S. is not ready to give in to Europe on the hormone ban. Retaliatory measures will stay in place, he said, although they may be reduced by an appropriate amount if the EEC accepts some U.S. beef certified as having been produced without added hormones.

Yeutter said USDA would not establish a system for certifying that U.S. beef had been produced without hormones. USDA personnel have said they can't develop such a system, because they can't verify scientifically that beef was produced with added hormones. Yeutter said he would not stand in the way if an individual or other government entity tried to develop such a plan.

Included in the manual are an overview of sow productivity and efficiency, managing for improved herd productivity, minimizing preweaning death loss, wean-to-service interval and fertility, new trends in feeding the high-producing sow, achieving a 90 percent farrowing rate, and using reproductive records as a key management tool.

The bulletin may be picked up free-of-charge at the University of Delaware Research and Education Center in Georgetown. To order by mail, state the name of the publication and send a $2 check made payable to the University of Delaware and send to University of Delaware, Research and Education Center, R.D. #2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

Pork Checkoff To Fund Swine Disease Research

DES MOINES, IA — The 100 percent pork producers checkoff will provide $354,000 in seed money during the coming year for vital research projects aimed at prevention and treatment of hog diseases as well as improving the pork that consumers buy.

Each year a committee of pork producers and researchers selected from across the nation take a look at priorities for funding as determined through polling of a random sample of producers and through the discussion of a producer policy development group. Project proposals submitted by the nation's leading researchers are judged by the special committee as their priorities established by pork producers.

Since 1971, when the program started, approximately three million dollars of producer checkoff funds have been invested in about 350 separate research projects. In most cases, producer funding is enhanced by additional funding from other sources, so that the total impact is much greater than the initial production grant.

In 1989-90, 32 separate research projects will receive seed money from producer checkoff funds, according to Dr. David Meeker, director of research and education for the National Pork Produers Coucnil. The projects range from genetic markers for selection of breeding stock to nutrient requirements of hogs.

"The increase in checkoff-funded research programs continue to benefit both producers and consumers by developing leaner and more nutritious pork," said Meeker.

National Farmers Organization Urges Negotiation On GATT Treaty

CORNING, IA — National Farmers Organization President DeVon Woodland recently urged Congress not to allow the Bush Administration to negotiate the provisions of the 1990 farm bill in the GATT treaty when talks resume next week.

"We want our Congress to have the privilege of writing a domestic farm program next year," he emphasized. "We do not want this treaty to tie the hands of our Congress or limit the flexibility of U.S. farm programs based on an international agreement with trade provisions which may prove unfair to America's farm families."

It has been widely rumored in Washington, Woodland wrote to Senate Ag Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.), that U.S. negotiators intend to reach an agreement on agricultural provisions covered by GATT next week in order to proceed with other negotiations.

A draft paper, circulated by GATT Secretary General Arthur Dunkel, he pointed out, has called for liberalization of international trade and the progressive reduction in farm support payments and other protective measures.

"I urge the Senate Agricultural Committee to say no to the Bush Administration's proposed GATT compromise that would severely restrict the U.S. Congress in writing the next farm bill," Woodland stressed. "Such proposals, if written into the GATT treaty, would limit the U.S. Congress' ability to deal effetively with international agricultural trade, price supports, supply management controls and other needed provisions for U.S. farmers."

Woodland pointed out that while the National Farmers Organization is supportive of improved access to world markets for U.S. commodities if they can be sold at reasonably profitable prices, substantial considerations must be given to pricing and cost of production.

In recent years, he said, U.S. money and land has been devalued while farm prices continued to erode. This has made U.S. farmers largely dependent on the U.S. Treasury for net farm income on storable commodities. While farmers are efficient users of modern technology, there is no way for farmers and ranchers to pay their bills, taxes and the current cost of living while competing with dollar-a-day labor in other parts of the world.

"We encourage you to advise the administration that the Congress will not accept a GATT agreement that dictates our domestic farm policy for the future," he concluded in the letter to Leahy. "It is not in the best national interest to risk instability in quality and quantity of our food supply in this country. Neither is it good policy to continue the present trade war at great expense, both to farmers and taxpayers.

"We hope you will support retention of Section 22 of the 1933 Act and keep the door open for an improved domestic farm program to be written for five years in the spring of 1990."

DuPont Agricultural Products is conducting research with Fortress, a new soil insecticide. Evaluations of Fortress in 1988 show it as being extremely effective in controlling western corn rootworm. On the top is the root of a corn plant grown in soil treated with Fortress. Below is a root grown in untreated soil.

Insecticide Research Unveiled At Entomology Society Meeting

INDIANAPOLIS, IN — Five years of research show the new insecticide "Fortress" provides excellent control of corn rootworm.

Du Pont Agricultural Products is evaluating "Fortress" for use on corn and other crops and scheduled to request Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) registration in the early 1990s.

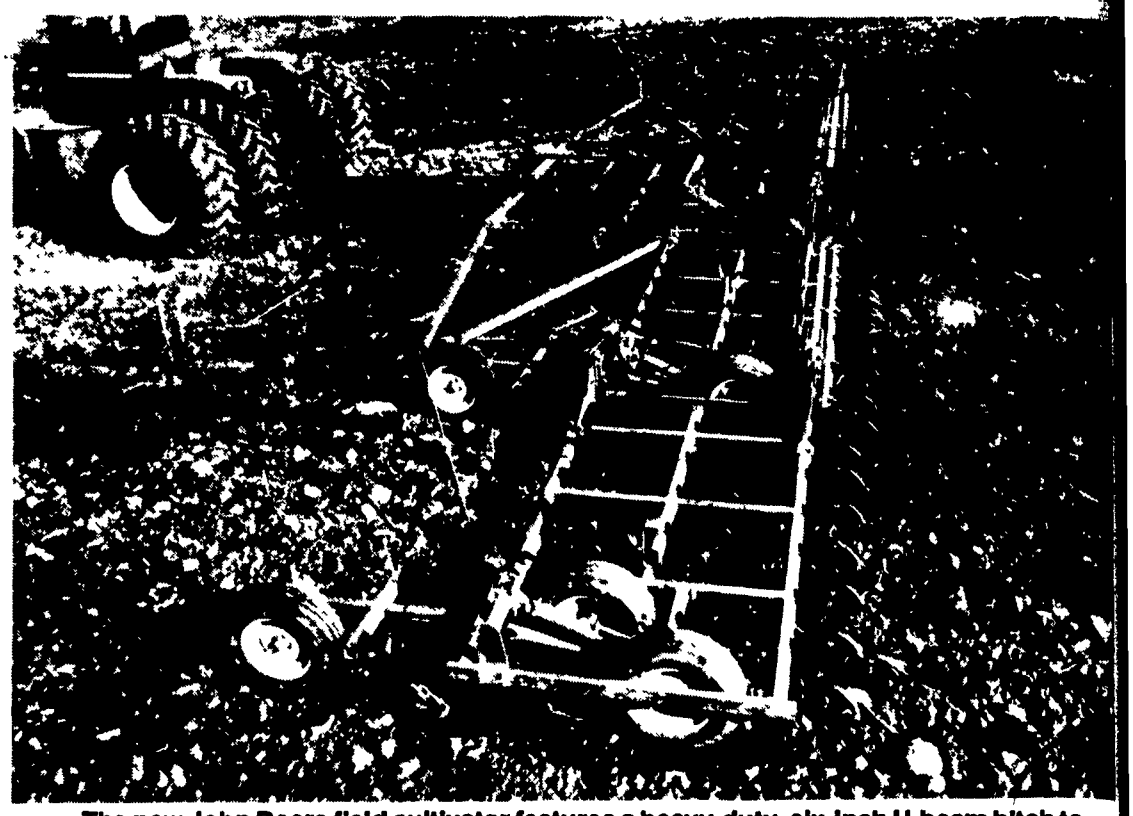
Entomologists and others attending the North Central Branch meeting of the Entomology Society of America in Indianapolis heard Mick Holm, Du Pont field development specialist, present plot research results during the third day of the March 13-15 conference.

"The research results come from 145 corn rootworm trials conducted throughout the Midwest and surrounding states from 1984 to 1988 where 'Fortress' was applied at planting time," Holm says. The research was conducted by university investigators, private contractors and Du Pont researchers.

Holm presented data which showed:

* "Fortress" controls rootworm better than the standards, which include Counter, Furadan, Dyfonate, Lorsban and Force.
* "Fortress" works equally well when applied in-furrow and when banded.
* "Fortress" performs under a wide range of environmental conditions.
* "Fortress" performs well at low-use rates.
* "Fortress" provides broad-spectrum control and is effective against rootworm, cutworm, wireworm, seed corn maggot, European corn borer and white grub.

Evaluations are being done with five percent granule used at the rate of .25 pound of active ingredient per acre. Field trials and further evaluations will continue during 1989.



The new John Deere field cultivator features a heavy-duty, six-inch H-beam hitch to distribute draft and a four-inch square tube rockshaft to ensure reliability. The cultivator has three working widths, 48.5, 54.5, and 60.5 feet.

Deere Unveils Field Cultivator

MOLINE, IL — The John Deere 1060 field cultivator, replacing the 1050 model, features a new heavy-duty six-inch H-beam hitch to distribute draft and a four-inch square tube rockshaft to ensure reliability. The 1060 has three working widths - 48.5, 54.5, and 60.5 feet.

All three machines have a five-section overcenter fold, which means no lockup pins are required for transport. Outer wings latch automatically to the inner wings when folded.

A new 47-degree C-shank, introduced on the 960 field cultivator, is 9/16-in. thick and has a replaceable split-tension bushing in the eye of the shank. The standards have a 10-in. trip height, a 110 lb. trip force, and 6-in. spacings.

Sweeps and shovels are available in six sizes ranging from 1.75 to 12 inches. Attaching hardware diameter has been increased from 3/8 to 7/16 inch.

Tandem walkover wheels on the mainframe, inner wings, and outer wings are standard on the 54.5 ft. and 60.5 ft. models. The 48.5 ft. model uses tandem walkover wheels on the mainframe and inner wings. The outer wings on the 48.5 ft. model have single wheels or optional tandem wheels.

An optional three-bar tine-tooth harrow has a new trash flow design. The tines have three-inch spacing and the bar spacing has been increased from nine inches to 12 inches for improved performance and to comply with chemical manufacturer recommendations.

Great Plains Presents Center Pivot No-Till Hitch

ASSARIA, KS. — The new center pivot no-till hitch is the latest introduction from Great Plains, the company that leads the industry in no-till drill sales.

The new hitch features a pivoting hitch construction, a weight transfer cylinder, and a level link for the attached drill. The framework articulates to provide superior opener tracking of coulters on curves. Its hillside holding capability is second to none because the non-pivoting coulters of the Center Pivot Hitch act as stabilizing disks. The pivoting hitch design has been proven for years by more than 1,200 units of its sister hitch, the combination drill hitch.

A tongue hydraulic cylinder transfers tractor weight to the coulters on the go. The level link keeps the drill level throughout the stroke of the weight transfer cylinder.

Our superior coulter clamps, which grip all four sides of the center pivot hitch toolbar, prevent coulter misalignment during use.

Durability and longer hitch life are provided by the large 4"x6"x3/8" wall coulter toolbar. This sturdy toolbar also resists upward flexing at the outer coulters which can occur with weak toolbars.

Great Plains also builds a complete line of solid stand three-point drills for use with the center pivot hitch ... making the new no-till package from Great Plains a highly compatible, dependable no-till system.

For more information, contact Great Plains Manufacturing, PO Box 218, Assaria, KS 67416.

Minimum-Till Rotary Hoes Introduced By Case IH

RACINE, WI — To make minimum tillage farming both easier and more efficient, Case IH introduces the Model 181 MT minimum-till rotary hoe in eight different working sizes.

The Model 181 MT is designed to significantly reduce plugging in minimum tillage situations and still provide effective weeding, crust breaking and surface tillage. It performs equally well in conventionally tilled fields, giving farmers increased versatility.

To create greater fore and aft clearance, Case IH has engineered the Model 181 MT with two staggered hoe ranks that allow for significantly better trash flow than conventional rotary hoes. Each hoe wheel is mounted on its own spring-loaded arm that follows changes in ground contours to further reduce plugging.

Additionally, independent oscillating action allows the wheels to ride up and over obstructions without damaging teeth or affecting other hoe wheels. This increased flexibility lets the Model 181 MT achieve uniform penetration over beds, furrows and uneven contours.

Another engineering breakthrough unique to the Model 181 MT is the patented design of its self-cleaning arm pivots. Three grooves in the hub and a hole in the bottom of each hub keep the arms from binding by allowing dirt to escape. Wide-spaced wheel hub mountings prevent soil and trash from building up between the wheels and arms.

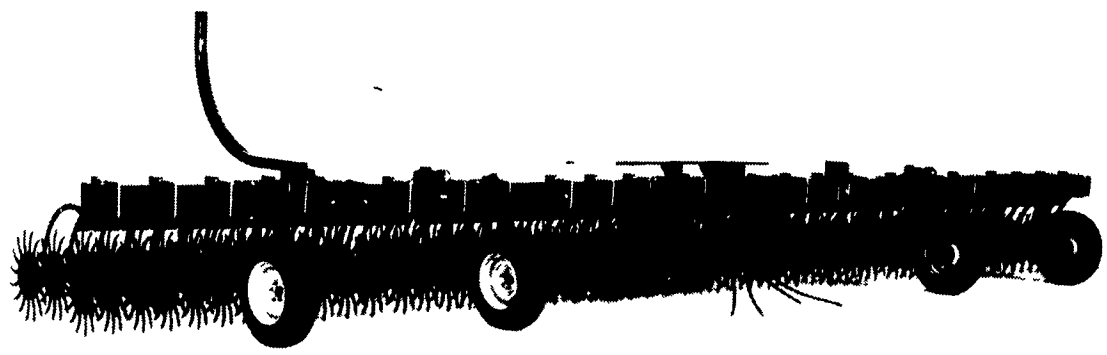
The Model 181 MT features 21-inch diameter steel wheels fitted with sealed ball bearings. Each wheel has 16 hardened, self-sharpening, spoon-billed teeth.

The rotary hoe's eight folding and rigid working sizes range from 15 to 41 feet. Folding models have flat-folding hydraulic wings for easier shed storage and trouble-free road travel.

Wings can be folded independently for working point rows. In the working position, they can either be locked rigid or allowed a moderate amount of flex. The hydraulic cylinders tuck out of the way inside the main frame tube to prevent soil and trash accumulation.

Additional features of the Model 181 MT include:

- standard three-point hitch;
- tubular main frame;
- rock shield;
- rear storage stand for folding models;
- optional endwise transport for rigid models; and
- optional Quick Attach hitch adapter package.



The Case IH rotary hoe significantly reduces plugging in minimum-till situations while providing effective weeding, crust breaking, and surface tillage. Available in eight different working sizes, the hoe performs equally well in conventionally tilled fields.

Headquartered in Racine, Wisconsin, Case IH is a worldwide manufacturer and marketer of Case IH agricultural and Case construction equipment. Case IH is an affiliate of Tenneco Inc., Houston.

Tenneco Inc. is a diversified industrial corporation with major business interests in natural gas pipelines, agricultural and construction equipment, shipbuilding, automotive parts, packaging, chemicals, and minerals.

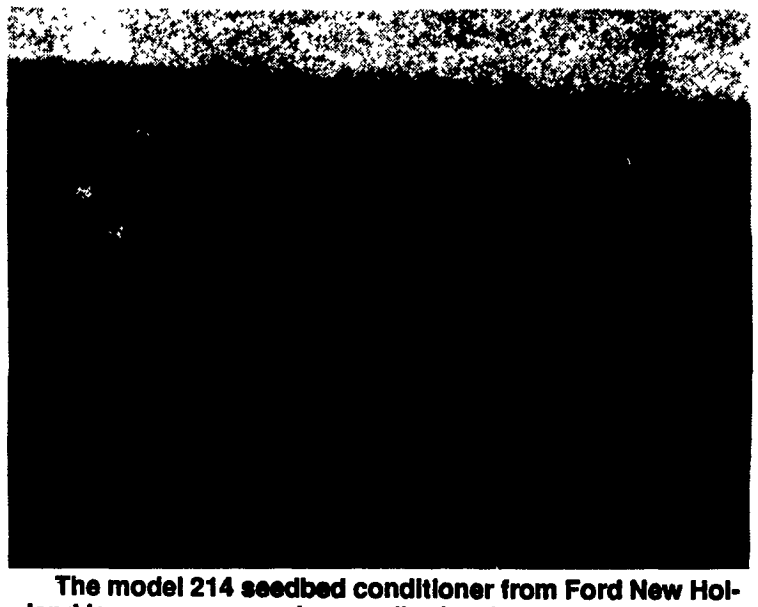
Ford New Holland Offers One-Pass Seedbed Conditioner

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — The new Model 214 seedbed conditioner from Ford New Holland is a conservation implement for one-pass spring seedbed preparation. At the front, 18-inch discs spaced seven inches apart slice through crop residue to avoid plugging. Discs can flex over rocks or other obstructions. The discs are followed by C-shanks or S-tines to till and mix soil and residue to avoid planting problems. A flexible spike-tooth harrow smoothes out the seedbed to eliminate the need for multiple passes.

The new Model 214 is designed for use on fall-chiseled fields but also can be used on moldboard plowed land or on untilled cereal grain stubble where straw has been chopped and spread at the combine.

The "214" is an ideal companion unit to the Model 139 soil keeper, says Product Manager Dave Bohannon. Where the "139" was used in the fall, the new "214" is available in working widths from 12 to 35 feet. Wider units fold vertically to go through narrow gates and for road transport.



The model 214 seedbed conditioner from Ford New Holland is a one-pass spring seedbed maker for land that was chisel plowed in the fall. Eighteen-inch discs up front slice through trash while C-shanks or S-tines follow for tillage. An optional spring-tine harrow attachment smooths and finishes seedbeds and incorporates chemicals.

Dealing With Johne's From Experience

Editor's note: This is the second half of a two-part series on Johne's Disease. The first part, published last week, described the disease and its control. This article contains a summary of how three Lancaster County dairy farmers are battling the disease.

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — After the initial shock, when the implications of the disease sinks in, dairy farmers with Johne's in their herd want to know one thing: how do I get rid of it?

Current estimates place the frequency of Johne's as high as one in every five Pennsylvanian cows. More conservative estimates place the infection rate as 7.2 percent in Pennsylvania and in the Northeast.

Millie Widmann and Axel Linde of Oxford, Paul Trimble of Peach Bottom, and Nelson Wenger of Manheim all are attempting to eliminate Johne's from their herds.

Widmann and Linde are a brother and sister team that farm Lindenhoff Farms, a registered Guernsey operation. They first discovered Johne's in their herd of 48 milking cows in April of 1983. A whole-herd test revealed that 16 out of the 42 were Johne's positive; that translates into 38 percent of the herd.

"The first thing we did was try to be present at the calvings," said Widmann. "We had a clean pen and clean cow, and the moment the calf dropped, we moved it to a clean stall. We hand strip the cow and feed the calf within 30 to 60 minutes. Thereafter we only feed whole-milk milk replacer."

Three weeks prior to calving, the cow is clipped at the tail, pins, udder, flank, and legs and moved to the clean pen. Newborns are placed under a heat lamp and rubbed with a towel, and as soon as they are dried, are placed into a hutch where they stay for two months.

In the summer of '84, Widmann and Linde had a 500-foot heifer barn constructed on a nearby hill. A Virginia-style enclosure, the heifer barn contains six pens in which the young stock stay until they are 12 months old. From there they are moved to another barn where they are watched for heats and bred.

"Any time we go to the calf barn we make sure our boots are washed off and that no manure is on them," said Widmann. "We also turn our sweatshirts inside out (when the newborns are moved) just in case germs might be on them."

The partners have been culling positive cows right from the start. Six of the original 16 were culled before the initial test results were completed. The other 10, for which Widmann and Linde received indemnity payments on nine, were sold immediately. The state only recognized nine of the 10 as positive and therefore eligible for indemnity. Using a tissue test of the ileo cecal valve, state officials received a negative result on one animal.

Every animal, six months and older, is tested twice a year. Positives are culled immediately. "We've done 11 whole-herd tests, and we've reduced the number (of positive animals) with each test," said Widmann. "On the last two tests, we had four positive animals. We didn't take the indemnity on them because of all the paperwork involved and because the farm could withstand (the loss) financially. We also didn't take it because we knew there were other farmers out there who needed it more."

Widmann and Linde are awaiting the results from their last test, anticipating that it may not reveal any positive animals.

"The economic loss is difficult to estimate," she said. Among the losses the pair had include selling cows for meat instead of dairy purchases, keeping low producers in order to cull Johne's positive cows, and lower milk production.

"Loss due to Johne's easily exceeds $50,000 over the last six years," Widmann commented.

His veterinarian diagnosed the first clinical case in the fall of 1985 and a whole-herd test was done nearly a year later. Although only one clinical case has been diagnosed in the past few years, he has culled more than 20 cows.

Like Widmann and Linde, Trimble has clean, freshly bedded maternity pens and he separates calves from cows as soon as possible. He too hand strips the cow and feeds the colostrum to the calf.

Trimble is very concerned about Johne's on both a private and a state level. "The economic losses attributed to Johne's disease are staggering," he stated. "If a farmer should have to disperse his Johne's-infected herd, it could mean financial ruin. The inability to sell registered dairy replacements, the genetic loss, and the losses of milk production all contribute to the wastage attributed to Johne's."

Trimble has called for the state to expand its testing facilities and indemnity program.

Nelson Wenger built an enviable herd of high-producing Holsteins only to have it invaded by Johne's. (Read the April 23, 1988 issue of Lancaster Farming for Wenger's complete story.)

He suspects the disease was introduced by a heifer that he purchased at a breed promotional sale in 1980.

Wenger culled the first Johne's positive animal in 1984 and another 10 during the next two years before he and his vet realized what was happening. A whole-herd test performed in December of 1986 resulted in 14 positive animals out of 62.

He discovered that Johne's was partly being spread from barnyard runoff when the family garden and the calf hutches traded places. The hutches had been located in a field on the lower side of the barn and runoff was traveling through the hutches. The calf hutches are now in no danger of barnyard runoff.

As the three other farmers, Wenger attends calvings and separates calves from cows immediately. He, too, takes the time to clean the cows and pens before calving.

Kubota Adds Articulated Wheel Loaders

COMPTON, CA. — Two new articulated wheel loaders, the R310 and R410, were recently added to Kubota Tractor Corporation's growing product line of compact machinery. Both offer the same quality and versatility as Kubota's original articulated wheel loader, the R400, but are equipped with additional features, making them ideal for construction, landscaping, plumbing, ranch, farm and nursery needs.

The two new models have a strong channel frame design and feature L.S.T. -- Load Sensing Transmission -- which automatically changes from high speed with low torque, to low speed with high torque as load conditions vary.

The R310 and R410 are each equipped with a liquid cooled, four-cylinder Super Five engine with a 26.6 HP and 39.5 HP, respectively. Both engines are designed for low noise and offer a self-bleeding fuel system. The R310 has a TVCS injection system.

Operating weight for the R310 is 4,895 pounds, with hydraulic lifting capacity of 1,630 pounds. At 6,070 pounds, the R410 offers 2,745 pounds of hydraulic lift.

These compact wheel loaders have four-wheel drive and fully articulated steering at angles of 41 degrees for the R310 and 40 degrees for the R410.

A three-pump system featuring auxiliary hydraulic ports keeps the wheel loaders' power steering, loader operation and load sensing transmission running smoothly.

The front and rear quick-attach systems make it easy to use attachments to maximize the wheel loaders' efficiency and versatility. Diverse attachments include a backhoe, a three-point hitch and box scraper, pallet forks, ROPs and several buckets. A sweeper broom and hydraulic augers are also available for use with the R310 and R410.

Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a complete line of tractors from 10 to 85 PTO horsepower, along with a variety of performance matched implements, compact construction equipment and consumer products.

The R310 and R410 articulated wheel loaders are available through authorized Kubota construction equipment dealers. For more information about these or other Kubota products, please contact Kubota Tractor Corporation at 550 W. Artesia Boulevard, Compton, California, 90220.

Kubota's new articulated wheel loaders are ideal for a variety of construction, nursery, landscaping, plumbing, ranch, and farm jobs.

Cargill Pilot Plant Assists Product Testing

ELK RIVER, MN — Cargill's molasses liquid products division recently completed a pilot plant here that allows liquid feed products to be manufactured and evaluated on a small scale before they are approved for production and distribution.

David Jarrett, pilot-plant manager for the division, said the $200,000 facility has 4,000 square feet and includes office space, a product laboratory, storage for ingredients and a specially designed, small-scale mixer that simulates mixers in Cargill's 16 U.S. liquid-molasses production facilities.

The pilot plant is an addition to Cargill's Research Farm, making it possible to conduct livestock feeding trials with the division's products.

"The pilot plant is the only facility in the industry where we can mix and evaluate products after they are produced in a research lab but before they are manufactured in large quantities at our production plants.

"Products often react differently when produced in large quantities than they do in a small research beaker. Our mixer can handle 500-pound to 1-ton quantities of liquid products, so we can determine with considerable accuracy how products will react in mixers that handle up to 25 tons," Jarrett said.

The evaluations include product handling and storage qualities, plus product stability and equipment performance under extreme climate conditions.

"We can drop the air temperature to 20 degrees below zero or raise it to 100 degrees above with 90 percent humidity to see how products and equipment react," said Jarrett.

The technical staff conducts tests on equipment such as pumps, mixers, recirculation and heating systems. The plant's one-ton mixing capability also makes production of many products for small-scale feeding trials more efficient, Jarrett said.

Cargill's molasses liquid products division now markets Mol-Mix liquid supplements for feed dealers and dairy and beef producers, and Car-Mil liquid feed ingredients for feed manufacturers and large feedlots.

Spring Red and White Holstein Sale Averages $1613

BY MARIANNE WALKER
Center Co. Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Although the 11th International Spring Red & White Holstein Sale was indeed a success, it began on a solemn note. Elmer Carpenter, a Holstein breeder and accomplished artist from Crystal Springs, offered a painting of Red and White Holsteins prior to the auction. The artwork sold for $1,100 to a 13-member syndicate from Canada, who purchased the painting in memory of Don Albrecht, a Red and White Holstein enthusiast who recently was killed in an automobile accident while in Australia. Albrecht was well known to Red and White breeders as a man who did much to promote the Red and White breed in Canada and the United States. After a moment of silence in Albrecht's memory, the sale got under way with David Rama of Delhi, N.Y., at the auction block.

Topping the sale was Audets Caveman Judy-Red, a VG-89 with a VG mammary. Born in 1983, she is sired by Howard-Home Caveman-Red and her dam is C Magnetic Jeny Jetstar-Red, who in her second year produced 19,460M with 720F. Audets Caveman Judy had 18,907M and 4.1 percent fat as a four-year-old, and she placed first in last year's International Spring Red & White Show. She was consigned by Audets Holsteins of Orwell, Vt., and purchased by Blackcrest Farms and David Hileman of Altoona for the sale high of $6,800.

Going for $6,600 to Bassett Farms of Cambridge, Vt., was Whittington Promotional-Red, an offering of the Whittington Sisters of Sabina, Ohio. This August, 1988, heifer's maternal sister scored GP-83, milking 73 pounds with 4.3 percent fat and 3.2 percent protein. Another maternal sister topped the 1988 Internation Red and White Sale at $7,500. Her sire is Dubras Promotion-Red, and her dam is Whittington Enhancer 360, a VG-87 with an EX mammmary and a first-year production record of 28,890M and 911F.

Cherie Whittington of Sabina, Ohio, purchased the third-high selling cow from John S. Burket of East Freedom. Burket-Falls DF Sidra-Red-ET sold to Whittington for a final price of $4,400. Sired by Dubras Formation-ET-Red, who is in service at CIAQ Inc. of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, her dam is Burket-Falls Sylvia-ET. Sylvia had a high test day at 127 pounds, 4.3 percent fat and has four VG full sisters and three full brothers in A.I.

Going for a final bid of $3,900 to Glen Yousey of Lowville, N.Y., was Waterpoint Centra Gail-Red—ET, consigned by Waterpoint Farms of Springfield Center, N.Y. This December heifer is sired by LWS Centra-Red-Twin out of C Albrecht Goldust-Red-ET, whose maternal sister, Albrecht Valiant Goldie (VG-87) had a third-year production of 33,666M, 1096F and has three sons in A.I.

An Enhancer daughter, Pen-Col Enhancer Lindsey-Red, was offered by Stonehurst Farm Inc. and purchased for a final bid of $3,600. Bred in December to LWS Centra-Red-Twin, she is the daughter of Pen-Col Fagin Lisa-ET, a VG-85.

Spring Farm Inc. of Brampton, Ontario, consigned a three-year-old, Spring Farm Scarlet-ET-Red, that sold for $3,350 to Brenda Eberly of Jeromeville, Ohio. Scarlet is an Agro Acres Marquis Ned daughter out of Spring Farm Citation Rosa. Rosa holds a lifetime production record of 115,159M and 3.9 percent fat.

Autumn-Ridge-Z Cave Wendy-Red, consigned by Glen Yousey, brought $3,250 from Bassett Farms. The April, 1988, heifer is out of Song-Meadow T T Wendy-Red, whose fifth-year record was 28,687M and 4.6 percent fat on 287 days, 3x. The heifer is sired by Howard-Home Caveman-Red.

Leon S. Rhodes of Harrisonburg, Va., put in the final bid of $3,000 for Blackcrest Valiant Star Di-Red. Consigned by Blackcrest Farms of Altoona, Star Di is yearling daughter of Poverty-Hollow Valiant Star. Her dam, Blackcrest Darla Threat-Red, has a lifetime record of 126,693M and 3.7 percent fat.

Selling with an embryo guarantee was S&K T Threat Alice-Red-Twin, who was consigned by Alice Syndicate of Fairbury, Ill. Purchased for $3,000, she has produced 43 good embryos in three flushes, with the embryos being sold to West German producers. This 1981 cow has a lifetime record of 4.8 percent fat and 3.4 percent protein. She is sired by Hanover-Hill Triple Threat, and her dam is S&K Adora Faithful-Red, a VG-85 with a VG mammary.

A final bid of $2,700 sealed the purchase of Atumn-Ridge-Z

Chesapeake Bay Programs Open To Farms In Dauphin County

DAUPHIN — The Chesapeake Bay Program is becoming a familiar term to many local farmers. To date, participation within Dauphin County in the Chesapeake Bay Program's Agricultural Non-Point Source Pollution Financial Assistance Program has been limited to a number of farms within the Conewago Creek Watershed. Now, the eligible watershed area has been expanded to include the entire portion of Dauphin County north of Peters Mountain and the Swatara Creek Watershed as well as the Conewago Creek Watershed. The Swatara Creek Watershed includes all lands which drain into the Swatara, Beaver, and Manada Creeks as well as their tributaries.

Farmers may apply for financial assistance for installing nutrient management and conservation practices. To be eligible for the Financial Assistance Program, landowners must meet the following conditions:

1. Must be a landowner in the Dauphin County portions of the Upper Dauphin, Swatara Creek or Conewago Creek Watersheds.
2. Must have critical nutrient and/or soil erosion problem(s) on the farm in these Watersheds.
3. Must be a "Cooperator" with the Dauphin County Conservation District.
4. Must be willing to enter into a 1 to 2 year agreement designed to solve the critical nutrient and/or soil erosion problems on the farm.

Signing up for the Financial Assistance Program does not guarantee approval in the program. Only those landowners with serious nutrient and/or soil erosion problems on their farm may be approved.

Landowner participation in this program is on a voluntary basis. The maximum cost-share rates available are eighty percent (80%) of the costs for certain practices not to exceed $30,000 per landowner. For this fiscal year funds allocated to Dauphin County have been limited to $60,000, as the program has been expanded into 20 counties.

The sign-up period for this program is March 10, 1989 through April 10, 1989. All requests to participate must be completed and filed during this period with the Dauphin County Conservation District, at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center, 1451 Peters Mountain Road, Route 225, Dauphin. Staff will be available from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to assist with sign-up applications. One evening sign-up time is scheduled for Thursday, March 23, 1989 from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., at the same address.

The ultimate goal of the program is to reduce the amount of nitrogen, phosphorus and sediment entering the Susquehanna River and eventually the Chesapeake Bay. Agricultural runoff has been identified as the major source of these nutrients and sediment. Two of the primary benefits of the Chesapeake Bay Program to the residents of Dauphin County will be improved stream quality and reduced risk of groundwater contamination.

For further information please contact Paul Mauger, nutrient management specialist for the Dauphin County Conservation District, at 717/921-8100, or visit the office during the above hours.

Consigned by Mark Yeazel of Eaton was yet another Promotion daughter, Ja-Bob Promotion Hannah-Red-ET, a November heifer. Selling for $2,500, Hannah is out of Ja-Bob Kid Hanna-Red-ET, who is a full sister to three A.I. bulls and a maternal sister to eight A.I. bulls.

Also selling for $2,500 was Miss Autumn-Ridge Kid Lara-Red, who sold bred to Needle-Lane. She was consigned by Fair Hill Farms of Chestertown, Md., and is sired by Hi-De-Ho Sunset Kid-Red. her dam is Autumn-Ridge Enhancer Larl-Red, a VG-85 with VG mammary.

The sale average on 115 lots was $1,613. The sale was preceded by an auction of donated semen, with Kenneth D. Myer of Elizabethtown serving as the auctioneer. Other sales officials included John Carpenter, Don Welk, Virgil Bushey, Sam Yoder, and Mike Carpenter, who read the pedigrees.

The High Cost Of A Low-Input Strategy

ATLANTA, GA — Conventional crop production practices are coming under increasing pressure. State and federal governments and environmental groups are concerned with protecting the environment, especially groundwater. Congress has given the USDA a mandate to pursue programs of low-input crop production systems. The thrust of the USDA effort has developed into the study and promotion of organic farming concepts, called LISA, an acronym for Low-Input Sustainable Agriculture.

The prime objectives of the LISA program are to reduce fertilizer and pesticide use, grow forage legumes in rotation with all grain crops, and diversity cash grain farms to livestock/grain farms. Some of these organic farming practices are beneficial, especially for the small livestock farmer. However, the introduction of unresearched low-input practices into mainstream agriculture could be at a high cost to farmers, to the total agricultural economy and to the environment.

Studies at universities in the Midwest have shown that the widespread adoption of organic farming practices would reduce crop yields 15 to 25 percent. These studies also indicate that the supplies of corn and wheat available for export would be reduced to 25 percent of present levels. Saving money on inputs becomes a high cost to farmers as lower yields lead to lower profits. The key is to focus on reducing costs per unit of production, not necessarily on costs per acre.

Low-input systems have the high cost of greater environmental risks.

Contrary to a common perception, animal manures and legumes produce higher risks of leaching nitrate-nitrogen to the groundwater than with commercial fertilizer. Some of the most serious environmental problems associated with agriculture have resulted from storing and application of animal manures. Recent Michigan research reported that more than six times as much nitrate-nitrogen accumulated at the 5-foot depth in soils under growing corn following alfalfa, and nearly five times as much from manure use than from applied fertilizer.

The environmental benefits claimed for low-input systems are not supported by scientific evidence.

Low-input systems lead to a high cost food supply. There is no new land. Reduced yields in low-input systems will decrease the total productive capacity of the U.S.A. and threaten world food supplies which have depended on this country as a stable source. Maintaining total production in low-input systems will require bringing into production millions of acres of less desirable soils with a higher potential for erosion. The result would be higher food prices as reserve grain stocks disappear.

We must maintain the U.S. agricultural productive capacity and competitive position as a supplier of high-quality products in a world market. Sustaining our agricultural productivity does not involve radically changing the system, but rather continued improvement of production agriculture through development and implementation of best management practices.

Chicken Production Running Strong On Delmarva

ANNAPOLIS, MD. — Chicken growers on Delmarva continue to place more birds per week than they did a year ago according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service.

For the first 11 weeks of 1989 (through March 18th) growers had placed over 10 million chickens per week and have exceeded the year before weekly totals for nine of the 11 weeks.

The year's highest weekly placement came during the week ended February 25th, when an estimated 10,617,000 day-old chicks were placed in grow out houses on Demarva.

It's good business for farmers as the average price received per pound was up 40 percent in January and 37 percent in February.

Caring For Pasture During Dry Times

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Even after a dry winter, dairy farmers can put their cows to pasture, according to Dr. Gerald Jung and Dr. William Stout, research agronomists at Penn State's U.S. Regional Pasture Research Laboratory. "The extent to which dry weather affects herbage production depends on the water-holding capacity of soil, grazing management, and the species of grass being grazed," Jung said.

Soil type is the least controllable element, according to Jung and Stout. "If you have shallow, shaley, or sandy soil, there's not much you can do in dry weather because it won't hold much water," Jung noted. "You'd need frequent rains to keep your pasture plants growing."

But for farmers with better-quality soil, Jung and Stout say a few practices will help improve pasture production during dry seasons. Dairy farmers should rotate their cows throughout their pastures more often than they would in wet weather. Rotation gives plants a chance to grow new tillers, or shoots, in order to produce more leaves and roots.

However, in wet spring weather, light grazing may reduce the quality of a pasture. Plants that are left to grow too long will produce new flower heads. Once plants are allowed to bloom and go to seed, they produce fewer new leaves. "It is important to keep the grass in a vegetative growth stage," commented Jung. "Just as one should do with a well-kept lawn, farmers shouldn't allow their grass to grow flower heads.

"It's also a good practice to rotate grazing in pasture to keep plants growing new roots," said Jung. The more roots a plant has, the more water it can collect from the soil. Continuous heavy grazing results in smaller root systems because there is insufficient energy in the plants for root production.

Jung and Stout note that the species of grass can be important. "Is the grass shallow rooted like timothy or deep rooted like bromegrass?" Jung questioned. "There also are big differences in water use of different grasses. Native warm-season perennial grasses such as switchgrass and bluestem are very efficient users of water. They produce much more grass per inch of precipitation than do most cool-season grasses.

"According to data that we collected in Pennsylvania, some of the forage grasses are showing a lot of potential for resisting dry weather," he added. "We've found drought-resistant grasses for both cool and warm seasons."

One cool-season grass is from New Zealand called Matua Prairie Grass. Similar to a perennial bromegrass, it yielded six cuttings last summer during test trials. Other drought-resistant native grasses such as switchgrass and big bluestem can substantially reduce the risks a farmer faces in dry weather.

Jung, Stout, and other researchers in Penn State's College of Agriculture have been investigating ways to lower dairy and animal production costs by utilizing pasture. During the last 30 years, farmers have been reluctant to feed their cows from pasture because of the difficulty in controlling a cow's diet and the expense of erecting fences. However, because of rising costs of silage and grain storage, new developments in portable electric fences and improved methods in testing forage quality, many farmers have been using their fields to graze cows instead of using these field to harvest fodder.

MDA Offers Records Wallet For Exhibitors

ANNAPOLIS, MD — The people who enter animals at the state's many fairs and shows this year are going to have an easier time of it thanks to the Animal Health Section of the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) which has prepared a handy records wallet for exhibitors.

"We thought we'd provide a quality folder for animal health records so exhibitors could keep them handy and secure," says MDA's State Veterinarian Dr. Henry A. Virts.

Besides being a handy way of keeping the important health certificates together, the folder gives a list of before and after do's and don'ts for exhibitors and explains the basic rules of complying with animal health regulations at fairs and shows.

Each year, some 100 fairs and horse shows are held throughout the state and each requires proper papers on hand for each animal exhibited. This involves papers on about 12,000 animals each year.

Copies of the records wallet can be obtained at the 24 offices of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service in the state. Inspection copies may be obtained by contacting the Animal Health Section of MDA at the following telephone numbers:

Take Care When Working Around Batteries

COLLEGE PARK, MD — With the advent of the hard topped lower maintenance battery we have been somewhat lulled into the belief that they require no effort to maintain and will cause no harm. However, this is not always true.

A 6-volt battery exploded during normal cranking of a tractor engine with no boosting taking place. A 12-volt had been on charge inside a machine shed and was being removed from its location along the side of a 3-ton truck frame. Evidently a spark from a wrench set off the accumulated hydrogen gas produced by the charging.

In addition to the operator being showered with acid which can cause serious eye damage and skin burns, the shotgun-like noise level associated with the blast of an exploding battery can cause hearing damage. Unfortunately one is usually in close range looking at the electrolyte level of undoing a clamp when the explosion occurs making eyes and ears vulnerable.

If eyes do get sprayed with acid, flushing with water as fast as possible is the best action, and a doctor should be consulted as quickly as possible.

When working with batteries remember to treat a charging or recently charged battery like a potential explosive and try to do the following:

- Hookup and unhook boosters to the "dead" battery last (if there "is" a spark there shouldn't be hydrogen present).
- Keep polarities straight when boosting. (Some people like to make the final connection of the ground clamp at the dead vehicle by attaching it to the frame or bumper well away from the battery area.)
- When cranking an engine with a heavy amp draw stand back from the battery in case of an internal battery short.
- Charge a battery in a ventilated area if possible to reduce hydrogen gas buildup.
- To remove a battery try to avoid a spark with the wrench or your ring and remove the ground cable first.

Farm Vacation Directory Offered

HARRISBURG — The 1989 edition of the Pennsylvania Farm Vacation Directory is now available at Rep. John Barley's district offices.

The program offers state residents an opportunity for a summer vacation at a number of family farms.

The brochure contains descriptions, accommodations and rates for 32 farms.

Barley said the vacation farms offer all kinds of attractions including: livestock and poultry; swimming or boating on a farm pond, creek or swimming pool; horseback riding; hiking; and abundant quantities of wild game, antiques and country stores.

The program is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farm Vacation Association in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture.

Free brochures can be obtained by writing to one of Barley's district offices at 8 Marticville Road, Suite A, Lancaster, Pa. 17603 or 680-B Robert Fulton Highway, Quarryville, Pa. 17566. The telephone numbers are 394-3916 (Lancaster) and 786-4551 (Quarryville).

Farm Essentials.

Cows. Crops. And a Scavenger® spreader. The three essentials for higher productivity and a more successful farm operation.

Manure is money.
According to ag experts at the University of Missouri, the average dairy cow produces 70 pounds of manure every day—up to 13 tons a year. Worth about $5.00/ton, that equates to $65.00 per cow a year. If you own a 60-head herd that's almost $4,000 of free fertilizer. And in today's farm environment that adds up to big savings.

Scavenger—good to your crops, good to you.
To get the most from your manure you need a spreader to efficiently manage manure. A spreader that works with you. A spreader designed and built for today's farming. You need a Scavenger.

Scavenger loads quickly and spreads fast. And thanks to advanced engineering, Scavenger spreads all kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. But more importantly, Scavenger's patented moveable square-auger and Variflo discharge combine to let you choose your optimum rate of application—from top dressing to heavy springtime spreading. You get the kind of spreads your crops need—nice and even, without damaging "hotspots". With Scavenger, your crops receive the essential nutrients to produce better yields.

See Scavenger for yourself.
Don't be misled by claims of other manufacturer's spreaders that say they do it all. See Scavenger for yourself and compare actual capabilities. We think you'll find your choice obvious—you'll choose Scavenger®.

For a firsthand look at Scavenger, see your local Hedlund/Martin dealer. Or for more information write: Hedlund/Martin, Inc., A Gehl Company, 741 Kutztown Road, Myerstown, PA 17067. Telephone: 717-933-4151

Burn The Beans And Brown The Hay!

BY GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, De. — Cooks relax! Burning food on the stove is not quite as bad as it smells sometimes! That is, when it comes to feeding cows and calves! We used to warn against hay going too moist into the mow and burning. Well, it still may set the barn on fire; but the fact that hay caramelizes, is not as bad as we used to think. What was called unavailable protein because of overheating is now recognized as by-pass advantage in the rumen.

To have a portion of total feed protein unavailable in the rumen and thus by-passing it, is actually an advantage to our cows, calves, sheep and goats. More protein will reach the lower intestines for true digestion and utilization, instead of being wasted as ammonia gas in the rumen from readily fermentable protein.

Researchers in Nebraska found that heating hay with soybean oil meal caused certain plant sugars to react with the amino acids of proteins on heating, which equals caramelization. The proteins in soybean oil meal become protected against degradation in the rumen; that is, they become unavailable or by-pass. When the sugar xylose was used with soybean oil meal, its by-pass percentage was increased 2.5 times. Xylose is normally part of hemicellulose in plants, thus a part of fiber. Good sources are corn cobs and most sulfite liquor from the wood pulping paper industry.

Digestion trials on beef and lambs and subsequent tests on milking cows with such heat- and xylose-treated soybean oil meal showed that not only more by-pass protein was digested, but also that less soybean oil meal should do the same job when "burnt."

Two rations were tried on the milking cows, one contained 16 percent protein and had regular soybean oil meal. The other ration had half of the soybean oil meal content of the first, thus testing only 13.2 percent protein, but the soybean oil meal was "burnt."

What would the cows say about this? Would it be the same that we would say when we come home for dinner and the kitchen has that burnt fragrance in the air and the dear cook is in tears?

No, no! The cows seem to know about the built-in value of caramelizing food! It appears that cows know instinctively that instead of feeding and wasting proteins on their rumen bugs, they now get more out of this food themselves later on in their guts. Therefore they are not upset about "burnt" feed. In fact, they appear rather happy about it and reward us with more milk.

In the Nebraska experiments, fresh cows were fed for 12 weeks one of the two rations, besides corn silage and hay, equally. Cows readily ate either ration. The cows fed regular soybean oil meal in the 16 percent supplement averaged 84.4 pounds of milk on a 3.5 percent fat-corrected basis. But the cows fed the heat-treated soybean oil meal in the 13.2 percent supplement averaged 84.2 pounds of milk. Thus, results showed that similar milk production can be obtained when regular soybean oil meal is replaced with one-half as much protein from heat-treated soybean meal, thus providing equal amounts of by-pass protein.

From an economic point of view, feeding half as much soybean oil meal when heat-treated, reduced grain supplement costs by $13 to $26 per ton under current prices—and added much more than cost of heat treatment to the value of the supplement.

Thus, it seems that "burnt" beans and "brown" hay aren't so bad after all, especially when scientists are catching up with what cows knew all along.

DeKalb-Pfizer Releases New Products

DeKALB, IL — Regional sales managers and agronomists of DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics met at the company's international headquarters in DeKalb, Ill., for the announcement of new seed products for the 1989 growing season. This year, the company is releasing four new corn hybrids for the central Corn Belt, four corn hybrids for specific regional markets, three new soybean varieties, and one grain sorghum hybrid.

The new product launch involved company representatives from across the country. In all, 15 agronomists and 12 regional sales managers attended this year's sales launch. Representing DeKalb-Pfizer's Agway Sales Region were regional sales manager Mike Spyker of York, and agronomist Tom Hall of State College.

DeKalb-Pfizer sales managers and agronomists assist the company's dealers and customers throughout the year, but they also play an important role in the product advancement process. Sales managers help interpret the specific needs of their customers, and agronomists supervise the on-farm field tests and help evaluate all experimental products.

All new products undergo several years of research testing and an additional one or two years of widespread field tests in the company's Field Analysis Comparison Trial (FACT) program. However, according to Dick Bohling, DeKalb-Pfizer's agronomic services manager, this year's new releases had an additional test: the 1988 drought. "Our products typically experience some drought stress during the many years of testing, but it's unusual to have a drought as severe as last summer's," said Bohling. "This year's new products came through the drought like champs."

DeKalb-Pfizer is an international researcher, developer and marketer of hybrid corn, sorghum and sunflower seed, and of varietal soybean and alfalfa seed. The company is headquartered in DeKalb, Ill., with area sales offices in Indianapolis, Atlanta, and Ames, Iowa. Its regional sales offices are located throughout the country.

Manure Spreader Calibration Demonstration Day Planned

BURNHAM (Mifflin) — Manure spreader calibration demonstration day is coming! On Tuesday, April 11, at 11 a.m., the Mifflin County Conservation District, in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service and the Cooperative Extension Service, will hold the demonstration at the James Hostetter farm in Ferguson Valley.

Most farmers know that the manure their animals produce has value as fertilizer. However, when they spread that manure on their fields, a lot of farmers don't know how much goes on each acre, nor how much nutrient value it has.

The demonstration, partially sponsored and funded by DER's Chesapeake Bay Program, will help farmers get a "feel" for more effective, controlled spreading. This will forge an added link in the chain of management practices that will reduce the amount of nutrients getting into waterways.

Several plots will be laid out and spread in advance with liquid and with solid manure at known rates. Farmers will have a chance to test their own estimating ability by observing these plots, and several small prizes will be given for the best estimates.

Liquid, semi-solid and solid manure spreaders will demonstrate how to calibrate one's own spreading equipment, using a simple mechanical process that follows Extension and DER guidelines.

DER's mobile nutrient testing laboratory will be on hand all day. Lab personnel will explain the manure analysis process and what it reveals about nutrient content.

Dave Filson, extension county agent, will guide discussion and explain the spreader calibration demonstration, and there will be plenty of time for questions.

A number of useful publications will be given out.

Raindate is Thursday, April 13th.

The Hostetter farm is on Ferguson Valley Road, in Oliver Township, approximately 8.7 miles west of Burnham.

Professor Receives 4-H Distinguished Service Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Dr. U.B. Bakker, Penn State associate professor of agricultural extension education, received a 1989 4-H Distinguished Service Award at the annual Pennsylvania 4-H awards banquet in February. The award is presented by the Pennsylvania Association of Extension 4-H Agents, which is coordinated by Penn State Cooperative Extension. Bakker also will be honored at the national 4-H meting in November.

Bakker provides leadership in 4-H programs such as citizenship, international 4-H, agricultural engineering, and energy. He also is the liaison for Pennsylvania's 4-H northeast region.

From 1983 through 1988, Bakker obtained more than $150,000 to develop and implement 4-H international exchange programs. As a result of his work, he was invited to assist Japan, Trinidad, and Tobago in their 4-H programs. In 1981, Bakker obtained $102,000 to develop and implement a multi-year, multi-state 4-H energy program. In recognition of his work with this program, Bakker received the 1983 American Society of Agricultural Engineers Blue Ribbon Award. The award-winning energy program has a current enrollment of more than 100,000 4-H'ers in 26 states.

Bakker is a member of the national and Pennsylvania associations of 4-H extenions agents and the American Society for Agricultural Engineers. He also is the chairman of the National 4-H Japan Exchange Committee. He is an advisor to the Penn State Collegiate 4-H Club and Circle K Club, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Pennsylvania International 4-H Youth Exchange Alumni Association, and the Energy Workshop Committee, a subcommittee of the National Extension Committee on Policy.

Bakker received bachelor's and master's degrees in agricultural engineering from Ankara University in Turkey. He received master's and doctoral degrees in extension and adult education from Cornell University.

Meeting On Tax Reform Referendum Set

HUMMELSTOWN (Dauphin) — Senator John Shumaker from Dauphin County, Senator David Brightbill from Lebanon County, and Al Myers, the head of government relations for the Pennsylvania Farmers Assoication will explain and outline the pros and cons of the Tax Reform Referendum at a meeting to be held on Monday, April 10, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Lower Dauphin High School auditorium. The Lower Dauphin Young Farmer chapter is sponsoring the meeting, which is open to the general public.

The referendum, which will be voted upon during the May 16 primary, will change the way local taxes are levied. It will allow local governments more flexibility in the various ways they raise revenue. Among the taxes affected may be the property tax, per capita tax, and the occupation tax.

Myers from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, which supports the referendum, will outline what the tax reform package is all about. Senator Shumaker then will speak for the referendum and Senator Brightbill will speak against it. Questions from the public will be welcome.

Maryland Farm Families Needed To Host Russian Ag Students

ANNAPOLIS, MD — The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA), Maryland Farm Bureau (MFB), and other ag organizations are looking for families to host agricultural students from Russia this year as part of an exchange program.

If enough farm family hosts are found, as many as 30 students age 19-23 would spend two to three months in Maryland this summer working on farms and learning American ways.

The exchange program is an outgrowth of a cultural exchange agreement signed by former President Ronald Reagan and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. Also being recruited are Maryland ag students who would be interested in spending a summer in Russia on farms.

Host families would be required to provide room and board for the exchange students and be encouraged to hire them to provide the visitors with pocket money. Transportation expenses to and from the United States will be paid by the students.

Commenting on the program, Robert L. Walker, deputy secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, said, "the exchange allows young agriculturalists to gain a first-hand knowledge of the people and methods of farming in both the Soviet Union and the United States. It's a people to people exchange that allows hosts to learn from the guests as well."

Walker of MDA and Elmer White of MFB are coordinating the program with officials of the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

According to Walker, host families in Maryland need not be able to speak Russian as students in Russia selected for the program will have a working knowledge of English.

"American students interested in going to Russia don't have to know Russian," he says, "because they will be given some Russian language instruction in the Soviet Union."

Anyone interested in being a Maryland host for a Russian ag student, or in going to Russia as an exchange ag student for the summer is asked to contact Walker at 301/841-5881 or White at the Maryland Farm Bureau, 301/922-3426.

New York Grange Calls For Government To Control Spending

CORTLAND, NY — As state and federal officials prepare their annual budgets, the New York State Grange is again calling on local, state and federal governments to control expenditures to ease the property tax burden faced by state residents.

"Residents of this state are faced with ever increasing property taxes and the fault lies primarily with the governments which are unable or unwilling to act with fiscal conservativism," Bert S. Morse, master of the state Grange, said today.

Morse was particularly critical of steps taken by state and federal governments in recent years to shift the burden of funding public services to counties, cities, towns and villages.

He said it is unfair for the state and federal governments to cut their own budgets by passing their financial troubles on to local governments which are already overburdened.

"The Grange continues to be concerned that no action seems to be taken to at least hold taxes to their current level," Morse said from the Cortland headquarters of the state Grange.

He said economic growth in recent years has expanded the tax base and governments should be able to use this additional revenue to pay for increased expenses without having to raise taxes.

The state Grange is also opposed to governments borrowing to pay for capital projects. Morse said fiscal foresight would enable governments to plan ahead for such expenses and borrowing should be kept to a minimum.

The state Grange is an agricultural and rural affairs organization with 457 Granges in 52 counties within New York State.

Jersey Boards Endorse Protein Emphasis

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — In keeping with its philosophy of producing for the marketplace, The American Jersey Cattle Club Board of Directors, at its spring meetings March 19-21 in Reynoldsburg, Ohio, adopted a position statement strongly encouraging greater emphasis on the production of protein by dairy producers.

In addition, the AJCC Board endorsed the milk marketing policy statement of the National All-Jersey Board of Directors on March 18 as an integral part of its own policy statement.

The AJCC statement reads as follows:

"The American Jersey Cattle Club Board of Directors:

• recognizing U.S. consumer preferences and dairy product purchases of increasing amounts of lower fat dairy products, and

• noting projections for decreasing consumption of butterfat by consumers, and

• in order to encourage Jersey milk producers to respond to these market trends, supports the following:

a. increasing yield of protein per cow through selection and management for total pounds of protein;

b. achieving a breed m.e. average of 650 lbs. total protein (or the equivalent level expressed as true protein) by the year 2000;

c. recognizing outstanding production by Jersey cows on the basis of protein;

d. publishing the USDA summaries for the Active AI sires ranked by PTA protein;

e. giving priority to encouraging and funding research to provide useful information on protein as it relates to genetics, nutrition and manufacturing;

f. rejecting the concept of combined fat and protein (CFP) as a sire selection tool, as protein and fat do not have equal value in the marketplace.

"This Board fully endorses the March, 1989 Milk Marketing Policy of National All-Jersey Inc.

"This position statement is consistent with the long-held philosophy of The American Jersey Cattle Club Board of Directors that long-term profitability will be strengthened when the dairy industry produces in greatest quantity those products preferred and purchased by the U.S. consumer."

Related Action

The Performance Committee of the AJCC Board adopted program changes to issue Hall of Fame certificates for cows producing 20,000 lbs. milk or 750 lbs. protein (deleting Hall of Fame recognition for fat production); recognizing the top 25" of cows on DHIR test ranked by protein; publishing the Jersey Active AI Sire List sorted by Predicted Transmitting Ability — Protein; and consulting with geneticists regarding the traits and weights to be used in the Production Type Index (PTI) for ranking Jersey sires.

NAJ Board Policy Updated

The National All-Jersey Board of Directors met March 18, and approved revisions to its Milk Marketing Policy. The complete text is as follows:

"There are many positive aspects in the dairy industry. Commercial disappearance of dairy products continues to increase each year. All milk producers are participating in dairy promotion and research funding that exceeds $200 million annually.

More milk producers are receiving equitable milk pricing. According to a USDA report, over 50% of all milk marketed in the U.S. is eligible for Multiple Component Pricing. One Federal Milk Marketing Order, the Great Basin, has successfully implemented Multiple Component Pricing. Other Federal Milk Market Orders are considering similar plans.

To continue this positive trend, National All-Jersey Inc. strongly supports and urges the dairy industry to support the following:

1. Changing the milk pricing system used by Federal Milk Marketing Orders to one which will price milk based on its most valuable components in accordance with their use in consumer products.

2. Continued implementation of Multiple Component Pricing by individual plants and cooperatives.

3. Increasing the minimum solids-not-fat standards for fluid milk.

4. Continued endorsement of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board.

5. That increases and decreases in the milk support price be placed on nonfat solids and butterfat in relation to consumer purchases and preferences."

The American Jersey Cattle Club was established in 1868 to improve and promote the Jersey breed of cattle in the United States. National All-Jersey Inc. is its milk marketing arm. Both organizations have independent Boards of Directors which confer through a Joint Operations Committee. Both organizations are headquartered in new offices at 6486 E. Main Street in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Slide Program Offered On Pesticide Use

HARRISBURG — Two audio-visual programs about the proper farm use of pesticides are available from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff announced recently.

The slide and tape programs, "Integrated Pest Management" and "Pesticide Safety for the Private Applicator," can be borrowed for viewing from any of the Agriculture Department's seven regional offices.

"These programs help producers understand the value and responsibilities of pesticide use," Wolff said. "People who view the programs will learn more about protecting themselves, their families, their crops, and the environment while using pesticides.

"Farmers can then limit their purchases of pesticide and save money," he continued. "Integrated pest management can help our producers begin to measure their pest control needs and avoid over-applications that can reduce profits and harm the environment."

The 20-minute slide presentations were produced in cooperation with the Department of Environmental Resources with funding from Pennsylvania's Chesapeake Bay Program.

Wolff said the audio-visual programs will help prevent over-application and they can produce changes that will result in savings and new profits for farmers.

"When it comes to pesticides, some people have been buying and using more than they need," Wolff said.

The programs are well suited for meetings of agricultural organizations, and they also are available to individual farmers.

Interested individuals and organizations can contact the Department of Agriculture's regional offices or they can call the Bureau of Plant Industry through the department's toll-free number, 800/AG-PENNA.

CHORE-TIME® MEAL-TIME® feeding system

- The only feeder you'll never need to adjust
- Feeds "meals" to save 5% to 20% of your feed
- Competitively priced with ordinary feeders

The MEAL-TIME® system gives hogs time between meals to digest feed thoroughly so feed is fully utilized.

The MEAL-TIME® system has been proven in both university and farm trials to boost feed conversion, save water waste, cut labor requirements, and provide more profit potential per hog.

CHORE-TIME® sow feeding system

Take The Hustle And Bustle Out Of Sow Feeding

- Saves Labor. No more hand feeding. Each time you feed, trip one lever to feed all sows at once. By using an optional time clock and automatic tripper, you can feed your sows - without being there.
- Saves Feed. With hand feeding, there's a natural tendency to over feed. This system dispenses an accurate, controlled amount each time to each sow. Feeding sows based on litter size during farrowing can also help you to realize additonal feed savings.

2 Drop Feeders to choose from Chore-Time's galvanized steel Drop Feeder (top) holds up to 6¼ * lbs. of dry, ground feed. Larger, polyethylene plastic Drop Feeder (bottom) holds up to 10* lbs. and can be used with high moisture corn feeds
* Weights are based on feed density of 40 lbs per cubic foot

- Bigger, Healthier Litters. Whether you're feeding sows during gestation or farrowing. Chore-Time's Sow Feeding System allows you to control the amount of feed they consume - keeping your sows in better condition The system also can eliminate feeding stress caused by hand feeding. The result: an extra 2 pigs per sow per year.
- Longer Sow Productive Life. Keeping sows in better condition means keeping them longer to get more litters.
- Longer Equipment Life. Each sow eats peacefully, so you can eliminate fighting and wear and tear on equipment.

CHORE-TIME® Baby Pig Saver™

Liquid Feeding System Designed For Automatically Feeding Pre-Nursery Age Pigs

A New Idea That Can Let You Cut 80% Of Baby Pig Losses.

Up to 10 pigs - not more than 10 - can be placed on this feeder until old enough to digest dry feed without scouring: about 3 or 4 weeks of age. We do not recommend placing pigs less than 2 to 4 days of age on the feeder. Pigs must have sow's colostrum before going on the feeder.

Cheshire Pony Club Wins Knowdown

DANVILLE (Montour) — Hard work and dedication paid off Saturday, March 18, when three of Mr. Stewart's Cheshire Foxhounds Pony Club teams won two firsts and a fourth in the Eastern Pa. Regional Knowdown qualifying rounds. This is an academic team competition answering questions on horse sports, veterinary knowledge, conformation, horsemanship and stable management.

The Senior "C" team soundly won the final competition plus the daily high point plaque with 470 points. Karen Provinski and Melissa Williams of Cheshire Pony Club joined Meredith Narcum and Darlene Phillips of Five Mountains Pony Club to make up the winning team, which will now represent the Eastern Pennsylvania Region at the USPC National Championships to be held August 5-8 in Lexington, Ky.

Jennifer Bleiler, captain, Kelly Ruby, Erin Ziegler and Jennifer Hill, were Senior "D" team, which placed first in the qualifying rounds. Their 350 out of 400 points won the high point qualifying round plaque over 19 teams at all ratings! This team placed second in the championship round.

Rounding out the day was the fourth-place Junior "D" team made up of Alyssa Conlin, captain, Amanda Williams and Matthew Provinski.

Water Quality Clinics Planned

YORK — If you have a problem with your drinking water, you may consider buying water-treatment equipment. Shopping for the right equipment can be confusing, and owning and operating it can be expensive.

"Testing your water and defining your water quality needs are the first step in correcting a water quality problem" says Dr. Bill Sharpe, water specialist at Penn State University. Many labs in Pennsylvania provide water testing service. Interpretation of these results, however, is often not provided. A water-quality specialist can assist you in selecting the necessary water tests, interpreting the results, and suggesting corrective action for water-quality problems.

On March 23, York County residents will have a chance to learn more about managing their water at a Safe Drinking Water Clinic. The clinic, sponsored by York County Cooperative Extension and participating companies, will be held at the York County 4-H Center. The program is scheduled from 1:00 to 3:00 pm and repeated at 7:00 to 9:00.

A clinic also will be held in Dauphin County at the Agricultural and Natural Resources Center, located two miles north of Dauphin on Route 225. The program will be held on Tuesday, March 28. There will be two presentations 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. There is no admission fee.

For information, call the Dauphin County Extension Office at 717/921-8803 or the York County Extension office at 717/757-9657.

Penn State Ag Students Place In Speaking Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Center) — Six students in Penn State's College of Agriculture received cash awards for their winning presentations in the annual Guldin Speaking contest at Penn State in March.

The first prize went to Rebecca A. Sonnen, daughter of Paul M. and Marilyn F. Sonnen of Richland. Her presentation, "Beyond His Wildest Dreams," was about George Washington's prediction that agriculture would continue to present unlimited possiblities to America. As examples, she discussed the transition from "hay-burning" horses to tractors and the promising role of animal and plant biotechnology. Rebecca is a freshman majoring in dairy production.

The second prize went to Ross Pifer, son of Lois Pifer of Punxsutawney. His presentation, "Water Rights," focused on the history of water rights and the legal, ecological, and economic implications of how water is owned and allocated. Pifer is a junior majoring in agricultural business management.

Third place went to Thomas S. Kapinus, son of Cy and Joan Kapinus of Centre Hill, and Eric Duncan, son of Gary K. and Carolyn L. Duncan of Shrewsbury. The title of Kapinus' address was "The Future of Agriculture." He spoke about local, national, and international aspects of agricultural trade and the implication of innovations to agricultural production. Duncan's address, "Underutilized Foods," focused on the pro and cons of processed and fresh seafood and chicken and their marketing potential. Kapinus is a senior majoring in agricultural business management, while Duncan is a sophomore in food science.

Aimee L. Panichella, daughter of John and Virginia Panichella of Greensburg, took fifth place with a speech on the challenges and career potential for graduates in environmental resource management, in which she is majoring.

Lisa Overly, daughter of Tom and Hedy Overly of Littlestown, took sixth place with a speech on the pros and cons of food imitation. Overly is a junior majoring in food science.

The Guldin Speaking contest is made possible through funds donated in memory of Paul R. Guldin, an agricultural leader and poultry farmer from Berks County. It is sponsored by the Coaly Society, the student honor society in agriculture at Penn State.

Finalists were judged by a panel of students and faculty. This year's faculty judges were Dr. Cathy Faulcon Bowen, assistant professor of agriculture and extension education; Dr. Larry Joseph Kassab, professor of speech communication; and Dr. James McCoy, director of marketing for University Admissions.

Corn Growers Win Second Place

MILAN, OH — Lester and Celeste Edwards of Forest Hill were featured in the spring 1989 edition of the national newsletter "The Growers Solution." Their article is placed prominently under the Proud Moments section. It describes their second-place win at the Maryland State Fair in 1988 in the corn silage division.

"We did it as a lark," said Celeste. To enter the contest the selected six stalks of corn from their regular fields. The tall stalks held up by a proud Les and the ribbon are shown in the newsletter. Using the growers program, their fertilizer cost was $39 per acre.

"The Growers Solution" is published four times a year by Growers Fertilizer Solutions of Milan, Ohio. Growers Fertilizer Solutions, now with 33 years of commercial on-the-farm use, is credited with the development of foliage fertilization and direct to the seed application in field crops.

Growers Fertilizer Solutions were developed by Dr. V.A. Tiedjens, former director of the Virginia Truck Experimental Station at Norfolk. Tiedjens performed 30 years of fundamental research, much of which was in hydroponics, before perfecting his formulation currently in use.

Growers customers have shown outstanding results with top quality crops, such as 58 to 60 pound test weight corn along with high protein levels of 9 to 13 percent. Growers' alfalfa hay has been reported reaching 23 to 26 percent protein. When the high quality crops are fed to animals, the animals are healthier and are produced at less cost.

Her responsibilities will include developing materials and learning activities in dairy, livestock, horse and small animal programs for 4-H youth. She will also research the impact of the 4-H animal sciences curriculum on youth.

"I will start by focusing on updating the existing 4-H project materials," says Keyser. "We need to concentrate on make 4-H a learning experience but also making sure that kids have fun."

Prior to her appointment, Keyser worked as an agent for Penn State Cooperative Extension in York County, developing adult dairy and 4-H dairy and horse educational programs. She also has been an assistant professor of agriculture at Missouri Western State College where she taught courses in introductory animal science, animal nutrition and breeding, beef, sheep and horse production and animal diseases. Dairy Of Distinction Program Called Beneficial; Seeks 1989 Applications Now

(Deadline For Applications is April 15, 1989)

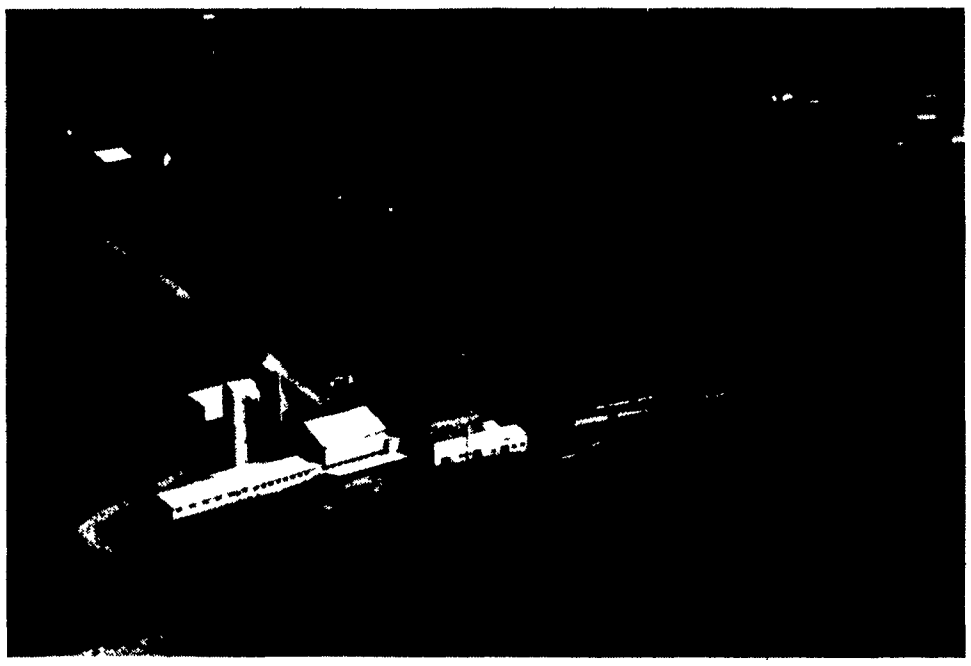
HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The Northeast Dairy of Distinction farm beautification program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

At the recent annual meeting of the Pennsylvania division here, State Secretary Paul Nichols reported an increase in publicity for dairymen created by the Dairy of Distinction program in 1988.

For example, James Brubaker of Mt. Joy, a Lancaster County winner, and State President Everett Newswanger appeared on a state-wide syndicated public TV program. Also a "Philadelphia Inquirer" reporter interviewed Newswanger and several Dairy of Distinction winners for a story. And the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sent a list of winners to all their news contacts across the state.

In 1987, Pennsylvania received 329 applications and chose 99 winners. In 1988, there were 229 applications with 94 winners. Letters of quality went out to all milk handlers. Two negative responses were returned.

Again in 1988, Governor Robert Casey declared a Dairy of Distinction week by signing a proclamation that was presented by State Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff at the reception for all winners at Ag Progress Days in August. At that time, LANCASTER FARMING presented color photographs to each Dairy of Distinction winner, too.



Edgefield Farms, owned by the Kenneth Rutt family, Quarryville, Lancaster County was one of the 94 state-wide winners in 1988. New applications for the 1989 program are now being accepted.

"Since we now have worked on the program for three years, the benefits have started to multiply," Newswanger said. "Not only does the extra favorable publicity in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, it helps the farmer, too. Many winners use the distinction to promote their own operation or to seek and hire farm labor."

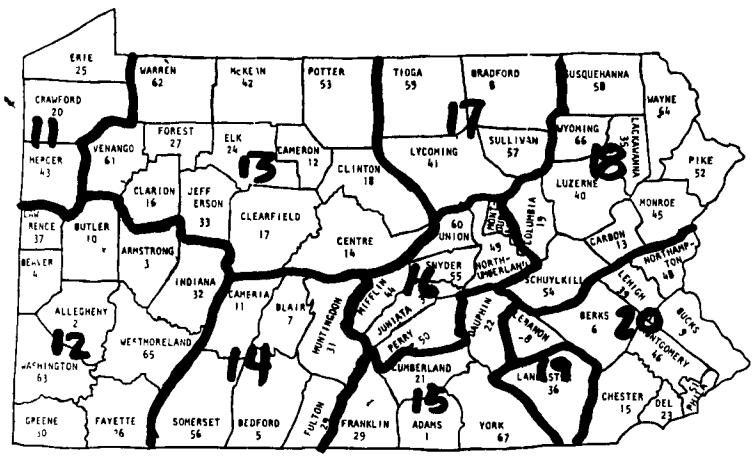
And now is the time when additional dairy farmers may apply for the Dairy of Distinction award. Also farms that had applied in previous years but did not win are eligible to reapply this year. The Dairy of Distinction farms are automatically entered for rejudging along with the new applications to insure each designated farm maintains the standard of excellence required by the program.

Pennsylvania has been divided into 10 districts. Each district has been designated according to its number of dairy cows. Up to 10 farm awards per district may be given each year. Deadline for entry is April 15.

Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. A local district team of judges visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In the Pennsylvania program, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process.

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program by LANCASTER FARMING.

The Dairy of Distinction program is a cooperative, widespread industry effort. Sponsors include: milk promotion groups, cooperative extension, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agribusinesses. The program is run by volunteers at all levels of the organization.



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are:

District II: George Wilcox; District 12: Wally Jackson; District 13: Jack Erway; District 14: David Myers; District 15: Sam Maclay; District 16: Bernice Gable; District 17: Kevin Barrett; District 18: Allen Roszel; District 19: Naomi Spahr and District 20: Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to put at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present this year's winners in Pennsylvania with a color portrait print of their farm. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Campaign Encourages Cheeseburger Eating

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — This spring while a $6.5 million national campaign encourages consumers to celebrate "Cheeseburger Days," shoppers in Pennsylvania will be more likely to actually purchase cheese and lean ground beef than shoppers in other parts of the country. Why? Because the three American Dairy Association (ADA) regional units serving Pennsylvania have teamed with the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) to buy additional call-to-action advertising that will extend and intensify the impact of the "Cheeseburger Days" campaign across the state.

The three ADA regional units working with the PBC to boost sales in the state are: American Dairy Association and Dairy Council; Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association; and Mid East United Dairy Industry Association/the Federal Order 36 Advertising and Promotion Agency. Together, the group of four will be placing point of sale promotional kits into the dairy and meat departments of over 1000 Pennsylvania supermarkets. Additionally the three ADA units and the state beef council have purchased $38,000 worth of advertising in the form of shopping cart mini-billboards and in-store radio broadcasts.

The in-store advertising is designed to reinforce the national advertising and trigger impulse purchases of cheese and lean ground meat at the point-of-sale, where 70 percent of all buying decisions are made.

On the national level, this year marks the fourth time the American Dairy Association (ADA) and the Beef Board and Beef Industry Council have co-sponsored a spring cheeseburger campaign to promote cheese and lean ground beef. Willard Scott, ADA spokesman and weatherman for NBC's "Today Show," will encourage consumers to join the "Cheeseburger Days" celebration. The campaign will include national television, radio and print ads, a consumer sweepstakes, point-of-purchase promotional material for the dairy case and meat department, and special contests for grocery store dairy, meat and ad managers.

Supermarket displays have been created for both the dairy aisle as well as the meat department. Four-color materials will be on display in both sections in order to attract shoppers' attention and encourage cheese and meat purchases. Materials include banners, flags and sweepstakes entry forms.

In order to generate interest in the promotion, a special contest has been developed for consumers. By entering the contest, consumers will qualify to win a selection of prizes which all relate to outdoor barbecues. Entry blanks will be available at the dairy and meat aisles as well as in print ads.

To encourage participation on the trade level, display contests have been developed aimed at dairy case and meat department managers. The contests encourage supermarkets to develop specialty displays to promote the cheeseburger theme. To qualify, the displays must promote domestic cheese and lean ground beef.

The combination of national and local promotion programs for the "Cheeseburger Days" promotion should lead to strong cheese and beef sales this spring. The promotion will run from late March through the middle of May.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association and the Mid East Unitd Dairy Industry Association/ the F.O. 36 Agency, are all members of the American Dairy Association. They conduct dairy promotion and advertising programs on behalf of local dairy producers.

Eastern Shore Corn: 1989 Farm Program Analysis

NEWARK, DE. — University of Delaware Extension marketing specialist Carl German has prepared a fact sheet to explain the 1989 Wheat and Feed Grain Program. The fact sheet deals with the provisions of the 1989 program and gives an example for an Eastern Shore corn grower with a 100-acre corn base. The example compares the basic 10 percent participation level and the 0/92 option to the option of no program participation.

Although the data used in the example is well within the realm of probability for the Eastern Shore corn grower, the specialist says that individuals will still want to analyze the program for their own farm. The information presented in the fact sheet is intended to serve as a guide for area farmers to allow them to make informed decisions when considering program participation.

There are a few changes in this year's program as compared to last year, says German. For example, the amount of set aside acreage in the basic program has been reduced from 20 percent last year to 10 percent this year, with the diversion payment eliminated.

Additionally, the basis for determining the level of any deficiency payment has also changed. The payment will be based upon the national average corn price for the entire marketing year rather than the first five months, as has been the case previously. German says the information presented in the fact sheet, plus the preliminary market outlook for 1989, indicate that program participation is definitely worth considering for the corn grower.

Further information regarding the specifics of the programs should be obtained by contacting your county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office. For a copy of the fact sheet contact either your county agent or Carl German at 230 Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717. The deadline for program sign-up is April 14.

State College

Five members from the State College FFA Chapter received awards for their record books in the 1988 Pennsylvania FFA Record Book Contest. Jodi Hall and Stacey Klinger received gold awards for horticulture and on farm work experience. Steve Derr and Jennifer Brown received silver awards for on farm work experience and John Everhart received a bronze award for on farm work experience. FFA members use the record books to keep records on their agricultural experience projects. These projects range from horticulture to swine production. The judges place the books based on the accuracy and neatness of the records.

Herbicide-Resistant Corn Being Developed

NASHVILLE, TN — Thanks to biotechnology, a herbicide-resistant corn may be on the market by 1992, according to Walt Fehr, biotechnology coordinator at Iowa State University, who talked to attendees of the 31st Corn Classic of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

Biotechnology is just the newest tool for breeders who have been improving plants genetically for years, Fehr said. In addition, biotechnology allows scientists and agriculture to respond to society's increasing concern over farm chemicals by breeding both disease- and pesticide-resistant varieties.

Public concern over agricultural chemicals in surface and groundwater led to the formation of the Alliance for a Clean Rural Environment (ACRE). ACRE is a coalition of the 20 chemical companies that account for 92 to 94 percent of the U.S. agricultural pesticide market, according to Pat Haggerty, executive director of ACRE.

"We want to be a beacon of truth in the darkness of emotion," Haggerty told corn growers, inviting them to join ACRE. "We want to make sure facts are used in the public debate."

ACRE will not lobby, but plans to educate grower, allies in the agriculture industry, and consumers. Its goal is to "improve the public policy atmosphere for realistic and sensible regulation to protect groundwater. Mom, apple pie, baseball, and groundwater protection! That's what it's all about," Haggerty concluded.

Lititz Student Awarded Summer Internship

ALTOONA (Blair) — Sallie M. Gregory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory of Lititz, has been awarded a summer history internship at the Cornwall Iron Furnace in Lebanon.

"I really like interpreting what life was like long ago to other people," Sallie said recently. "One of my duties at Cornwall Furnace will be conducting tours, and I'm looking forward to explaining how the furnace was used. An internship like this is a great chance to explore my interest in history as well as further my education."

Sallie, a 1987 graduate of Warwick High School, participated in 4-H activities in Lititz. She is currently a sophomore at the Penn State Altoona campus majoring in elementary education with a minor in history. She has earned dean's list honors for the last two semesters, is vice president of the Circle K Service Club, and is active in intramural volleyball.

In addition to conducting tours of Cornwall Furnace, Sallie will be responsible for maintenance work and doing research at the Furnace. As part of her internship, she is required to write a research paper about the Furnace to be published in a newsletter printed by the state archives in Harrisburg.

WHETHER YOU FARM HERE OR IN THE SAHARA, THE ZETOR 6200 SERIES' DURABILITY IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN ITS LOW PRICE, $11,925*

Through good seasons and bad, the cost of farming doesn't change. Your equipment needs don't either.

So when you need a new tractor in the 53 PTO HP range, you need a new Zetor Series 6200 tractor. Even with 4-wheel drive, these Zetor tractors are half the price of most of their competitors, making them affordable no matter what kind of season you're having.

And you get a lot more than you pay for.

Zetor's cast iron chassis puts heavy muscle into your work. And its fuel-sipping performance easy maintenance, flat operator's deck, ergonomically-designed seat and unobstructed view help you get more hours in the field.

Every day For years and years.

Zetor backs up the facts with a reputation for enduring quality that's grown for 40 years on farms in over 90 countries around the world. Plant a Zetor on your own farm. Through the seasons, you'll find its durability is even more impressive than its low price.

See your nearest Zetor dealer soon. And see for yourself.

The Turkey Feeder that Solves Four Problems of Continuous Grow-Out.

1 The grower can more easily follow prescribed feeding practices and programs He has control of the system

2 Every feeder line accepts interchangeable pan sizes, medium depth and deep pans; Plus Big Dutchman offers "The Orange One," a smaller feeder with a more shallow 13-inch diameter pan for starting poults

3 Feed depth and flow are controlled by a single winch at the hopper end of the line. Accurate settings are easy to make without time-consuming, one-by-one adjustments. Only Big Dutchman offers this depth control feature

4. The Big Dutchman turkey feeding system has an outstanding capability for programmed feeding. The cable adjustment mechanism allows the operator to fill all the pans in the line to maximum capacity when birds are first brought into the house. As feed is eaten out of the pans, the adjustable skirt will move down to the pre-selected position

- Strong central core keeps the skirt aligned and holds pan and shield in position
- Large pan is extra deep, with feed-saving lip The large pan is 5 inches deep, medium pan is 3 inches deep
- Draw cable raises or lowers all pan skirts in the line Maximum feed flow opening is 4 5 inches
- Ample open space between the pan and the upper shield allows adult turkeys to eat comfortably
- Suspension of the plastic core is strengthened by steel hangers that engage the plastic core above the auger tube
- There are no small parts Assembly and maintenance are simple and easy
- Interchangeable pan sizes provide versatility, matching the feeding equipment to the needs and growth stages of the flock, from poults to heavy toms

TO WORK THEM IS TO LOVE THEM.

Kubota's compact and mid-sized diesel tractors come in different sizes, but to know the quality of their work is to love them.

Kubota's B-Series and L-Series tractors share unusually fuel-efficient diesel engines, from 10-40 PTO HP, that just outworks the competition.

And of course, versatility is built into every Kubota.

Quick-attach implements convert your Kubota into a scraper, loader, mower, tiller, posthole digger or more.

Kubota B-Series or L-Series diesel tractors. To own them is to work and love them.
